STEWART LOSES FIGHT TO BAR STORY OF BONDS

Court Overrules Objection of Defense to Admitting Oil Man's Testimony at Inquiry in April.

SENATOR NYE IS U. S. WITNESS

Says Defendant Was Not Under Oath, but Judge Rules Session of Committee Was Continuous.

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 15.—Over the protest of the defense in the perjury trial of Robert W. Stewart, chairman of the board of the Standard Oil Co. of Indiana, Justice Jennings Bailey today permitted testimony given by the oil man to the Senate Public Lands Committee last April 24 to go before the jury.

With Senator Nye of North Dakota on the stand, Government counsel brought up the April meeting, when Stewart had disclosed that $759,600 of the Continental Trading Co. bonds had been received by him and turned over to as trustee. The Court inquired whether Stewart had been sworn on that occasion, as he was on Feb. 2 and 3, when it is charged that he perjured himself in denying knowledge of any distribution of bonds by the company.

"No, he was not," said Nye, explaining that it was not the custom to swear Senate committee witnesses when they appeared a second time.

The objection of Frank J. Hogan, defense counsel, against admission of the April testimony was overruled by the Court. Justice Bailey took the position that the April meeting was a continuance of those of February and it was not necessary to swear Stewart a second time.

With this, the Government excused Nye temporarily for the introduction into evidence of corrections to be made in the printed record of Stewart's April testimony to make it conform with the stenographic report taken then. [illegible]ding of the record of Stewart's tes[illegible] then was resumed.

Elliott Thurston of the New York World and Paul Y. Anderson of the St. Louis Post-Dispatch, both testified that they had heard Stewart deny knowledge of the distribution of the Continental Company bonds.

Then Government counsel examined Roy J. Barrett, tax commissioner for the Standard Oil Company of Indiana, about the trust agreement reached between him and Stewart in November, 1921, regarding the $759,000 of bonds the oil man had sent by H. H. Osler, president of the Continental Company, from the profits made by that company. He said Stewart had personally drawn up the agreement after telling him he wanted the money so taken care of until he had decided whether it should properly go to his company or to the Sinclair Crude Oil Purchasing Co.

NEW HEAD OF Y. M. C. A. QUITS ANTI-SALOON LEAGUE

F. W. Ramsey of Cleveland Says He Is Not in Accord With Its Political Practices.

CLEVELAND, O., Nov. 15.—Fred W. Ramsey, newly appointed general secretary of the Y. M. C. A., has severed his connection with the Anti-Saloon League because, he said, he is not in accord with that organization's political practices.

The Cleveland philanthropist announced last night that he recently sent a letter canceling his membership and his position on the Executive Committee of the Dry Maintenance League, local branch of the Anti-Saloon League. Ramsey said he believed that other organizations for the furtherance of prohibition were now accomplishing and would accomplish more than the league.

George C. Southwell, secretary of the Dry Maintenance League, said Ramsey's resignation had not been accepted.

CITY COMMISSION MEETS IN AIR

By the Associated Press.

BEAUMONT, Tex., Nov. 15.—The Beaumont City Commission, headed by the Mayor and City Manager, held a session yesterday in the cabin of a monoplane while the plane was 1200 feet above the city. Creation of a 240-acre airport was discussed and a resolution calling for the purchase of the tract was read.

Legality of an official session above the city has been established, the city attorney said, by court rulings that city limits extend above the corporation as well as on the earth's surface.

ATHEIST LEADER GETS 90 DAYS, FINED $100, FOR BLASPHEMY

Arkansas Court Imposes Maximum Sentence on Charles Smith—Appeal Taken.

By the Associated Press.

LITTLE ROCK, Ark., Nov. 15.—The maximum sentence—a fine of $100 and 90 days on the county farm—was imposed upon Charles Smith, president of the American Association for the Advancement of Atheism, when he was convicted in Municipal Court today of a charge of violating an old English law against blasphemy. Smith appealed and was released under $1000 bond.

Under a law, against which he protested recently with an 18-day hunger strike while serving out a fine in the city jail, Smith again was denied the right to testify in court.

Smith said his conviction and appeal would give him a long-sought opportunity to test out this antiatheist law.

The blasphemy charge was based on atheist literature which A. B. Cypert, Prosecuting Attorney, said was blasphemous and held the Chrisitan religion up to ridicule.

Smith was arrested late yesterday as he prepared to reopen his Main street atheist headquarters, which had been closed last week after a police raid. He came to Arkansas to fight the antievolution law adopted at the Nov. 6 election.

OCTOBER EXPORTS HIGHEST IN ONE MONTH FOR 7 YEARS

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 15.—Exports of the United States for October were $555,000,000 and imports for the same month were $357,000,000, giving this country a favorable trade balance of $198,000,000. Preliminary figures made public by the Commerce Department today fixed exports for the 10 months ending with October at $4,113,592,000 and imports at $3,427,069,000, giving the United States a favorable trade balance for that period of $686,523,000.

In October the United States imported $14,310,000 in gold and exported $990,000. Silver imported amounted to $7,310,000 and silver exports were $7,238,000.

The amount of exports shipped from the United States in October of this year, $555,000,000, was greater than that for any single month since January, 1921.

HENRY FORD TO MANUFACTURE AUTOMOBILE TIRES IN BRAZIL

Factories to Be Established Near Rubber Plantation He Is to Develop There.

By the Associated Press.

DETROIT, Mich., Nov. 15.—The Ford Motor Co. will undertake manufacture of automobile tires and other rubber products in Brazil, in connection with the Ford rubber plantation now being developed there, Henry Ford announced today.

Ford said he did not know where the Brazilian factories would be built, but that in any event manufacture of finished products from Brazilian rubber should be located in Brazil.

The automobile manufacturer expressed confidence that the plantation project would succeed and said he intended to visit Para, near the plantation base.

In addition to rubber trees, Ford said it is planned to cultivate oil nut trees, cotton and "whatever the soil and climate may indicate as profitable."

WOMAN TESTIFIES DR. G. W. TREMAIN WON AFFECTIONS

Mrs. William Wiles Asserts She Liked Physician Better Than Husband, Now Seeking $25,000.

TESTIFIES MEDICINE MADE HER FEEL NUMB

"The more I saw of the doctor, the less I thought of my husband."

Before a jury and a courtroom filled with eager-eared men and women, Mrs. Margaret Wiles, a Frenchwoman, who married an American soldier in Paris, elaborated on this theme yesterday at the trial of her husband's suit for $25,000 damages, alleging alienation of her affections, against Dr. George W. Tremain, elderly physician, with offices at 3532 Washington boulevard.

The case went to the jury at 11 a. m. today, in Circuit Judge Calhoun's court.

A plump, black-eyed brunette, 28 years old, and sharp of tongue, Mrs. Wiles briefly told of her wartime romance.

Tells How She Met Husband.

"I met my husband on the streets of Paris," she related. "I was working as a clerk in a department store and was on my way home. It was raining. I had no umbrella. He did. He tried to ask me in French if it was raining. He got mixed up, but I knew what he was driving at. I admitted it was raining. He offered to take me home. I accepted."

"Did you fall in love with his form, his uniform or his brass buttons?" the witness was asked.

"What did I care what he looked like?" she retorted. "He had an umbrella and that's what I was looking at."

Goes to Doctor's Office.

Nine months later they were married. Living in St. Louis with her husband, William Wiles, a woodworker, in 1923, she went to Dr. Tremain's office for treatment of a sprain. She testified Dr. Tremain gave her a massage and medicine. Thereafter she saw him once a week, she said, either at his office or her home.

"The medicine he gave me made me feel queer and dumb—I mean numb," Mrs. Wiles testified.

"What did the doctor do?" inquired Wiles' attorney, Frank Coffman.

"Well," said Mrs. Wiles, "the doctor put his arms around me and kissed me."

"Did he do anything else?"

"He did."

Wishes She Had Told.

"I didn't tell my husband about it, but I wished I had," the witness added. She said Dr. Tremain called at her home at 4234 Swan avenue in December, 1925, to treat her daughter, but was hugging and kissing Mrs. Wiles when Wiles came home and caught them.

"You say the doctor was making love to you while he had his overcoat on—I never did anything like that," interjected Attorney Ruler.

"I don't know what you did, but the doctor did," answered Mrs. Wiles.

"My husband was awful mad," Mrs. Wiles continued. "The doctor said, 'Why, hello, Bill,' and tried to shake hands with my husband. Bill wouldn't shake hands. The doctor kept hiding behind my skirts."

Dr. Tremain, having left the house without a fight, did not seem worried when she called on him the next day at his office, Mrs. Wiles continued. "He told me," she testified, "that he could buy up all the Judges and juries and have my husband killed and my home dynamited."

Helping Pay for Home.

Mrs. Wiles said she was receiving an income of $100 a month from an estate in France and was helping her husband to meet the payments on their home. They have two children, one adopted. Although Mrs. Wiles said she had been estranged from her husband for three years, because of Dr. Tremain's attentions, she still lives in the same house with Wiles.

Before Mrs. Wiles went on the stand, Wiles had told how he "discovered" the family physician embracing his wife, and Dr. Tremain had made a strenuous denial that he ever displayed affection for

U. S. INQUIRY IN LOSS OF VESTRIS BEGUN

Reporter Who Went Down With Vestris and Was Rescued Writes Graphic Account of the Disaster

Fate of Vessel Sealed for Hours Before End Came With Startling Suddenness, Correspondent Says in His Story to the Post-Dispatch—Water in Coal Bunkers Caused It to Settle.

THIS eye-witness account of the sinking of the Vestris was dictated from his bed in New York by William Wills Davies, New York correspondent of La Nacion, Buenos Aires, a passenger on the liner, following his rescue.

By WILLIAM WILLS DAVIES.

NEW YORK, Nov. 15.—To the accompaniment of awful and unforgettable scenes, the Lamport & Holt liner Vestris, after more than 24 hours at a dangerous list, turned completely on its side and swept 114 people to their doom. This happened at exactly 2:31 (Monday afternoon), according to my watch, which I have before me now, and the face of which is discolored with rust from the small hand.

Boats were smashed as the Vestris suddenly went down and the waiting people in one boat were overturned into the water. While the fate of the Vestris had obviously been sealed for hours, the end really came with startling suddenness. The list had been increasing steadily hour by hour, and as a wave would strike the uptilted port side, there would be an ominous quiver and one wondered when the end would come.

Ship Slants More and More.

I remember trying to figure out in my mind how much higher the rail on the top port deck could go without the boat sinking, but each time it would settle back into position again and remain afloat.

There were many members of the crew aboard when the boat went down, and perhaps a dozen or more passengers were grouped along the port rail, hanging on because of its definite list.

Then, all of a sudden at 2:30 o'clock, as a wave hit the side, the port rail went up and up util the boat was completely on its side. It was only a matter of moments after this until it settled into the water. Such passengers who were left aboard and the crew were engulfed as the steamer went down accompanied by terrifying and appalling sounds. Never in my life have I heard such a frightful combination of crashes and explosions. The deck piano broke away from its bolted position, and with deck chairs and all other impediments rattled down the perpendicular decks.

Passengers Thrown in Water.

Then there were explosions, and it seemed, one queer, gulping sound as if some gigantic animal had swallowed too much water. A few moments later the Vestris itself was out of sight, but the surface of the sea was boiling with eddies, and passengers and crew were trying to cling to chairs, hatch covers, pieces of wood and other wreckage.

I believe that the reason some of the people who were still on the boat were saved was because there was a very quick, drifting current at the time, so that they were carried away from the spot of the actual sinking before the tremendous suction of the great liner could pull them down with it.

It is hard to know where to start in describing the sinking of the vessel. So many impressions crowd in the mind that it is difficult to sort them out and give them sequence and continuity. Most of the boats were clear when the Vestris finally went below. Three had been lowered from the port side after considerable difficulty, and the fourth was waiting its final complement of passengers, among whom were my friends, Mr. S. S. Koppe, Mr. Carlos Quiros, Chancellor of the Argentine Consulate, and myself, who were aboard when the end came with such startling suddenness.

Captain Goes Down With Ship.

This fourth boat was still hanging on the ropes and of course resting on the almost horizontal side of the vessel, close to the water. There was not time to cut it away, so the boat simply went over, tumbling its load of human beings into the boiling and seething waters.

Fortunately two or three boats which were lightly laden cruised among the wreckage and picked up some passengers. It must be clearly stated, however, that they did not pick up all, and this was due to the fact that there were clearly not enough boats launched to satisfy the needs of all the passengers and crew. As the boat finally settled. I recall very distinctly having a fleeting glimpse of the Captain, who had been directing operations from the boat deck above the main promenade deck. He shouted, "Goodby, boys," to such officers, crew and passengers who were around him, clinging to the rails on the deck below, and then he went down with his ship.

Man and Woman Tell of Their 20 Hours in Water

THE first-person story of Paul A. Dana, who was rescued after 20 hours in the water with Mrs. Clara Ball, steward of the Vestris, is on page 25 of this edition of the Post-Dispatch.

He was a tragic figure, without collar, unshaved and showing every sign of having been on duty day and night. There was an awful hopelessness in his face as he shouted these last words. I did not see him again.

Let us go back to the beginning and see if we can trace, as nearly as possible, what happened. It must be understood that I am trying to write my impressions as a careful journalist who made inquiries but, as is always the custom in times of stress on shipboard, was not given very full information. However, I shall try to present the events as clearly as I can.

The journey started on Saturday very auspiciously, with a calm sea, but a storm came up during the night and it was obvious on Sunday morning that something was wrong.

The boat had a very definite list, but although it seemed to me to be rather alarming, it was not generally regarded as serious, at all events by passengers. They went around the boat walking at a queer angle from the deck to keep their feet, and laughing with each other as some of the minor officers assured them that the list would be corrected in about an hour or so.

Some time later I learned that the crew and officers knew the situation was grave, and worked throughout Sunday night trying to remedy it.

Water in Coal Bunkers.

There may be some difference of view as to exactly what happened but there seems to be an overwhelming consensus that water got into the coal bunkers on the starboard side and caused the boat to settle. How the water got there is another matter. I do not pretend to know any more than I picked up from the scraps of conversation with members of the crew and particularly with some engineers.

The weather had been very stormy on Sunday night and the Vestris was heavily loaded with cargo. As far as I can learn, the water got past one of the bulkheads leading into the coal bunkers, with the result that by dawn on Monday morning the ship had taken such a tremendous list that it was impossible to pump the water out, as it was running back as fast as it was removed.

I was told that one of the bulkhead doors had not fitted very tightly. Whether this is true or a mere story, circulated by a member of the crew, I am not in position to say, but the truth may be developed if some inquiry is made.

Engines Dead; Vessel Drifts.

I remember remarking on Sunday afternoon that the Vestris seemed to be rolling a lot and later I was told that the engines had been stopped some time on Sunday afternoon. I believe that they were started again during the afternoon, but that they were

NEW YORK, Nov. 15.

By the Associated Press.

ABOARD the Vestris were 328 persons, 129 passengers, 199 crew. They are accounted for as follows:

Rescued—60 passengers and 154 crew. Total 214.

This shows that less than half the passengers were rescued, whereas more than three-fourths of the crew were saved.

Missing and presumably dead —92.

Among the dead and missing are 27 women, 13 children.

Saved by rescue ships:

Berlin—Five passengers, 18 crew. Total 23.

Myriam—Eight passengers, 49 crew. Total 57.

Wyoming—Six passengers, 3 crew. Total 9.

The missing include 27 women and 13 children. All the children who were aboard apparently perished, while 10 women were saved.

VESUVIUS ERUPTION BEGINS AS THAT OF ETNA SUBSIDES

By the Associated Press.

NAPLES, Nov. 15.—As the outpouring of molten lava from Mt. Etna continued to diminish today, Mt. Vesuvius became active.

Incandescent matter was being thrown out from a small orifice at the base of the central cone from which it spouted last August. The eruptive activity was on the northwest side almost under the station of the cable railway running toward the summit.

Lava was pouring from the fissures of the main crater which sent out tongues of flames into the Valley of the Inferno last August.

NEW YORK, Nov. 15.—Much of the mystery which surrounds the Vestris disaster was cleared up when a reporter talked with Stoker Edward Hampden and some members of the lost ship's crew of firemen, who were picked up by the French tanker, Myriam. Other stokers, trimmers and sailors who worked below deck corroborated Hampden, whose disclosures indicate that the cause of the foundering and loss of life could be traced to the failure to shut and lock the coal port, which is a sort of an iron half door, four feet above the waterline on the starboard side, amidships.

"When we sailed from Hoboken Saturday afternoon this coal port was left open," Hampden said. "I guess everything would have been fine, if the sea had not begun to kick up that night and Sunday morning. When I went on watch at 4 a. m., Sunday, the ship was listing a little and pretty soon a trimmer came down and said he was 'looking for the leak.' There was water in the bunkers. The coal port led into the bunkers and also into the fire room.

Found Port Open.

"The trimmer found the open port, but couldn't spring it shut. When I went off watch at 8 a. m. they were working with bars and hammers to get it tight.

"I came back on watch again at 4 p. m. Sunday and the door was still open. They were still trying to make it tight and by this time the water was ankle deep in the fire room. Most of it was on the starboard side, where the port was. The water continued rising and the

WITNESS SAYS MANY OF CREW LOOKED OUT FOR THEMSELVES

F. W. Puppe Charges Sailors Fitted a Few Life Boats With Proper Equipment for Own Safety.

CENSURES DELAY IN CALLING HELP.

Salt Water in Casks and Wet Flares in Boat in Which He Got Away, He Testifies.

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, Nov. 15.—A dramatic recital by a passenger, an engineer accustomed to sea travel of grim forebodings of disaster that came to him hours before the liner Vestris sank Monday, was given today at the opening of the Federal investigation into the loss of the ship and 114 lives when she turned over 240 miles off the Virginia Capes.

Fred W. Puppe, whose wife and 7-months-old child were lost, estified of a dangerous listing of the ship on Sunday and related circumstances which indicated to him that certain members of the crew provided for themselves in lifeboats at the expense of passengers. He indicated that a distress message should have been sent out long before it was.

More than 50 witnesses were subpenaed for the hearing, which was begun before United States Commissioner O'Neill this afternoon.

Was Told Steward Was Drunk.

Puppe said that when he first went to his cabin Saturday he found that most of his baggage was not there. He later found it in the hold where it had been placed with the heavy baggage. Later he learned that other passengers had had similar experiences with their baggage.

He said he asked another steward what he should do about personal service and that this employe replied: "I'm not supposed to take care of your cabin but I will do the best I can to get around to you because your steward is drunk in his bunk and will be unable to atend to you."

"We said to ourselves, 'If it goes like this all along we'll be there in no time,'" the witness asserted.

Voice Breaks as He Testifies.

Puppe told his story in a broken voice. Describing the events of Sunday, he said he had awakened at 6 a. m., the hour when the baby was usually fed.

However, the ship was at such an angle that he found it difficult to move about in the stateroom. His wife, too, was unable to get around comfortably to prepare their infant's food, so Puppe rang for a steward, intending to order some oatmeal. No steward answered, and Puppe said he started to prepare the cereal himself on an electric stove. It spilled a couple of times, he said, demonstrating to United States Commissioner O'Neill how he had endeavored to keep the pan on the cooker.

Puppe said his wife was not feeling well and that he went to breakfast alone.

"I thought," he testified, "that the ship's incline was always the same way and that something must therefore be decidedly wrong. I've traveled a great deal, have been across the ocean many times and up and down the American coast a great many times, and I know that when a ship stands on one side and never turns over to the other side something is wrong.

Had to Hold Plates on Table.

"I met a steward and told him something was decidedly wrong. The stewart said to me: 'You don't know anything about it. The cargo has shifted. The crew are working on it now. Everything will be straightened out in about an hour.'" When Puppe went to lunch Sunday noon the ship was listing so badly, he said, that the

'GOODBY, BOYS,' SHOUTED CAPTAIN, A TRAGIC FIGURE, WHEN HE SANK WITH SHIP

Officers and Crew Knew Situation Was Grave, but Kept Assuring the Passengers There Was No Danger.

stopped again, and that throughout most of Sunday night, the boat just drifted.

It was clearly at the mercy of the waves on Sunday afternoon, and I remember expressing surprise that, although the sea seemed fairly quiet then, the boat was rolling considerably.

I had my first taste of adventure in this sensational voyage about 4 o'clock on Sunday afternoon. I was lying on my berth in my cabin while Mr. Koppe was reading in an opposite berth. We were joking about the way the boat was rolling, when suddenly a heavy sea broke in the window, carrying all the glass and sash clear across the cabin on my bed, absolutely swamping the cabin. I called the steward and he gave us a cabin on the opposite side of the ship while they tried to clear up the one I formerly occupied.

That was on the port side, while the list was to starboard. When we shifted over to the starboard cabin we found the floor was sloping so badly that it was extremely difficult to walk about, and when I awoke on Monday morning and looked through the window it was like looking at the bottom of a well. The list was so great that could not see the horizon at all. It was very difficult to stand upright in the cabin.

Officers Quiet Passengers.

Even on Sunday night the list was too great to eat in the dining room. There were a few people gathered there, but we decided it would be safer to have dinner in the cabin, and the steward brought a couple of plates of cold meat. While we were eating this, the boat gave a sudden startling lurch and almost every table in the dining room was swept from its base and thrown across the room. Food and chairs were scattered in all directions.

We asked for information from such officers as were available, but they told us that it was just a temporary list, and that everything was all right, and the list would be corrected during Monday morning.

However, it got worse and worse and some of the passengers who were either more seasoned travelers or nervous, decided that it would be too risky to go to bed, and they did not undress on Sunday night.

I must say I did not take such a serious view of the matter, but I decided early Monday morning that we were facing a critical state of affairs. I had been given a position with Mr. Koppe at the Captain's table, and we were surprised that we had not seen him. He did not come to dinner on Saturday night, nor to any meals on Sunday, and the next time I saw him was about an hour or two before the end, when he was directing operations from the boat deck.

I sent a message to him early on Monday morning stating that I would like to see him because I wanted to send a story about the condition of the boat. However, the captain sent back word that no story could be sent through. I then went to the wireless room and talked with the four operators who were there. I explained to them that I was a newspaper man and they let me stay.

Radio Operators Balanced Selves On One Leg as They Flashed S O S

I remained for nearly an hour, listening to an extraordinary exchange of messages, and I knew their purport because one radio officer would repeat them to another.

I sat on the precariously sloping floor of the wireless room with my feet wedged against the legs of the table. Without such an anchor I would have slid across the room. The operators themselves stood at their desks, balancing on one leg and making the best they could of a very difficult situation.

It was perhaps 9 o'clock when I first went to the wireless room, and I remained there for about an hour. At first they sent out the messages obtaining the bearings and position of the Vestris and then one of the officers went to Capt. Carey and reported the position of the boats whose aid could be called. Several vessels were called and answered. As far as I could gather, some of these were as much as 300 miles away.

I talked to the operators in between times, and they told me that the nearest boat seemed to be the Santa Barbara, about 60 miles away. I asked him where he figured the Vestris was at that time and he said about 100 miles east of Cape May.

Mistake in Giving Bearings.

It now seems perfectly clear that there was some mistake in giving the bearings of the Vestris, as both the Japanese boat, Ohio Maru, and the Santa Barbara were on the spot given in the wireless messages fairly promptly, but this location was inaccurate owing to the Vestris having drifted a long way during the night.

Before I went to the wireless room on Monday morning I heard a lot of noise around the forward hatches, and clinging to the rail, I made my way forward to see what was happening, and a lot of the colored crew in charge of some officer were dumping cargo overboard. They were picking up boxes of merchandise (most of it seemed to be hardware destined for Brazil) and would tilt it down the side of the deck and slip it overboard. It seemed a very futile proceeding, as they were taking the cargo from midships, and were not making very much progress. I left them at their work and went to the radio office.

Order to Lower Boats.

As the morning wore on, it was clear that the passengers were becoming nervous but they were still told by such officers as could be seen that the ship would be righted. It was then generally known that the SOS messages had been sent out. The general call was made sometime before 10 o'clock in the morning. At about 12 o'clock orders were given to lower the boats, but it seemed an interminable business, possibly because of the list of the ship, which I understand was then about 30 degrees.

Even allowing for difficulties because of the list, the lowering of the boats was very slow. All sorts of aggravating hitches seemed to occur. The boat would not slip down on its skid, and when it did, there were difficulties in keeping it level. Of course, it may be a very delicate operation to lower boats half resting on the side of a listing steamer. However that may be, the passengers were very impatient and critical.

"Women and Children First!"

By about a quarter of 2, the four boats on the port side were ready for the water. Then came the order, which I suppose has always a terrible thrill, of "Women and children first!" By this time the passengers were clustered around the rail and were finding it a little difficult to hold on because of the backward lean of the rail.

The business of loading the women seemed very slow because they were so nervous. This was particularly the case with a Negro woman who repeatedly held up operations by standing terrified on the ladders and not moving.

Meanwhile, as the passengers were clinging to the top rail on the port side, somebody came along and said that the Captain had given the orders to load some of the women and children into boats from the starboard side. This really meant that they had to be sent down the midship's deck which was then sloping at a horrible angle. In fact, it was quite impossible for anybody to walk down it.

Crying Children Make Perilous Descent To the Starboard Side in Blankets

The women sat on the floor and tried to make their way to the rail, but eventually they eased themselves down by means of a rope.

As a matter of fact, the deck was sloping so sharply that it was impossible to slide down without catapulting over the starboard rail into the ocean. Blankets were tied together to let some of the smaller children down to the starboard side. It was pitiful to see the horrified faces of the mothers as their crying children made this perilous descent.

There was one baby in the cabin opposite mine. I watched him from my door several times during Sunday night as he sat in his perambulator, crowing and laughing. This was one of the children loaded into an ill-fated boat on the starboard side, which smashed when it was being launched. It is doubtful, in any case, whether an infant of that age could have survived the frightful experiences of a cold, stormy night in an open boat.

Women in Three Boats.

Three or four boats were lowered on the starboard side. This seemed a harder task than on the port side, although I must admit I did not watch the operations very closely on the starboard side, because of the difficulty of climbing up again after one had made the descent. At least two of these boats were occpied largely by Negroes with, of course, some of the ship's officers in charge.

When the boat finally sank I was one of several passengers waiting to get aboard one of the two final boats on the port side. One of them had got away and there was still one left. While women and children went first into three of those boats, one of them was occupied almost exclusively by men. Some other passengers and I had asked about what boats were available for us, and the Captain replied that there were two boats on the starboard side.

MR. AND MRS. ORRIN S. STEVENS.

THEY were passengers on the Vestris. Stevens, Buenos Aires representative of the First National Bank of Boston, was rescued, while his wife was lost. She was Miss Gladys May Holt of Buenos Aires. The pair had spent a three-month moneymoon in the United States.

We walked aft, but as the starboard rail was awash, it seemed almost impossible to board a boat there. Moreover, I got a fleeting glimpse, through the sloping shaft that had been the midship's deck, of a boat being smashed up, so the prospects of getting aboard on that side did not seem very encouraging. We then went back to the Captain and said there seemed to us to be room in the boat that was still hanging on the port side. He said all right, that he would arrange for us to get aboard that.

It was while we were planning to do this that the Vestris suddenly tilted on her side and went down. I found myself clinging to the rail, and the rail instead of being horizontal was absolutely perpendicular. My feet were dangling and it was hard to keep hold. Below I got a glimpse of a seething mass of water rushing up through the midship's deck to meet me, carrying with it deck chairs and debris of all kinds.

When the water had reached within about 10 feet of me, I dropped and, with about a dozen others, went gurgling into this horrible well. I have never heard such noises. Explosions were not particularly loud, but there seemed to be an imminent threat that they would be followed by a terrific blowing up of the whole vessel. Fortunately this did not happen. At the same time, I was conscious of some overpowering chemical which seemed to me something like ammonia. These fumes rose suffocatingly over the rising water.

As I dropped I remember calculating the chances of ever getting out of the boat again, and I seemed to go down a long way. I put my hands above my head as part of some rapidly conceived subconscious plan to save myself from being thrown against the floating timber on the surface above. It seemed a long time before I came up, but I supposed it was only a matter of a few moments.

Rises to Surface to Find Dozens of Persons Floundering Amid Wreckage

At that time I felt that there was but a very faint hope of my surviving. But I had a strong feeling that death by drowning would be very difficult. I had always heard that drowning was an easy death, but I found myself carefully holding my breath while below, nursing my energies. As I sank with the steamer, I was so long in coming to the surface that I had a terrific feeling of suffocation, but that disappeared after a breath or two of fresh air.

Around me there were deck chairs, floating wreckage and an incredible mass of woodwork. There were also dozens of people in the water, some nearby and others some distance away. By that time the Vestris must have completely sunk, as when I reached the surface I saw nothing of her.

I found myself able to swim fairly well, especially with the support of a life belt. I supported myself by clinging first to a chair, then to part of a hatch on which I scrambled, next to a piece of heavy timber which offered good support. In this boiling and seething mass of water and wood I caught sight of my friend, Mr. Koppe, who was clinging to what looked like a small raft, but this may have been the top of a hatch. A heavy wave came along and I was hurled off the board to which I was clinging when it collided with a tightly wedged mass of heavy wreckage. I last saw Mr. Koppe floating on this heavy covering or raft as the current swirled us apart.

At this time I was able to look around me and I saw numbers of people swimming in the water, but most of the boats were standing off, apparently feeling that they had their full complement. I saw two boats which were cruising around in the wreckage, but they did not come very near. I found that I had time to shift from one piece of timber to another until finally I reached a broken overturned boat. It was lying completely upside down on the water, and I managed to scramble on top of it, and from this position to look around.

A curious thing happened while I was in this position. There were many Negroes floating around among the wreckage. One of them was lying on top of a piece of timber that might have been a surf board used in Hawaii. He was swimming with his left hand, while in his right he held an open knife. The end of his board drifted quite close to my leg, as it dangled from the overturned boat.

Picked Up by Boat.

I remember being very much puzzled in that moment of detachment as to why he carried the knife—whether it was to ward off the attacks of sharks or to dispute anyone else's claim to his float.

How long I remained there I do not know, but it was possibly half or three quarters of an hour. I hailed one boat which had picked up a man nearby, but they made no response. Then I saw another one making in my direction, and I called to them and waved my arm. They came to within about 20 feet and said that they could not approach any nearer because of the danger of smashing the boat on the heavy timber floating about. They told me to swim.

I managed to throw off my overcoat quickly and jumped into the water. As I got near the boat they handed me the end of a boat hook and lifted me aboard. I was suffering somewhat from cramp. Meanwhile I noticed two other boats cruising among the wreckage and picking up some of the men who were floating about. The boat that picked me up was smaller than most of the others. I understand it was known as the Captain's boat. There were two men aboard who were in charge, George Hansel and T. Griffin, who certainly did splendid work. There was also one lady aboard the boat, Mrs. De Vore. The rest were members of the crew, three or four and possibly more of them being Negroes.

Huddled Together for Warmth and Kept Eye on Horizon for Sign of Aid

Both Hansel and Griffin worked hard at rowing and keeping the Negro rowers busy and seeing that the boat was kept bailed. One or two of the Negroes complained that they had been awake all night and they wanted to go to sleep, and that there wasn't any sense in rowing anyway, so they spread themselves on the bottom of the boat and went to sleep.

When Griffin told them that, unless they kept rowing and kept the boat bailed, there would be no chance of rescue, they simply became insolent, and he had to keep them in order by alternating threats and tact. Hansel, the storekeeper of the boat, worked hard at the rowing, in spite of a terribly battered arm.

Of course, we expected that at any moment the Santa Barbara would come in sight, but night fell without any sign of a rescue ship. I had found myself quite warm while in the water, but once I got into the boat the penetrating wind was frightfully cold. I had no overcoat to protect me, but although wet through I found the life belt acted as some protection from the biting winds.

The water was fairly calm for a while, so we put out a sea anchor, huddled ourselves together for warmth and kept an eye on the horizon for signs of a relief ship. We had 10 red flares and used them sparingly. The experiences of the night were awful.

Rain Adds to Discomfort.

The sky would be clear for half an hour and then heavy clouds would gather and rain would descend on us, with a strong wind stirring up the ocean. Half a dozen times the wind would partially dry my clothes, and then another heavy rainfall would wet them again.

Dozens of times during the night we all felt half crazy. The men in charge did wonderful work in keeping up the spirits of the oarsmen and promising that they would soon be relieved. Griffin, probably to keep up the spirits of the party, said that he had a hunch that we would be sighted about 2 o'clock in the morning. I thought it was then about 2 o'clock, but he glimpsed at his watch and found it was only 9. It seemed that the long night hours with stars and rain alternating would never end.

At about 9 o'clock we saw a faint line on the horizon which certainly looked like a searchlight. Our hopes immediately began to rise but we did not see it again. I afterward learned from Capt. Cummings of the American Shipper that this was his light, but that the carbon of his searchlight burned out and it was some time before he could repair it.

Finally, at about 3 o'clock in the morning, when the hopes of everybody were running very low, somebody spied the very definite sweep of a searchlight across the sky. I have never seen anything that looked so good.

Just at that time, however, dark clouds started to gather and rain fell in torrents and the sea ran high. It was through these hazardous waves of this driving storm that the searchlight was seen. It seemed like following a will-o'-the-wisp.

It never appeared to get any nearer. At last, however, we picked out not only the searchlight but the lights of the boats as well. We then lighted up our last red flare and, rowing fast, made for the boat. As we came near we raised several shouts and Capt. Cummings told me afterwards that if it had not been for our shouting he would have missed us. He said he did not see us and, just as he was about to move his position, we hailed him.

It was at 5 o'clock in the morning that we reached the side of the American Shipper. There were high waves and it was a hazardous job climbing up the rope ladders. Finally the crew of the American Shipper told the men simply to hold on to the ladders while they pulled them aboard. Once on the American Shipper we were given coffee and the much needed warm blankets.

Woman Shows Rare Courage Despite Her Futile Plea to Hunt for Husband

The only other passenger on board the life boat was Mrs. Devore of California. She showed rare courage under very trying conditions. Just shortly after I was picked up we saw that one of the other boats, heavily laden, was settling in the water, and a few minutes later we could see that some passengers were splashing about in the ocean.

Mrs. Devore turned to the crew of the boat and said, "For God's sake, go after them. I'm sure my husband is in that boat."

There were two or three members of the crew who wanted to go, but the Negroes grumbled threateningly and said that if any more were taken on the boat would swamp.

Mrs. De Vore said: "You ought to be ashamed of yourselves to leave men drown like that."

The Negroes muttered to themselves but when she and some other members of the crew implored them to go to the rescue, they didn't make any response; in fact, they rowed the other way.

Negro Refuses to Row.

It was a very difficult task for the men in charge of the boat, particularly as it didn't seem very clear to me who was in command. Mrs. De Vore turned to me and said: "What do you think of their leaving people to perish?" I urged the Negroes to row in that direction but they took no notice. I want to make it very clear that the officers who were running this boat did their very best. It seemed to me, however, that they were not too certain of how far they could go in enforcing discipline among the Negroes.

When one of the officers criticised a Negro for lying down under a sail, he replied very arrogantly, "Who are you picking on? I've been working day and night." It was clearly a case that called for iron discipline or tact. He therefore chose the latter. He told the Negro that if he didn't row or bale the boat it would sink. The Negro bad-temperedly replied, "I don't care if it does." Curled up in the bottom of the boat trying to get some sleep, this Negro repeatedly complained that another man was lying on top of him. "If you do that any more, I'll knife you," he said.

The officers in charge of the boat probably knew that they needed their men for rowing and had to be tactful. To me it seemed strange that places were left in the boats for such men as these Negroes while passengers who could easily have helped with the rowing found themselves without a seat. Here there was clearly something wrong in the arrangements made for manning the lifeboats and allotting the working places.

Woman Cheers Rowers.

I had several talks with Mrs. Devore during the night, and she tried to keep up her spirits. She said to me: "You know, you're mighty lucky to have been picked up. The Negroes didn't want to do it, but the most of us insisted. I said, 'You wouldn't leave a man there to perish.' Finally the men consented to row over until we got near enough for you to swim to us."

On top of her own harrowing experiences through the long cold bitter night, she had that terrifying fear that her husband had been lost. Yet in spite of this she kept up her spirits and cheered the men to keep rowing and was always speaking optimistically of rescue. I asked her this morning if she had any word of her husband, and, choking back her sobs, she told me he was among the missing.

It is almost impossible to give any idea of the helplessness of a night spent at sea under these conditions. There is no sign of anything—nothing but waves and skyline. If the night had been clear, it would not have been so bad, but storms and rain made conditions almost unbearable. Just before nightfall, the men in boats near us suggested that we all endeavor to keep together so that if a rescue ship came along we would all be picked up. In trying this we drifted so near that there seemed to be danger of the boats colliding, and after that we kept farther apart.

Throughout the night we would see flares which for a moment would raise our hopes until we realized that they came from the other lifeboats. The difficulty of seeing the light at sea is not realized until one spends a night under these conditions. The boat is so low in the water that the waves obscure it from any other boat and one gets only intermittent glimpses of the signals from other boats.

The American Shipper's Search.

The work done by the American Shipper under Capt. Cummings is deserving of the highest praise. The Captain not only made a systematic search but he showed great resourcefulness in deducing how far the life boats and floating persons would be taken by the drifting currents. Figuring on a current of something like three-quarters of a mile an hour, he steamed in that direction, and when he had gone a distance he considered far enough he turned around and came back toward the location of the wreck.

It was in this way that he sighted the boats and finally picked up five of them, rescuing all their passengers without loss. This work, moreover, was done at night without a definite idea of the real location where the boat sank, and most of the actual rescue work was carried on in a very stormy sea.

Capt. Cumings is the typical skipper who prefers action to talk. I had written a story to be sent by radio from the ship, but it was impossible to get it out because the radio capacity of the American Shipper was occupied all night and day with the sending of private messages and lists of passengers. He complained to me that on the night he was searching he found it very difficult to communicate by radio with the other ships standing nearby because the air was always full of messages from newspapers and others asking for information.

Log of Principal Events of Disaster Prepared by Purser of Relief Ship

While I was sitting in the cabin with the purser of the American Shipper, Mr. J. Burrows, yesterday afternoon, he prepared a log of the main events of the disaster. It is a graphic picture and tells the story of the rescue so well that I am reproducing it here. The main events of the rescue work as set out in this log are as follows:

10 a. m.—Proceeded to scene of disaster.

9 to 10 p. m.—Arrived at location. Several ships in the vicinity. Searchlights used and all tactics taken to locate survivors.

11 to 12 p. m.—Still cruising around. Still no news from all ships in vicinity.

1 to 3 a. m.—Still cruising around. Still no news from all ships in vicinity.

3:45 a. m.—First boat sighted. Red flare. Blowing hard. Tanker two miles away.

4 a. m.—First boat alongside. One lady collapsed, brought aboard in cargo net. Two men, one with fractured legs, brought aboard in cargo net. Rain and lightning. Twenty-one crew all very exhausted. Hot soup and coffee.

5 a. m.—Second boat sighted. Made good landing, lee side. All soon aboard. Rain and lightning. One lady, Mrs. De Vore, first aboard. One male passenger. Wind blowing hard. Eighteen crew all very exhausted. Hot soup and coffee.

5:35 a. m.—Third boat sighted. Soon alongside. Chief officer's boat crowded. Lightning. Four male passengers, first class; four male passengers, third class.

6:30 a. m.—Fourth boat sighted. Dawn breaking, blowing hard. Boat poorly handled. 11 male passengers, two third-class male passengers.

7:20 a. m.—Fifth boat sighted; soon alongside. Purser's boat; stewardess aboard in net. Four male passengers, first class. Lightning equally. Three second class passengers, four third class passengers. S. S. Berlin arrived. Twelve crew, all very exhausted. Hot soup and coffee.

Third Boat Picked Up.

8-9 a. m.—Blowing hard. Still cruising around. Several ships in sight. Breakfast and all on board made comfortable. Passengers and crew gave up all available clothes.

9-10 a. m.—Gray skies and sea. Still cruising around. Doctor and purser busy.

10:10 a. m.—Sighted two passengers in belts floating near. Both swimmers, but woman better of two. Boat lowered. Both taken aboard.

11-12—Weather clearing. Heartrending scenes as bodies float by.

Difficulties of Search.

Throughout the morning the American Shipper cruised around picking up other boats. One would imagine that this would be a much easier task in the day than at night but, according to Capt. Cummings, such is not the case. He explained to me that the red flares could be seen for a long way at night if the sea were calm. Of course, the trouble on Monday night was that the sea was extremely rough and that a boat hidden in the trough of the waves could not be seen at any distance. He said that it was extremely fortunate that he succeeded in picking up so many of us.

After dawn while he was going to the help of one of the boats reported to another rescue steamer nearby that there was a lifeboat between them. The Captain of the other vessel had the greatest possible difficulty in seeing it. A number of officers, talking about this difficulty of picking up lifeboats in the daytime, suggested that their visibility would be greatly increased if it were made compulsory to paint lifeboats red.

Survivors Thrilled by Sight of Man And Woman Swimming Toward Steamer

As I have said, the morning was full of thrills for the watchers aboard the American Shipper. Boats were picked up at 6:30 and 7:30, and at 10 o'clock they were amazed to see two people swimming toward the boat. They were both in very good condition, although they had been in the water for 20 hours. The woman was Mrs. Ball, a stewardess on the Vestris.

One terrible aspect of a wreck in these waters is the danger of sharks. As I have said, the water was quite warm, and it is known that these are shark-infested localities. Some of the officers of the American Shipper were watching from the rail when they saw what they believed to be a man swimming some distance from the ship. They put out a boat and were horrified to find that it was a dead man and that a shark had been biting his arm and had severed it.

Question of Culpability.

To what extent there was culpability on the part of the Captain and officers of the Vestris is something that I suppose an investigation will determine. There will doubtless be much criticism by some of the passengers and from the standpoint of the layman it certainly seems strange that, with a vessel listing so badly on Sunday, the general SOS was not sent out until 10 o'clock on Monday morning. There seems to be no explanation of this, and the Captain and officers may have felt that they would be able to right the ship without calling for help.

I do not feel that it is my function to be dogmatic about these matters, simply because I am not in a position to know what reports the Captain received on Sunday night as to the possibility of getting the water out of the coal bunkers. One must assume that he thought he was acting for the best and that he had the situation well in hand. That he was mistaken is now very evident. It is, however, along these lines that complaints are sure to be made by many passengers.

From the layman's standpoint, they will claim that an unnecessary risk was taken in delaying until so late the call for help, and that the launching of the lifeboats was not carried out with either speed or efficiency. This certainly seems to be the general consensus of opinion, although one must make allowances for the difficulty of launching a lifeboat with a boat listing over so far.

In swinging out, one of the lifeboats on the part side had a hole smashed in the bottom. It was not broken quite through but was battered and splintered. I called the attention of an officer to this fact, and he said that once the boat got into the water it would swell up and become watertight. From my own knowledge of boats, this was obviously absurd. Later one of the crew came along with a piece of tin and tacked it over the boards from the outside. I watched the job with interest and I was not very much impressed. It looked to me as if it would still leak and later experience showed that it did.

What to me appear to be the two worst phases of the disaster were these: First, that the call for help was too long delayed, and, secondly, that there were not enough lifeboats launched. To me the latter is extremely important. Many of these lifeboats were marked as having the capacity for 60 persons. From what I saw of these boats, this appeared as far beyond their safe capacity. I have no doubt that they could crowd that number in on a perfectly calm sea, but it is so seldom that this is encountered on the ocean that it is necessary to reckon on stormy weather and high waves.

I talked to several men who were aboard the life boats during the trying hours of Monday night and they agree that the utmost to which these boats should be loaded in anything like a stormy sea would be 45.

It is true that there was only a small passenger list, but notwithstanding this there is no doubt in my mind that, if more boats had been launched, more people would have been picked up.

Just shortly before the boat went down, a rush was made to lower some boats from the after deck but there was not time to do anything. I was told by many survivors that their heavily loaded boats would have gone through the wreckage and cruised for survivors had they not feared that it would be dangerous to take any more aboard. To me this is one of the most serious elements of the whole tragic affair.

On Sunday, he said, "My long experience showed me that the list had steadily increased since morning."

He added that during the afternoon he was in his stateroom most of the time, caring for his sick baby because of the illness of his wife. In the middle of the afternoon, however, he said he went on deck and at that time noticed the list had increased.

That night his wife had become so ill he called the ship's doctor. He asked the doctor if he couldn't get some food from the kitchen for the child. The doctor answered it was impossible to cook in the kitchen any longer, he said.

"This Ship Is Sinking."

"Once during the night," he said, "I think it was about 2 o'clock, we woke up. There was no movement of the ship except that of rolling in the waves. Her engines had stopped. My wife was terribly frightened. I had to quiet her. I said to her: 'If anything is wrong, we are in safe hands. This ship is sinking. It is surely sinking. But it is sinking slowly. Keep quiet. The captain will take care of us. There is plenty of time for him to get help. You will see that when we have to leave the ship there will be dozens of other ships standing by to take us aboard.'

"Since Sunday afternoon I had been absolutely convinced that the ship could not be saved by any means. As an engineer of many years' experinece, I was entirely accustomed to judging engineering problems of this sort."

The Last Day.

Puppe said that at 7 a. m. Monday he wanted some food for his wife and child, but was told that none was being served. He went himself to the kitchen, where the water was sloshing around on the floor, but was told: "Go get it yourself," when he asked for something to eat. He finally got two bananas.

At 8 o'clock, he testified, Mrs. Puppe wanted some water and the witness asked for it and was again told: "Get it yourself." He couldn't find any.

"By 8 o'clock Monday morning," he said, "I was absolutely sure that an SOS had gone out hours before.

EX-CONVICT GETS LIFE FOR MURDER OF WATCHMAN

Jack Fortune Threw Self on Mercy of Jury and Offered no Defense for Holdup Killing.

VERDICT REACHED AFTER THREE HOURS

Slayer of Ferdinand Stange Had Described Robbing and Shooting as "Darn Fool Stunt."

Jack Fortune, two-term ex-convict, was sentenced to life imprisonment this afternoon for the murder of Ferdinand Stange, a night watchman, in an attempted holdup of the Orthwein Motor Co., 3016 Locust street, Jan. 26, last. Admitting the crime, Fortune had thrown himself on the mercy of a jury in Circuit Judge Rutledge's court, hoping to escape the death penalty.

The jury deliberated three hours. On the first ballot, three jurors voted for the death penalty but they were won over on the third ballot to the verdict of life imprisonment.

Fortune's attorney, James R. Claiborne, waived his right to ask for a new trial and asked that sentence be passed immediately. Asked by the Court if he had anything to say, Fortune rose and, with no show of emotion, replied, "Nothing, sir." He was sentenced.

Claiborne had offered no defense testimony, contenting himself with an argument in which he pleaded for leniency because Fortune had admitted his guilt, describing the holdup as "a darn fool stunt."

The prosecutor told the jury it had only to decide what punishment should be imposed, urging that Fortune be sentenced to hang. The Court's instructions gave the choice of a death sentence, life imprisonment or acquittal.

When the State sent its witnesses to the stand yesterday, including three eye-witnesses to the pistol fight in which both Fortune and Stange were shot, Claiborne clearly stated that his client was the robber and conceded that the pistol offered in evidence was Fortune's property.

Clarence E. Davenport and Grover Houston, salesmen for the Orthwein company, gave almost identical testimony against Fortune, identifying him as the robber. They were in the showroom when a well-dressed young man entered with a revolver and ordered them into the shop where Stange was chatting with a friend, Richard Meyer, a carpenter.

"Fortune ordered us to stand against a wall," Davenport testified, "and we all obeyed except Stange. He reached for his revolver and began shooting at Fortune, who fired back.

"There were nine or ten shots. Then I saw Fortune start for the door and fall on the floor. He cried: 'Don't shoot any more—I'm shot through the heart.'

"I ran to the telephone and called the police. When I got back, Stange was kneeling over the robber hitting him on the head with an iron pipe. He kept hitting him until he collapsed."

Anyone with the lives of so many persons on their hands should have called for help long before. I never thought for a moment that there hadn't been a distress signal."

Puppe's voice broke.

"When I saw there was no hope any more," he resumed, "I took my wife and baby to the smoking room and later to the deck. This was at 9 a. m. We waited on deck looking for the steamers we were absolutely sure must have been called to our help.

"Other passengers were asking if an SOS had been sent, but I was absolutely sure it must have been."

Crew Clumsy With Lifeboats.

"Suddenly, though we heard no orders and though no officers were insight, the crew began to take down the lifeboats. You could see that none of them had ever even tried to lower a lifeboat before.

"There was an absolute lack of knowledge of seamanship. They ran from one boat to another, taking things from one and putting them into another. I didn't realize what this meant, but later I discovered."

After telling how he had helped his wife and baby into a boat with other women and children, Puppe told how one of the life boats had broken and plunged its occupants into the sea. He got into another himself, he said, and rowed away, not knowing of the fate of his wife and child.

Puppe said he found the flares in his boat were wet, that there was scant food and that the water casks contained salt water.

Say Crew Cared for Itself.

"But at night we saw there were flares in some of the other boats," he continued, "and then I realized what it meant when I had

Clarence E. Davenport and Grover Houston, salesmen for the Orthwein company, gave almost identical testimony against Fortune, identifying him as the robber. They were in the showroom when a well-dressed young man entered with a revolver and ordered them into the shop where Stange was chatting with a friend, Richard Meyer, a carpenter.

"Fortune ordered us to stand against a wall," Davenport testified, "and, we all obeyed except Stange. He reached for his revolver and began shooting at Fortune, who fired back.

"There were nine or ten shots. Then I saw Fortune start for the door and fall on the floor. He cried: 'Don't shoot any more—I'm shot through the heart.'

"I ran to the telephone and called the police. When I got back, Stange was kneeling over the robber hitting him on the head with an iron pipe. He kept hitting him until he collapsed."

MRS. C. F. SLAUGHTER.

Mrs. Cline Slaughter, Formerly of Chicago, Held Above Water an Hour by Ship Officer Before Being Saved.

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, Nov. 15.—An auburn-haired woman who last saw her husband floundering in the sea as the steamship Vestris sank found him waiting at the pier when she landed today with 56 other survivors from the French tanker Myriam. She was the only woman survivor aboard.

Mrs. Cline Slaughter had learned of her husband's rescue by wireless. He recognized her despite her borrowed seaman's clothing, rushed over and embraced her. The husband landed yesterday from the American shipper.

Mrs. Slaughter, who is 21 years old, said she was the last woman to leave the sinking Vestris. When she left the liner she was wearing a new gown which she said had been transformed into a French creation by shrinkage. The borrowed clothing included a pair of trousers and a white woolen undershirt given to her by Capt. Fernan Foruy of the Myriam, and a hat loaned by another person on board the ship.

Gave Up Place in Lifeboat.

Her husband gave up his place in the lifeboat assigned to them to made room for two other women, Mrs. Slaughter said, and the boat was lowered with difficulty only after some tangled lines were cut away from the davits. It was launched just before the Vestris went down.

Mrs. Slaughter said she fell out of the boat and was pulled under the water by the suction as the liner sank.

"It seemed as though I was under a long time," she said, "and when I finally bobbed up I saw my husband paddling a few yards away. Both of us were nearly exhausted."

Near them was another lifeboat, in which was Second Officer Leslie Watson, of the Vestris. When he saw them she said he jumped into the sea and swam towards her, but the lifeboat kept pulling away.

Hailed Another Lifeboat.

She said it was probably 20 minutes before Watson reached her side, and that he supported her in the water for perhaps an hour, when he hailed a passing lifeboat and helped her into it.

As she lay exhausted in the bottom of the boat, Mrs. Slaughter said, she could hear whistling and cries of despair from the water, some of them apparently from women, but the boat did not stop to pick up any others. As they rowed along she said, she heard members of the boat crew say they were passing floating bodies.

Mr. and Mrs. Slaughter said that, although their last address was Chicago, they had no permanent address in the United States. They were en route to Buenos Aires, where her husband had a position with the International Harvester Co.

U. S. INQUIRY IN LOSS OF THE VESTRIS BEGUN IN NEW YORK

Anyone with the lives of so many persons on their hands should have called for help long before. I never thought for a moment that there hadn't been a distress signal."

Puppe's voice broke.

"When I saw there was no hope any more," he resumed, "I took my wife and baby to the smoking room and later to the deck. This was at 9 a. m. We waited on deck looking for the steamers were were absolutely sure must have been called to our help.

"Other passengers were asking if an SOS had been sent, but I was absolutely sure it must have been."

Crew Clumsy With Lifeboats.

"Suddenly, though we heard no orders and though no officers were insight, the crew began to take down the lifeboats. You could see that none of them had ever even tried to lower a lifeboat before.

"There was an absolute lack of knowledge of seamanship. They ran from one boat to another, taking things from one and putting them into another. I didn't realize what this meant, but later I discovered."

After telling how he had helped his wife and baby into a boat with other women and children, Puppe told how one of the life boats had broken and plunged its occupants into the sea. He got into another himself, he said, and rowed away, not knowing of the fate of his wife and child.

Say Crew Cared for Itself.

"But at night we saw there were flares in some of the other boats," he continued, "and then I realized what it meant when I had seen these men taking things from one boat and putting them into others. They were fixing a few with proper equipment, planning to ride in them themselves and they winked to their friends to join them."

Puppe described the long vigil of Monday night and how he was picked up early Tuesday morning. He had not then learned that his wife and baby had lost their lives.

Puppe asserted that some of the lifeboats never got away at all, due to the lack of facilities for lowering them.

"I saw two boats," he said, "still hanging on the ship when she went over."

"What side were they on?" asked Federal Attorney Charles H. Tuttle. "The side that was out of the water," replied Puppe. "They were resting on the ship's hull. I could not identify them but I could see people in them."

Puppe, describing weather conditions preceding the sinking, said the sea on Sunday was not as heavy as he had seen it on other trips.

Tells of Night in Boat.

Puppe's narrative then turned to the night he had spent in the lifeboat.

"We bailed all night without stopping," he related. "We bailed at the rate of about 10 gallons a minute, using two buckets and a ladle. Several passengers jumped out of our boat and made for others because they thought ours would sink."

"There was not one slop over the side ever," said Puppe when asked whether the water came over the top or through the seams. The witness certified that the list of the Vestris Sunday morning was 10 degrees or less. During the afternoon it was 18 to 20 degrees, he estimated, and Monday morning about 30 degrees.

"Monday morning between 6 and 7 o'clock," he said, "I asked a steward why the engines had stopped. That steward had the nerve to tell me that it was because we were using all our power for pumping."

"Did any of the officers or members of the crew at any time give you an explanation of the cause of the list other than that the wind was pressing you over?" "No. All the explanation I got was what the steward said—that the wind was pressing us over on one side."

"Did you ever see the Captain or any of the officers give any command to any one of the crew which was not executed?" asked Tuttle. "No .I never once saw any officer give any command. The only thing I did see was the first steward order some of the stewards to go after food for us. They refused flatly. One of them said: 'I wouldn't go back there for a thousand dollars.'"

Boats Without Officers.

"Were any officers in charge of the lifeboats?" "No, absolutely not. We shouted up to them to send oficers down, that there was nobody to command our boat. We shouted we wanted somebody competent to take command but no officer came."

Officer Prevented His Jump.

The second witness was John Santona, a third-class passenger. His testimony dealt to a large extent with the two boatloads of women and children. He said a friend in one of these boats called to him where he was standing on the deck and that he started to jump into the craft as it swung on the davit, but an officer stopped him.

"If I had not been stopped I would now be dead," he added.

Santona said that afterward he stood on the deck and jumped just before the ship sank, carrying with it two boatloads of women and children. He asserted that these boats swung in the davits for some time and no one was even attemting to lower them.

At 2 o'clock Monday morning, he said, he heard a "big crashing sound" which might have been caused by the shifting of cargo. He added that the lifeboat into which he climbed after jumping had leaks in the seams, and that it was necessary to bail out water all night. It contained 25 persons, only three of whom were passengers, he continued.

So far as he knew, he said, no officers had taken charge of the lowering of the lifeboats, the crew having done the best it could undirected and in evident ignorance of the task.

Two of Three Lanterns Empty.

Severe criticism of the "lack of any intelligent plan" in getting away the Vestris' life boats and putting the passengers into them was expressed by Wallace Sinclair, another witness. Apparently there were no officers to superintend the loading of the boats, he said. Two of the three lanterns on the boat, he said, were new and empty, the third was old, but held a little oil. But the lantern itself, however, was in such condition that it spilled the oil. The boat leaked through its seams, Sinclair declared, and patches of the paint, as big as a man's hand, had peeled off its sides.

CUT ROPES; FLUNG WOMEN INTO SEA

NEW YORK, Nov. 15.—A passenger who thought to get a lifeboat hanging from the side of the Vestris into the water more quickly cut the bow davit ropes. The boat dropped nose first and flung 30 or more persons, most of them women, into a debris-filled sea.

William Cadogan, a Negro of New York City, one of the eight passengers arriving on the French tanker Myriam and a former employe of the Lamport & Holt Line, said:

"I was in one of the first three lifeboats to be swung over the side of the Vestris. There were about 30 people in the boat. There were 14 boats to take 328 people and when we saw our boat was filled we called to Capt. Carey to lower us. He was standing on the deck. The Captain turned away. Meanwhile, as we hung suspended over the water the list of the ship was increasing so that it looked as if our boat would not clear the side.

"I whipped out a razor and cut the ropes from the davits that held the lifeboat at the bow. The ropes at the stern held and the boat dropped forward, spilling the people out. They fell into the sea.

"Later I got into another lifeboat and we were saved by the Myriam after drifting around in the water for several hours."

Even as he told his story, Cadogan did not appear to realize that the incident he described was part of the confusion which other survivors have laid to an inexpert crew.

"By cutting the ropes," Cadogan said, "I thought I would lower the boat into the water before it struck the side of the ship and was smashed."

200-POUND METEORITE FALLS

Drops on Rhine Bank With Loud Report.

GODESBERG, Germany, Nov. 15.—A meteorite weighing about 200 pounds fell on the bank of the Rhine near here last night. The fall was accompanied by a loud report. The metallic mass made only a slight impression on the rocks which it struck.

Coolidge Buys Hunting License.

RICHMOND, Va., Nov. 15.—President Coolidge paid $15.50 for the right to hunt in Virginia. The State government has issued a nonresident hunting license to the chief executive, who is to visit the Blue Ridge Mountains over Thanksgiving day.

TWO ACQUITTED AFTER ALLEGING POLICE BRUTALITY

Jury Frees Bernhardt Westerman Whom Girl, 13, Had Accused of Criminal Assault.

Charges of police brutality were made in two courts yesterday, one in the Circuit Court trial of Bernhardt Westerman, charged with a criminal attack on a girl, the other in the police court case of James Smith, charged with traffic violations. Both defendants escaped punishment by the courts.

Westerman, who is 57 years old and resides at 3515 Easton avenue, testified that, after his arrest last March, on complaint of a 13-year-old girl, he was taken in charge by Sergt. William McCullough and Patrolmen John Madsen and John Kehoe of the Dayton Street District. He said the policemen gave him the third degree and Madsen particularly gave him a severe beating, punching him until he signed a confession of guilt.

Corroborating testimony was offered by Dr. T. C. Wimber, physician at the city jail, who said that, when Westerman was turned over to the jailer by police, his eyes were blackened and a tooth had been knocked out.

The purported confession was ruled out by Circuit Judge Hartmann as obtained by duress. The only evidence remaining against Westerman was the statement of the prosecuting witness that he had attacked her. No testimony by the policemen involved was offered. The jury acquitted the defendant. Westerman is facing another similar charge on which the State announced he would be tried.

Sees "Some Roughness."

Declaring he believed there had been "some roughness" on the part of police, Police Judge Beck dismissed seven of eight charges against James Smith, 20-year-old service car driver, growing out of his arrest at Delmar boulevard and Taylor avenue, July 16.

Smith was charged by Patrolman Wittrock of the Newstead District with driving while intoxicated, speeding, careless driving, passing an automatic stop signal, passing a boulevard stop, blowing his siren and making unnecessary noise, disturbing the peace and resisting arrest.

Witnesses testified that Smith did not appear to be drunk, but that Patrolman Wittrock beat him and would not let him rise from the sidewalk after knocking him down. Mrs. Della O. Smith, mother of the defendant and owner of a beauty shop at 507 North Taylor, declared Wittrock attempted to strike her son repeatedly as she held his head in her arms.

26 Arrests; Three Convictions.

She said her son had been made a victim of police persecution, resulting in 26 arrests for investigation, with convictions on only three traffic charges.

Patrolman Wittrock testified Smith was drunk and resisted arrest, and he "had to strike him," but he denied being brutal.

"I am inclined to think Smith was drunk," Judge Beck remarked, "but as the evidence is weak and there appears to be some roughness on the part of police, I am going to dismiss all but one of the charges." He fined Smith $5 for careless driving and stayed the fine on good behavior.

Meteor Shower Not Up to Expectations

Leonid Belt Looses a Few Shooting Stars—At Its Best After 5 A. M. — Another Exhibition Due Tonight.

Leo, the big fireworks lion of the skies, gave a disappointing performance last night. He was scheduled to put on a star shower, between 1 a. m. and 6 a. m. today that would outdo Pain's "Pompeii." He didn't make good.

The temperamental Leo loosed a few tame meteors between 1 and 2 a. m. and a few more in the following hour, but by that time the astronomers in the city had shrugged their shoulders and gone to bed.

At 5:15 a. m., when the six-star constellation of meteoric reputation stood almost at the zenith, a sort of belated shower took place which was easily observable. A cracking good meteor, with a smoking tail, blazed suddenly in the Eastern sky. When it flashed out, it left a wake of vapor. Within 30 seconds, another meteor, like a sudden sky rocket, flashed momentarily eastward. A minute later, there was a third. A fourth followed almost instantly.

Best Display After 5 A. M.

It began to look like a pretty good show, then Leo again slowed up. A full five minutes passed before he tossed out a puny meteor. There were more after that, but nothing to equal that fast quartet. Between 5:15 and 5:55 a. m., 17 meteors in all were noted. Fifteen an hour is considered "good." By this time, Mercury stood in the Eastern sky and the dawn was gathering.

The Leonid meteors are observable every November at this time. The Harvard observatory told astronomers to be on the watch for Leonids up to Nov. 17. On certain nights the showers are brilliant and many. On other nights, they are few. Every 33 or 34 years they achieve maximum brilliancy. The next unusually brilliant showers are set for 1931 or 1932.

The meteors are moving in an orbit about the sun and this orbit traverses the earth's orbit each November. The meteors are from 50 to 75 miles away from the earth's surface when seen. They cannot be seen until they penetrate the air envelope, in which the friction burns them up. The air envelope is from 75 to 90 miles high. The difference in size between the average meteor and one of the fixed stars of the heaven may be judged by the following comparison—a meteor, looming larger than a star, is seen at a distance of 50 to 75 miles—a fixed star, seeming smaller than a meteor, is seen at 200,000 times the distance of the sun from the earth, which is 93,000,000 miles.

A few of the meteors reach the earth's surface. They are usually mixtures of iron, cobalt and nickel.

"Dull and Disappointing."

Dr. Jessica Young, instructor in astronomy at Washington University, said that last night's Leonid performance was "dull and disappointing."

"Maybe it will be better tonight, or, rather, early tomorrow morning," Dr. Young said. "You really can't tell in advance. I watched the sky from 2 a. m. to 3 a. m. this morning, and there were so few meteors I gave up."

The constellation Leo, for the benefit of persons who may wish to look for meteors tomorrow morning, will be found midway between the zenith and the eastern horizon, east of the Big Dipper. There is one star for the end of the lion's tail, another for the beginning of the tail, one star for his forefeet, one for his hindfeet, one for his nose, and one for the tip of his ear—six stars in all. The best time to see the shower is usually between 4 and 6 a. m. At that time the "lion" is almost directly overhead. It should be remembered that although the showers come from the general direction of Leo, the meteors travel in all directions.

WOMAN TESTIFIES DR. G. W. TREMAIN WON AFFECTIONS

Mrs. Wiles or misconducted himself in any way. He asserted Wiles and his wife had devised a trap for him in their home and had demanded $30,000.

Dr. Tremain produced several patients who testified he had been treating them for years and always had comported himself in keeping with his profession, and neighbors of the Wiles family who said the "estranged" pair seemed to be on good terms, taking walks and working in the back yard together.

Dr. Tremain has been a practicing physician for 25 years.

DEAD FROM VESTRIS TAKEN TO NEW YORK

First of 22 Bodies So Far Recovered From Wreck Are Taken Ashore.

NEW YORK, Nov. 15.—The French tanker Myriam docked in Brooklyn early today with 57 survivors of the Vestris.

Aside from the eight passengers, the Myriam brought to port 49 members of the crew, six of them staff officers, three musicians, 17 from the commissary department and 23 firemen.

The bodies of 22 of the dead lost in the sinking of the Vestris were returned to relatives and friends today.

A body arrived at this city early yesterday on the rescue ship Berlin, while last night eight bodies were brought by the Coast Guard destroyers, Tucker and Acushnet. The Coast Guard Destroyer Shaw is on the way from the scene of the wreck for New York with 13 bodies.

Many of the dead had not been identified today.

Among the bodies aboard the Shaw are those of Maj. Yashio Inouye, Japanese Consul at Buenos Aires, whose wife was rescued by the Battleship Wyoming; Carl Franke, representative of a German firm, and his 22-year-old daughter, Ingeborg.

Of the four bodies brought by the Tucker only two were identified. Brass tags worn about the necks identified one as that of Jose Gonzales Rua of New Bedford, Mass., and the other as that of Ramon Garcia Pelal of New York. Rua, who had sailed with his wife and two-year-old son, had $7800 in his pockets when found. His wife was rescued by the Wyoming, but no trace of the son was found.

The other two bodies were those of a Negro woman and a white man, apparently a member of the crew.

Aboard the Acushnet were the bodies of Ralph P. Whitehead, of Woodstock, N. Y., and Tom Jones, Barman of the Vestris. The identitles of the other two was not known.

Gene Tunney

Retired Champion discusses training habits

GENE TUNNEY may have put off the gloves for good. But he's too wise a man to give up the priceless habits of physical training that stood him in such good stead in his profession. For years he has done this with Nujol.

Just before his last fight, Tunney said:

"I started taking Nujol internally seven years ago. The first month Nujol brought remarkable changes in my physical condition. My elimination became active and normal. My appetite increased and a desire for intensive training was created. Since that time I have taken Nujol about five nights a week. I have regulated myself to the amount necessary to keep my elimination normal. If I discover that I have taken an overdose I stop its use for a couple of days when I renew my daily practice of taking a swallow from the bottle before retiring. I have found during my seven years' experience with Nujol that it is not habit-forming, or in any way unpleasant or harmful."

Nujol is not a medicine. It contains absolutely no medicine or drugs. It is simply a pure substance—perfected by the Nujol Laboratories, 26 Broadway, New York. It not only prevents an excess of body poisons from forming (we all have them) but aids in their removal.

You want to be 100% fit, as much as the next man. Nujol will help you do it. Buy a bottle today. You'll find it at all drugstores, in sealed packages only.

"The 15-degree list of Sunday morning slowly increased and finally the fires under the starboard boiler were put out. We had difficulty now in firing the other boiler. The man who stoked had to be held up on the canted deck by two other men. A third had to open and shut the fire door. Finally we couldn't use shovels, but had to pass the coal to the fires in sacks. The water got shoulder high on the starboard side at last."

Hampden said there was then no chance to work on that fatal coal port, he said, and members o fthe stokers' gang who would talk supported him, that all hands felt the S O S should have been sent out earlier.

Steward Confirms Story.

Bedroom Steward T. R. Edwards confirmed the story of the water in the fire room and said he had been called down below to help bail water. He said that at 1 p. m. Monday the boats were ordered lowered half way to the water, but that nobody was directed at that time to enter them. As bedroom steward it would have been his duty to call the passengers from the cabins, but he had received no such order.

Those saved by the Myriam were eight passengers, six officers, three musicians, 17 stewards and 23 hands from the engineer's department. All were questioned by Lamport & Holt officers on the way up from Gravesend Bay, it was said, and they appeared to be guarded in their statements.

Ship Officer Injured.

Lester Walton, second officer of the Vestris, was taken off to Long Island College Hospital in an ambulance, with a fractured hip and possible internal injuries, suffered when the lifeboat he was in was hurled against the side of the ship.

A rescued passenger, Harry Fay, a pugilist, who had started down to Brazil to fight Luis Firpo, gave a graphic account of how the women and children had been, in accordance with the law of the sea, ordered into the first lifeboats. But Fay said the order has been overdone and the women's boats were not properly manned.

All at once, he said, somebody, in the excitement and confusion, shouted out: "Every man for himself," and that those who were handling the boat falls let them run, with dire results, swamping the boats.

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, Nov. 15.—David Cook, vice president of Sanderson & Sons, Inc., agents for the owners, the Lamport & Holt line, issued the following statement:

"At 3:45 p. m. last Saturday the Vestris left the pier at Hoboken bound for South America via the Barbados. It carried a full cargo which had been loaded by T. Hogan & Son, stevedores of the highest repute, who have stowed all our cargoes for years.

"Early Sunday morning the ship encountered a heavy northwest wind which rapidly rose to a gale. The ship continued on its course, but the storm was so severe that it was forced to heave to. Seas broke over the forward deck. Ventilators were smashed and carried away. Windows on the main deck were broken. One of the life boats was stove in and ports started. The pumps were worked continuously and the water made no substantial gain till 1 a. m. Monday.

"The violent pitching of the vessel caused automobiles and other cargo in No. 1 compartment above the waterline on the sheltered deck to break through the bulkhead separating that compartment from the forecastle, and fetching up on the starboard side, causing a list to starboard. The officers say that never in their whole experience had they seen such gigantic seas.

"In the course of the morning, it became evident that the ship would have to be abandoned, and preparations to this end were begun. The ship carried 14 life boats with a total capacity of 700. The life boat gear was of the most modern type and made it possible to launch the boats readily. All passengers were embarked first, the crew followed.

"Capt. Carey did not himself enter a boat and was last seen jumping into the water from the rail alone. Up to this moment we have learned of the death of 14 persons, besides the missing. We hope the missing will be heard from as other vessels arrive. The Merritt-Chapman and Scott Cos.' boats Relief and Resolute, which we sent out at noon Monday, have been instructed to stand by and cruise about in search of any survivors or to rescue the bodies of those who perished.

"I take this opportunity to express the deep appreciation which the directors of the Lamport & Holt Line feel for the generous and effective service of the vessels which went to the aid of the Vestris and the rescue of her passengers and crew."

Cook denied that the ship had departed "limping" from the harbor and that a distress signal had been received four hours after she left port only to be canceled later.

SHOOTS WIFE, KILLS DAUGHTER

Man Then Places Four Bombs and Makes Escape.

By the Associated Press.

SAN JOSE, Cal., Nov. 15.—After he had shot his wife and daughter, the latter fatally, at their home here yesterday, Stephen Sparacino, 45 years old, placed four dynamite bombs at different places in the neighborhood and escaped. One of the bombs blew out the front of a residence.

Mrs. Mary Sparacino told police she came here from Martinez to avoid her husband, whom she feared. She said she was wakened and found him pointing a shotgun at her. She ran with her young daughter into a closet. Sparacino fired two charges of buckshot through the closet door, wounding his wife in the arm and his daughter in the body. The girl was taken to a hospital where she died.

17 IN LIFEBOAT DROWN IN SIGHT OF THEIR FAMILIES

Craft Capsizes Off Rye, England Station on Return From Trying to Assist Ship in Distress.

By the Associated Press.

LONDON, Nov. 15.—Seventeen men, the entire crew of a lifeboat sent out by the Rye (Sussex) station, drowned early today when the boat turned over in tempestuous seas at Jury's Gap, while attempting to assist a small steamer in distress, off Dungeness.

The tragedy took place within the sight of relatives when the lifeboat was returning to the harbor after the crew of the wrecked steamer, the Alice de Riga, had been rescued by the German steamship Smyrna.

The press association quotes an eye-witness as saying:

"It was at 7:30 o'clock this morning that a group of people, including many women who had been anxiously waiting, saw the lifeboat returning to the harbor. The seas were mountainous and they were coming in the teeth of a southwesterly gale. Every fresh wave threatened to overturn the boat and many of the waiting relatives began to pray aloud in terror.

"When the lifeboat was within a half mile of the harbor, the end of the crew's struggle against odds came. A gigantic wave overwhelmed and capsized the little craft and the crew was drowned within sight of the screaming and sobbing men and women waiting at the harbor side. They could see the men struggling in the angry waves and yet were powerless to do anything. It was some hours later before bodies began to float ashore at Jury's Gap, a desolate spot on the sands several miles from Rye."

The lifeboat went out at 5 a. m. in spite of heavy seas in response to a call for help from the Alice.

The crowds on the stand, including many grief-stricken mothers, wives and sisters of the crew, rushed along the beach when they saw in what direction the tide was running, and a tragic scene was enacted as the great breakers brought in the bodies of the gallant lifeboat men who had gone out in the face of death to succor others.

Relatives identified the bodies as they were washed ashore with each big wave. Finally the lifeboat itself was washed in and two more bodies were found underneath it.

There was hardly a person in the little village of Rye who had not lost either husband, father or a relative.

Sound of Engine Whistle Filmed.

The first sound pictures ever made of a locomotive whistle were filmed in St. Louis recently. A Frisco passenger locomotive equipped with both steam whistle and the four-note air signal was used on the run from Union Station to Lindenwood.

YOU don't buy a new talking-machine or a new radio every week. While you're about it, you may as well get the most for your money—the most in entertainment and the most in quality and reputation. The questions to ask yourself are:

1. Who made the talking-machine and who is back of it?
2. Who made the radio and who is back of it?

The very words "Victrola" and "Radiola" tell you that these instruments are made by long-established, responsible concerns; manufacturers with every facility for furnishing the best; manufacturers who keep step with the newest and best in the science of sound-reproduction.

Happily, it costs no more to get the genuine. Just keep this in mind when tempted by so-called bargains; by claims that often go beyond the bounds of common sense. The instruments illustrated herewith are but a few in the great Victor line. See them—first.

CHAPLIN SUED FOR $100,000

Film Comedian Accused of Stealing Scenario for "The Circus."

LOS ANGELES, Cal., Nov. 15.—Charles Chaplin, film comedian, was made defendant in a $100,000 plagiarism suit here yesterday. Antoinette Kopeksl accused the comedian of having taken for his use a scenario bearing the alternate titles of "The Circus" and "Charley of the Circus."

6 SOLDIERS KILLED WHEN ARMY PLANE FALLS 4000 FEET

Giant Transport Machine at Brooks Field, Tex., Breaks Up in Air—Men Trapped in Cockpit.

By the Associated Press.

SAN ANTONIO, Tex., Nov. 15.—Trapped in the cockpit of an army transport plane when it broke up 4000 feet in the air, six privates of the Army Air School at Brooks Field here were hurled to their death yesterday as the ship crashed into a cotton patch, 10 miles from the field.

Two occupants of the plane, which lost a wing and tail piece, were thrown clear and used their parachutes to descend safely. The victims, however, fell into the forward part of the cockpit as the ship nose-dived down, and were unable to crawl back to a small rear door through which they might have jumped to safety with the parachutes all wore.

List of Dead.

The dead are:

Arthur W. Hardesty, 24 years old, son of Mrs. J. W. Howard, Lebanon Junction, Ky.

Irvin Self, 23, son of Mrs. Lula Self, Victor, Tex.

Lieut. Harvey T. Dyer, pilot, and Staff Sergeant Frank J. Siebenaler, survived the accident. Dyer was unhurt, while Siebenaler sustained a fractured rib.

Cause of the plane's breakup remained undetermined today as an army investigation board, summoned yesterday by Maj. S. W. Fitzgerald, Brooks Field commandant, continued its inquiry.

Witnesses Describe Breakup.

Witnesses of the breakup said the right wing of the huge ship suddenly tore loose, carrying the tail piece with it. The ship faltered momentarily, dropped into a tailspin and fell like a stone.

Had the transport been equipped with a false bottom as are many transports, officers said the victims might have dropped out and descended with their parachutes.

The plane had been up several times during the day on the regular flying schedule to give enlisted personnel of the field a chance to get in time in the air. The dead privates volunteered to make the fatal flight when non-commissioned officers scheduled to go up obtained permission to remain on the ground so as to attend a service football game.

PUBLIC HEARING HELD ON MERAMEC ST. CAR LOOP

Residents Protest Against Proposal Which Utilities Committee Takes Under Advisement.

Following a public hearing at which representatives of various South Side organizations expressed opposition to the measure, the Aldermanic Public Utilities Committee today took under advisement a bill to authorize the Public Service Co. to construct a loop at Meramec street and Virginia avenue.

Grand boulevard cars now use a "Y" at the corner to reverse direction, backing from Virginia avenue into the tracks on Meramec. Under the loop plan they would turn south in Louisiana avenue, east on a private right of way and north on Virginia to Meramec street. South Side residents contend the loop would depreciate property values and declare the company should extend the line to Broadway and Meramec street and build a loop there. An ordinance to that end, however, failed of passage two years ago.

BEATEN BY HUSBAND IN HOTEL

Mrs. Myrtle Barney Says She Caught Him With Other Woman.

When Mrs. Myrtle Barney, 5418 Bartmer avenue, walked in on her husband, George, 36 years old, and another woman in a West End rooming house last night, he knocked her down and fled with the woman, she told police.

Mrs. Barney said she has been forced to work to support herself and 11-year-old son since her husband deserted her six months ago. She learned this week he had returned to the city and traced him to the rooming house. Police are seeking Barney on a nonsupport charge.

CONVICT, ESCAPING, KILLED

Texas Prisoner Ignores Command of Guard to Stop.

HUNTSVILLE, Tex., Nov. 15.—W. C. Folsom, a prisoner at the State penitentiary was shot to death yesterday when he attempted to escape from guards at the Goree State prison farm, south of Huntsville.

Ignoring the command of a guard who ordered him to halt Folsom cursed the officer and told him "I don't have to stop. Go ahead and shoot." The guard fired twice, both bullets entering Folsom's body.

"Yeast regulates the intestines"

—DR. KURT HENIUS

the physician who treated German Royalty

"In the case of constipation, yeast causes peristaltic motion and easy elimination. Because of the ability of yeast to eliminate harmful bacteria in the intestines, it is given with excellent results in cases of intestinal catarrh. Also in furunculosis (boils), which are frequently connected with irregular intestinal habits, yeast has proved one of the most dependable remedies."

Dr Kurt Henius

DR. KURT HENIUS

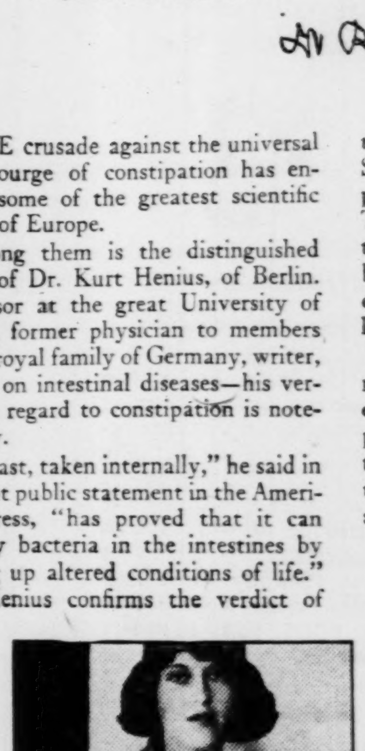
Professor, University of Berlin; Lecturer, Intestinal Clinic, University II Charité; Former physician to German Crown Prince and Medical Adviser of the Russian Embassy in Berlin; Personal physician to one of Germany's great industrial magnates.

THE crusade against the universal scourge of constipation has enlisted some of the greatest scientific minds of Europe.

Among them is the distinguished figure of Dr. Kurt Henius, of Berlin. Professor at the great University of Berlin, former physician to members of the royal family of Germany, writer, expert on intestinal diseases—his verdict in regard to constipation is noteworthy.

"Yeast, taken internally," he said in a recent public statement in the American press, "has proved that it can destroy bacteria in the intestines by setting up altered conditions of life." Dr. Henius confirms the verdict of thousands of physicians in the United States who prescribe yeast for constipation and its many accompanying ills. They know that headaches, indigestion, depression, frequent colds, embarrassing skin disorders—are often due to clogged intestines and are needless handicaps to health.

Fleischmann's Yeast is fresh yeast—not dried or killed. It contains millions of living, active yeast plants. As these pass daily through your intestinal tract they combat harmful poisons and purify the whole system. For real, clear-skinned, clear-eyed health eat 3 cakes of Fleischmann's Yeast daily; one before or between meals, plain or in water (hot or cold). To get full benefit you must eat it regularly and over a sufficient period of time. Start now. The results will delight you. Buy two or three days' supply at a time. It will keep in a cool, dry place. At all grocers and many leading cafeterias, lunch counters and soda fountains.



Where 90% of ailments start ...

This is the broad highway for health or illness. From throat to colon is one continuous tube. Poisons forming in a clogged colon quickly spread throughout the system. Here is where yeast works, keeping this entire tract clean, active and healthy. For clear eyes and skin, for the youth that only health can bring, eat Fleischmann's Yeast three times daily.

MEEKER IS HELD FOR GRAND JURY IN SON'S SLAYING

Father Charged With Murdering Boy to Collect Insurance Does Not Testify at Hearing.

Michael L. Meeker, charged with the murder of his 14-year-old son to collect $4500 life insurance, was held for the grand jury without bond at a preliminary hearing before Justice of the Peace Werremeyer at Clayton today, at which only meager circumstantial evidence was introduced.

The State withheld the offidavits in which Meeker's wife and former housekeeper, Mrs. Frances E. Meeker, accused him of the murder. Outstanding among the new evidence was a statement that Meeker took out $3000 insurance on the boy's life with the John Hancock Life Insurance Co. on June 4, 1927, and that he paid the first premium, $11.82, on July 2, two days before the boy was shot.

The 55-year-old railroad mechanic, farmer and insurance salesman, who was brought from Dryden, N. Y., last week, did not take the stand to repeat his story of a wanton murder by highwaymen, his attorney stating that his defense had been recited by State's witnesses. Dr. W. P. Button, who attended the boy when he died, testified that the boy told him he had been shot by a robber, and a former employer of Meeker testified that he knew nothing against Meeker's character.

No Inconsistencies in Story.

For the State, Deputy Sheriff Harvey Litzinger, who brought Meeker to Clayton, related the story of the holdup as told by Meeker. Litzinger testified that he and Chief Deputy Sheriff Mark Dodd took Meeker in an automobile, at night, to Clayton and Price roads and made him re-enact the holdup and shooting as he had told it. There were no inconsistencies in the story.

Mrs. Margaret Dorsey, 70 years old, testified she was at the Meeker home, 4309 Hunt avenue, on the evening of July 4, 1927, visiting the housekeeper, Mrs. Frances Williams, who has since become Meeker's wife. Meeker burst into the kitchen shortly before midnight, she said, and exclaimed, "Oh, Mrs. Williams, Michael is shot!"

A board from a packing case, obtained to show that Meeker shipped his household furniture to New York under an assumed name, after the boy's death on July 19, was brought to court by the prosecutor but was not introduced in evidence.

Mrs. Meeker, who married Meeker in September, 1927, two months after the boy was shot, charged in an affidavit that her husband told her he took his son to Clayton and Price roads, shot him in the shoulder and mouth and beat him over the head with a pistol. She declared the boy told her the same story before he died at their home.

Meeker's Story of Holdup.

A Post-Dispatch reporter who visited the Clayton jail yesterday found Meeker eager to talk, although time was limited by the authorities. Dressed in a blue denim shirt, blue jeans and heavy work shoes, he directed clear, unwavering eyes at his questioner when he repeated his account ofthe holdup.

He responded promptly to questions of detail, adhering in the description of the robbers and their automobile to the account he gave more than a year ago when the boy was shot. At the time, it was recalled that a band of robbers, similarly described, had perpetrated other robberies in St. Louis County which had been reported in the press.

"I didn't do it; they can't prove it," was his reply when asked how he intended to defend himself.

"After my boy was shot I collected the insurance and decided to leave this part of the country because I had had so much bad luck," Meeker related. "My wife was my housekeeper then and we decided to take my three children and her boy to New York and buy a farm. We were married there in September and I deeded half my property to her.

"We got along fine and I loved her because she took care of my children. But we quarreled over her boy and we had a pretty bad fuss toward the last when he wanted to take my Ford out at night. I refused because he had taken it out before without my consent and burned out the bearings. He got sore and went to sleep with some neighbors and my wife sulked.

"I figured they would forget all about it in the morning but the next day, while I was digging potatoes, a Deputy Sheriff came up and told me I was under arrest. The only reason I can see for her doing that was that she wanted my property. She had half of it and I guess she wanted the other half, too."

ANGERED AT WIFE'S SMOKING, MAN SHOOTS HER, KILLS SELF

LOS ANGELES, Cal., Nov. 15.—Angered at the sight of his wife smoking a cigarette, Robert Johnson last night shot and wounded her and a man who attempted to pacify him, then killed himself. The shooting occurred in the home of Mrs. Johnson's parents.

Police said the Johnsons had just reached a reconciliation after a week's separation. Mrs. Johnson was wounded in the jaw, while Bernard May, 45 years old, a boarder at the house who interceded, was shot in the chest.

A glossy Mandarin Red, Jade Green or Mahogany are excellent colors for the dining table and chairs. They have a richness in keeping with delicious dinners, candle light and good company. For the breakfast nook, a cheerful Tulip Yellow or Apple Green help give the day a pleasant beginning.

COLOR. with a GLOSSY FINISH is the latest vogue for dining room sets

COLOR, the modern note! Gloss, the latest finish, the up-to-the-minute vogue! To brighten your dining-room or any other room of your house, Sapolin Speed Enamel offers a choice of nineteen beautiful colors—easy to apply.

This wonderful new enamel dries hard and smooth as glass in 4 hours, free from brushmarks, specks or grit. It is so easy to apply that anyone can get perfect results. You need not hurry in applying it. It sets slowly enough so that you can go back and smooth over faulty places.

Sapolin Speed Enamel will not crack or crinkle, and gives a hard-wearing, long-lasting surface that will never stick to the clothes. So completely does it cover painted or unpainted surfaces that one coat does the work of two coats of ordinary finishes. It is smooth and easy-flowing, has a pleasant odor while using, is chip-proof and knock-proof.

Sapolin Speed Enamel comes in all standard sizes. Its covering capacity makes it very economical. Now on sale at most leading stores where paints are sold.

There are over 10 million satisfied users of Sapolin Products.

Turks Close French Convent School

CONSTANTINOPLE, Nov. 15.—Advices from Smyrna today said the Turkish Government was closing a French convent school there on the suspicion that three teachers were conducting religious propaganda. The American school at Broussa was closed last year by reason of similar accusations.

FOREIGN EXPORTS OF $39,906,553 FROM CITY IN '27

Ten St. Louis Firms Send More Than $1,000,000 Worth of Goods Outside U. S. Each Year.

Exports of all St. Louis' industrial district products to all foreign countries in 1927 reached a total of $39,906,553. The figures, shown in a survey conducted by the Chamber of Commerce Foreign Trade Bureau, were announced yesterday in a meeting of the Foreign Trade Bureau at Hotel Statler.

The city's largest exports, in their order, are: Wheat and corn, wheat flour, raw furs, petroleum and its products, packing house products, electrical supplies, drugs, chemicals and patent medicines, shoes, horses and mules, dry goods and agricultural implements.

A total list of 291 items is exported from the St. Louis industrial district, this list not including the many classifications under such general heads as "dry goods" and "hardware." Among the exports not previously mentioned are automobiles and accessories, airplanes, beverages, glassware, chinaware, leather goods, rubber goods, furniture, clay products, clothing, dyes, dynamite, hardware, livestock, lumber, machinery, notions, stationery, soap, sporting goods, steel products, metal goods and woodenware.

To Seek More Export Business

The figures shown in the export survey, it was announced, will be used as the basis for an enlarged program of activity, to increase the city's export business.

It was shown that 10 St. Louis firms are doing an annual volume of export business of more than $1,000,000; the exports of 11 others total more than $500,000; 18 more report their exports exceed $250,000; 30 more said their exports amounted to more than $100,000; 29 more firms reported a total of more than $50,000 and 32 more declared their volume of exports was more than $25,000 annually.

Ninety-five firms reported an increase in exports over the previous year, the increase averaging 56 per cent, while 40 firms reported a decrease averaging 38 per cent. The decrease was reported by firms doing business principally in Cuba and Mexico.

118 Export to Latin America.

As shown by the survey, 118 firms export to Central and South America, 111 to Europe, 102 to Mexico, 89 to Canada, 81 to Cuba, 58 to the Far East, 40 to Australasia, 29 to Africa and 38 to other countries. The countries named as providing good markets for St. Louis business are Canada, Mexico, Cuba, Egypt, Scandinavian countries, all South America, Germany, Russia, China, Australia, Italy, England, Denmark, West Coast of Africa, all Central America, Scotland, East Indies, South Africa, France, British Commonwealths, Belgium, Holland, Spain, Hawaii, Bahamas, Japan, New Zealand, Finland, Latvia, Poland, Switzerland, Malay States, Oceania and Balkan countries.

President Weisenburger of the Chamber of Commerce told, at the meeting, of plans for a foreign trade bureau which shall be one of the major activities of the chamber. A program of service for both exporters and importers was outlined. Close relationship will be maintained, he said, with the local branch of the Federal Bureau of Foreign and Dometic Commerce. Thomas Gaukel, district manager of the Department of Commerce, also spoke.

RESTAURANT OPERATOR KILLS PATRON, THEN CALLS POLICE

Negro Says Victim Objected to Quality of Coffee and Threatened Him With Ax.

John Martin, 38 years old, a Negro, 827 Carr street, objected to the quality of the coffee served him last night in a restaurant at 5 Locust street, conducted by John Spikes, Negro, and started to smash the furniture with an ax, Spikes told police.

When policemen, summoned by Spikes, reached the restaurant they found Martin's body stretched out on a pool table with the ax nearby. He had been shot four times in the body and Spikes turned over to police an automatic pistol, with which he said he killed Martin when the latter threatened him with an ax. Spikes is held pending an inquest.

THE SAFE ANTI-FREEZE

Permanent anti-freeze protection for your car

WHY do so many cars freeze-up in winter, even when anti-freeze is used? Because ordinary anti-freeze evaporates. Its protection fades away.

Glycerine doesn't evaporate. One filling lasts all winter. You don't have to keep adding more. You don't have to keep guessing about it. You know you're protected.

Radiator Glycerine has other advantages. It has no odor. It won't smell up your car. Furthermore, it won't hurt the car finish. It's as safe for the car as water.

Thousands of motorists use it. Amundsen took it to the North Pole. Give your car the benefit of its "safe" protection. Be sure the cooling system does not leak. Then put in Radiator Glycerine and enjoy your car this winter. Put it in now.

Steam Turbine Memorial.

By the Associated Press.

CHICAGO, Nov. 15.—In commemoration of the development of the first steam turbine station which revolutionized the electric power system 25 years ago, a tablet was unveiled yesterday at the Fisk street station of the Commonwealth Edison Co., home of the first steam turbine. Samuel Insull, who was responsible for the first steam turbine station, spoke at the unveiling. The first steam turbine itself was dismantled some time ago and removed to the plant of the General Electric Co. at Schenectady, N. Y., where it was reassembled and placed on the grounds as a monument.

NATURAL BRIDGE LINE WAITS ON WIDENING

Street Car Company Officer Says Service Cannot Be Extended Now.

S. W. Greenland, vice president and general manager of the St. Louis Public Service Co., said today that the extension of the Natural Bridge line, demanded by many residents of Pine Lawn, could not be made until the city is ready to proceed with the widening of Natural Bridge avenue. It is the western part of the Twelfth boulevard widening plan, and is to be made 100 feet in width.

"If the tracks were built before establishment of permanent grades," Greenland said, "the tracks would have to be torn up and completely relaid when the widened street is paved.

"The portion of the street from Kingshighway to Union on the south side, which is paved with concrete, is at a different grade from that of the older pavement on the north side. Until it becomes necessary to repave the north side of this street, the car track cannot be constructed along the center line of the widened street. If placed at the grade of the old pavement it would have to be reconstructed later, while if placed at the grade of the new pavement, it would be a foot or so below the old pavement.

"While there would be no difficulty from Union to Goodfellow, it is impossible to establish the permanent grade from Goodfellow to the city limits at the present time, since this portion of the street has not yet been widened. The city now is in the process of legally widening this to 100 feet and until this project has been through the various difficulties and has overcome the legal obstacles which usually attend such a move, no one can predict what grades will be established.

"From the city limits to Pine Lawn, the county contemplates widening the street to 100 feet. The car company owns a large portion of the frontage affected by this widening, and while it has agreed to co-operate with the county when the matter comes up, nothing can be done until the city's plans for the widened portion up to the city limits have been completed.

"For these reasons, it is impossible at the present time to construct this piece of track, no matter how desirable it might be from any point of view. In the meantime this company is doing what it can to supply service with busses."

Pine Lawn residents, in letters published recently in the Post-Dispatch, have complained that the bus service was inadequate, and have demanded construction of a street car extension.

'COULD BE WORSE' SAYS ADA BIGGS OF 10-YEAR SENTENCE

Her Counsel Will Make Formal Motion for New Trial But Has Not Decided on an Appeal.

JURY'S VERDICT CAUSES SURPRISE

By a Staff Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch.

FARMINGTON, Mo., Nov. 15.—"Well, it could have been worse."

Twenty-year-old Ada Biggs, slayer of her stepfather, Bill Simpson, who had sat stoically calm and silent yesterday afternoon when a St. Francois County jury brought in a verdict carrying a 10-year sentence in the penitentiary, made this remark to a Deputy Sheriff a few minutes later, as she was taken back to jail.

The verdict was a surprise to her, to some lawyers and to the more than 400 persons who filled every bit of space in the courtroom. Public sympathy had been with the girl, whose first explanation of the shooting was that it was done to gain peace for an abused family, but who on the witness stand, in self-justification, recited a story of two years of attacks on her by Simpson.

The verdict was the lightest possible under the Court's instructions, which covered conviction for either first or second degree murder, with death the maximum punishment. The jury deliberated 37 minutes, reporting at 4:05 o'clock. Its members, pressed afterwards for an explanation of their line of reasoning, had only to say, "We just talked it over and decided she was guilty and 10 years was right." They took no formal ballot. The charge was first-degree murder, but the jurors accepted the second-degree instruction. Ten of the jurors have daughters and one a son; 11 are farmers and one is retired; all are middle-aged or elderly.

As the jury filed in to report, Ada, whose plush coat was wrapped about her, although the room was hot, worked her lips nervously, but while Circuit Judge Peter H. Huck read the verdict to himself she became calm. The Judge handed the verdict to the clerk. Ben H. Marbury, chief defense counsel and a veteran of murder trials, looked over the clerk's shoulder and whispered to reporters: "Why, it's a conviction." Not a sound escaped the waiting crowd when the verdict was read.

That crowd included women who looked like leaders of the community sitting in the front rows. Men in overalls were there. Children just released from school were present at the climax. Courthouse employes deserted work to be there. As Marbury denounced Simpson's sister, Mrs. Mary Wiley of St. Louis, for what he called perjured testimony, Mrs. Wiley arose from the spectators' bench and screamed a reply. Officers led her out, but she continued her hysterical outburst in the corridor. At the conclusion of his speech, Marbury turned to the crowd and said he understood that Mrs. Wiley wanted to whip him but that if she attacked him he would fight back and have her arrested. However, they did not encounter each other.

Ada had signed a confession shortly after the shooting, the night of July 14 at the family home in Bismarck. It formed the essence of the State's case against her. Prosecuting Attorney Earl V. Abernathy and his assistant, O. Lee Munger, emphasized her failure to put in it the motive for the killing which she advanced in the trial and her failure to report the attacks. Her own testimony, backed by character witnesses, constituted the defense and Marbury and his aid, Earle E. Roberts of Steelville, relied heavily on the unwritten law to free Ada.

Marbury said he would file the usual motion for a new trial but did not know whether the case would be appealed. Abernathy declared that the defense would have liked to make a bargain for a light sentence for Ada upon a plea of guilty, but he preferred a trial. Roberts charged in open court there had been a reversible error in the closing arguments.

Ada's mother, Mrs. Bertie Biggs Simpson, and Mrs. Simpson's brother, Oscar Greenwalt, who lived with the family, are in jail here, also charged with participation in the murder. The State will proceed with their prosecution, but they may not go to trial until February. Ada's father's sister, Mrs. Lora Oakley, had planned to take Ada to her home in St. Louis last night, anticipating an acquittal. The four small children of Mr. and Mrs. Simpson are in the care of Elwood Home, a Presbyterian orphange here, Simpson's aged, blind mother having died since the shooting.

Ada heard her fate pronounced just a few hours short of four months from the time when, in the language of the prosecutor: "Out of the blackness of the night there came the thunder of a gun and Bill Simpson was hurled into eternity."

SLEEP WITHOUT DRUGS SAYS EMINENT SPECIALIST

Former Battle Creek Sanitarium Physician States Amazing Flaxolyn Discovery Relieves Constipation Condition Naturally and Brings Sound, Restful Sleep by Perfecting Digestion.

Thousands of people here who formerly suffered nights of sleeplessness and days of agonizing stomach distress, due to constipation, now feel fit, eat with keen appetites and sleep serenely since taking Nature's own formula, Dr. Luntz's Herbal Flaxolyn.

According to the statement issued by Dr. A. W. Herr, formerly physician at the Battle Creek Sanitarium, "Flaxolyn relieves in a natural way that dreaded condition called constipation. In many cases where auto-intoxication prevented sleep, the use of Flaxolyn has been the means of so cleansing the colon that natural sleep is now the usual thing and life has taken on a different meaning for these people."

Dr. Geo. Starr White, prominent Los Angeles health writer, and specialist, aroused kidney and stomach sufferers by taking an open stand in praise of Flaxolyn when he said last week, "I know of no remedy that can equal Herbal Flaxolyn as a corrective for chronic conditions of the bladder and kidneys—no more natural formula for 'self poisoning' due to constipation."

Dr. Benedict Lust (M. D., N. D.), president of the American Naturopathic Association, says: "Flaxolyn is a natural food-laxative and priceless in all digestive ills."

That is the unique feature of Flaxolyn—it is a remarkable

TONIC-LAXATIVE, NOT A 'DRUG'

Hundreds of other doctors and health sanatoriums, all over the world have used Flaxolyn in the treatment of such symptoms as dizzy spells, liver disorders, indigestion, sleepless nights, kidney and bladder troubles and have already written in praise of Flaxolyn.

Diet Advice FREE

The Conrad Health Food Stores will gladly supply you with Dr. Luntz's Rules of Health on the purchase of Flaxolyn. A large box containing many treatments costs $1. Sent postpaid, if you cannot call in person. Free diet advice may also be obtained from these local dieticians or from Dr. Luntz personally. His address appears on the package. Don't wait. Start taking Flaxolyn. It does not gripe because it is a natural food. You will feel the tonic change at once. You will enjoy vigor, a new grip on life. J. F. Conrad Grocer Co., 17 N. MRS. WING DENOUNCES HINKLE FOR FIRING HER

Ousted Chief Clerk, Suffrage Leader, Also Assails Baker for "Raw Administration"

When Mrs. Alice Curtice Moyer-Wing, one of the first and most active workers in the women's suffrage movement in Missouri, returned to St. Louis Tuesday after a campaign trip through the Northwest in behalf of the Hoover-Curtis ticket, she found that she had been fired, the day after the election, from her job as chief clerk under State Labor and Industrial Commissioner Roye B. Hinkle, with headquarters in St. Louis.

In a letter to Hinkle, made public last night, Mrs. Moyer-Wing roundly denounced her former boss for incompetence, and declared she was let out because of antagonism of both Hinkle and Gov. Baker to women officeholders. She also charged that her advocacy of the nomination of Lieutenant-Governor Phil A. Bennett for Governor before the primaries was a contributing factor in her dismissal.

Declaring that she had been fought persistently by State officials, including an unnamed St. Louis Senator, because she was a woman, Mrs. Moyer-Wing concluded her letter with this statement:

"It is a fitting climax to the raw deal handed to me by what many people concede to be the rawest administration Missouri ever had."

In ordering her dismissal Hinkle wrote that it was necessary to cut someone from the payroll for economy and that the department had been getting along well without Mrs. Moyer-Wing while she was out campaigning for the national ticket.

After Gov. Hyde took office in 1921 he appointed Mrs. Moyer-Wing chief industrial inspector at an annual salary of $2500 so that she was the first woman appointed to a job above a clerkship in the State service. She was reappointed under the Baker administration but when the industrial and labor departments were consolidated Hinkle became head of the consolidation and she was made chief clerk at the increased salary of $2800.

Mrs. Moyer-Wing, who has been a regular contributor to magazines, said today that she intended to retire to her farm in Wayne County to do some writing she had had in mind, but added it also was possible she might take one of several offers of positions made her by commercial firms when she was head of the industrial department.

SAYS BROTHER-IN-LAW STOLE WIFE'S LOVE; SEEKS $100,000

Otto M. Lindenberger Testifies of Her Preference for Wealthy Widower to Himself.

Charging that his wife, Mrs. Eda Lindenberger, preferred the company of her wealthy brother-in-law, Frank J. Klapp of East St. Louis, Otto M. Lindenberger, a salesman for Swift & Co., testified before a jury in Circuit Court at Belleville yesterday to events which he said led to his filing a $100,000 alienation suit against Klapp, a widower.

Lindenberger testified that he and Klapp married sisters and that Mrs. Klapp died in March, 1925, leaving two children. Lindenberger said he and his wife and their adopted daughter were invited to live with Klapp in his Alhambra Court home in East St. Louis. Klapp began paying attention to Mrs. Lindenberger, taking her to lunch frequently and on an eastern trip accompanied by the children, Lindenberger testified.

Klapp is president of the Klapp Shoe Co., operating stores in East St. Louis, Belleville and Christopher, Ill., and also owns a $160,000 office building in East St. Louis.

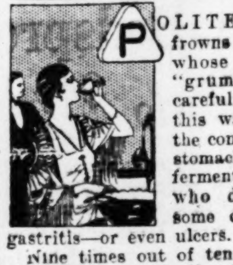
Sour Stomach Sign of Carelessness



POLITE society frowns on those whose stomachs "grumble." For careful people heed this warning that the contents of the stomach is sour and fermenting. Those who don't, may some day develop gastritis—or even ulcers.

Nine times out of ten indigestion and allied stomach disorders are due to excess stomach acid, which impedes normal digestion and forms sour gases that cause intense pain. To restore good digestion you must eliminate this cause. A tablet of "Pape's Diapepsin" after eating or when pain is felt will instantly neutralize the acidity and banish all digestive trouble and pain.

So, do buy a 60-cent package of "Pape's Diapepsin" today. This not only means instant relief, but by soothing, healing and strengthening your weak and disordered stomach a little "Pape's Diapepsin" keeps your digestive system healthy and helps to prevent various disorders.

ST. FRANCIS DAM BUILDER OUT

By the Associated Press.

LOS ANGELES, Cal., Nov. 14.—William Mulholland, veteran engineer, has resigned as chief engineer and general manager of the Los Angeles Bureau of Waterworks and Supply. As active head of the city's water supply system for more than 50 years, Mulholland designed and constructed the Aqueduct system which supplies the Los Angeles metropolitan area with water brought from the high Sierras, more than 250 miles away.

As builder of the great water supply system, Mulholland also constructed St. Francis Dam, one of the System's reservoir units, which burst last year, sweeping to death more than 400 ranchers and residents of the Santa Clara River Valley. Following the disaster he issued a statement: "If the dam was at fault, the blame is mine." At an investigation into the causes of the disaster, Mulholland was exonerated of blame.

Hope Wanes for Dr. E. Y. Mullins.
By the Associated Press.

LOUISVILLE, Ky., Nov. 15.—Little hope is held for the recovery of the Rev. Dr. E. Y. Mullins, president of the Southern Baptist Theological [illegible]ary since 1899, who is ill at his home. He is former president of the Baptist World Alliance. Dr. Mullins suffered a stroke of paralysis Saturday.

CLUB SUIT TO ENJOIN POLICE RAIDS HEARD

E. L. Oxenhandler Denies the Progressive Realty Promotes Gambling for Profit.

Testimony was taken before Circut Judge Ossing today in the suit of the Progressive Realty Club, 303 Missouri Hotel, to enjoin police from raiding the club rooms and arresting the occupants as gamblers.

Edward L. Oxenhandler, president of the organization, said it comprised 150 men, most of them engaged in the real estate business, who gather at the club rooms to play poker and other games, read papers and books, take shower baths, close business deals and engage in civic discussions.

The witness admitted the club sold cards and poker chips, but denied it promoted gambling for profit. He said he was not present last July when police forced an entrance, exploded a tear bomb and confiscated the safe which contained "no good" checks in amounts as high as $500.

Asked if the checks represented members' losses at cards, Oxenhandler said he did not know. He said he had see checks as high as $16,000 at the club when business deals were being completed.

President Oxenhandler and Secretary Aaron Feinstein were bound over to the grand jury yesterday on charges of setting up a gambling device at the club.

SIX-MONTH SENTENCE GIVEN CARELESS DRIVER

Chicagoan's Auto Injured Motor Cycle Policeman in a Collision.

E. Elwood Smith of Chicago, formerly of St. Louis, driver of an automobile which figured in a collision in which a motor cycle policeman was seriously injured, was sentenced to six months in the Workhouse by Police Judge Rosecan today on a charge of careless driving.

Driving his car west in West Pine boulevard, Oct. 28, Smith slowed up to let a northbound street car pass at Vandeventer avenue. He then drove around the rear of the street car and collided with a motor cycle ridden by Policeman Louis McPherson.

McPherson hobbled into court to testify against Smith. Other witnesses disagreed as to responsibility for the accident, some saying Smith drove into the front end of the cycle and others contending the motor cycle crashed against the side of the automobile.

$5000 VERDICT AGAINST I. C. FOR CRASH CAUSED BY SMOKE

Woman Gets Judgment for Injuries to Knee in Auto Accident on Municipal Bridge.

A $5000 verdict against the Illinois Central Railroad was returned by a jury in City Judge Borders' Court in East St. Louis today because of an automobile accident which occurred on the east approach of the Municipal Bridge in a cloud of smoke from an Illinois Central engine standing on the tracks below.

The award was to Mrs. Mattie Oswald of 1519 St. Louis avenue, East St. Louis, for injuries to a knee, suffered in the accident. Testimony was that Mrs. Oswald and her husband were driving over the bridge, the night of Feb. 11, 1927, when smoke obscured Oswald's vision and he was forced to stop. Another automobile hit the rear of his machine. Mrs. Oswald alighted to investigate and was caught between the fenders of the two cars, when two other automobiles crashed into the rear.

New State Park Given to Illinois.
By the Associated Press.

CHICAGO, Nov. 15.—Fifty acres of wooded land fronting on the Illinois River for a mile near Starved Rock was presented to the State of Illinois today as a new State park. The donor is Richard T. Crane Jr., wealthy Chicago manufacturer and philanthropist, whose family has owned the new park site for 15 years. The tract comprises a beautiful area of natural woods and ravines rising along the river in sheer rock nearly 100 feet high. The deed to the land was presented formally to Gov. Small.

PART TWO.

POLITICIANS TURN TO PICKING NEXT ST. LOUIS MAYOR

Candidates Openly or Quietly Offering Themselves for Spring Primary and Election.

KIEL CONSIDERED STRONG CONTENDER

Miller Expected to Fight for Nomination — Ben G. Brinkman Among Democrats Talked of.

With the presidential and State campaign out of the way, politicians of both major parties are casting around for candidates for Mayor, in anticipation of the March primaries and the April mayoralty election, while prospective aspirants for the office, whether out in the open or still under cover, are trying to feel out the sentiment of party leaders in the hope of becoming the city's chief executive.

On the Republican side it is a foregone conclusion that Mayor Miller will make a determined effort to succeed himself. He has stated repeatedly that he likes his job and intends to run again, and unquestionably he is the man that must be defeated if any other Republican is to try for the nomination.

The most formidable contender in prospect is Miller's predecessor, Henry W. Kiel, who served three four-year terms before he relinquished the office, in 1925. Regarded as an astute politician of widespread popularity, Kiel is feeling out sentiment of party leaders and civic groups on his prospective candidacy.

It will be recalled, when Kiel was considering a race for a fourth term, that his supporters feared, not Miller, who was at that time an uncertain political quantity, but Louis P. Aloe, then president of the Board of Aldermen, who appeared to be the strongest contender for the nomination.

Believing Aloe's candidacy was a serious menace to Kiel's chances, the former Mayor's supporters advised him not to run. The result was that Miller, running as a dark horse, defeated Aloe for the nomination and in the ensuing election defeated William L. Igoe, the Democratic candidate, by the narrow margin of 3200 votes.

Kiel Has Kept Up Contacts.

Since retiring to private life, former Mayor Kiel has been more than ordinarily successful in the contracting business and has told friends he is making more money than ever. He retired as chairman of the Republican State Committee just before the last election, so that he may be said to have kept his hand in politics during the past four years.

Similarly he has been active in civic affairs, acting as head of the Municipal Opera Association, speaking frequently before civic and business organizations, making a European trip with the Advertising Club and generally broadening his contacts.

Kiel has admitted he is considering an effort to win the nomination but in a discussion today with a Post-Dispatch reporter he remarked in typically frank fashion: "But to tell the truth, the people haven't come to me in droves yet to ask me to make the race."

Stephen M. Wagner, former president of the Board of Education, has announced his candidacy for the Republican nomination. The only other prospect to appear so far is Otto Hampe, Public Administrator, whose successor, Sheriff Anton Schuler, was elected on Nov. 8.

Should Kiel decide to run, it is a foregone conclusion that every effort will be made to discourage other entries, so that he and Mayor Miller may fight it out on even terms. It is generally conceded that the entry of Wagner or Hampe, for instance, would hurt Kiel's candidacy more than Miller's.

On the Democratic Side.

On the Democratic side, several prospective candidacies are under discussion. Ben G. Brinkman, owner of Forest Park Highlands, is understood to be considering making a race. He has been an active Democrat and a liberal donor to campaign funds. In addition, it is believed by his friends that his German name and ancestry might attract support which would otherwise go to the Republican nominee.

Another discussed for the candidacy is Jacob M. Lashly, president of the Bar Association, who directed the successful fight for the association slate by which Circuit Attorney Sidener was defeated.

Still another is Dr. John H. Simon, who was defeated by Kiel in 1921. Simon already has the backing of the German-American Smith-for-President League, but

VOTE IN SOUTH A VICTORY FOR G. O. P., NOT PERSONAL TRIBUTE, HOOVER DECLARES

President-Elect, in Letter to Industrial Editor, Pledges Fairness to All States—Urges Development of Waterpower.

By the Associated Press.

BALTIMORE, Nov. 15.—Herbert Hoover regards the large number of votes cast for him in the South as a victory for his party rather than a personal tribute. Writing to R. H. Edmonds, editor of the Manufacturers' Record, Mr. Hoover said that "no limit can be set upon the continued progress and ever increasing prosperity of the whole South." His letter was in response to a request for his view of this section.

The text of the letter follows:

"I am profoundly appreciative of the extremely heavy vote throughout the South for Mr. Curtis and myself. I accept this vote, not as a personal tribute, but as an expression of a developing sentiment throughout the South in behalf of the things for which the Republican party has stood in this campaign; and, while desiring to express to those who voted for Mr. Curtis and myself my profound appreciation of the honor thus done us, I want to make very emphatic that I give full credit to those who voted for my opponent for the sincerity and honesty of their convictions.

"I am not at all unmindful of the conditions which for years brought about the political solidarity of the South. I firmly believe, however, that the time has come when in all sections men and women should vote from their convictions as to conditions at the present time and not based on things of former generations.

Safety of Country.

"The safety of this country and its continued progress toward the exalted position, for which Providence seems to have destined it, can, in my opinion, be best served by a diversity of thought and action which will cause all of the voters of this country to recognize their individual responsibility to take part in every political campaign. In every community and every State, as well as in national elections, all the people should recognize this duty to express their views on local, State and national affairs through the ballot box; and in such contests all bitterness of spirit should be wiped out. However strong may be convictions or issues before the public, these political contests should be waged in a spirit of friendly, active rivalry, but not in a spirit of bitter denunciation of any one party against the other.

"I trust that it is needless for me to say to the people of the South that I am fully appreciative of the great potentialities of that section. With one-third of the nation's land area, with about three-fifths of its sea frontage, with vast resources in soil, climate and minerals, no limit can be set to the continued progress and ever increasing prosperity of the whole South.

Development of Water Power.

"There are great waterpowers awaiting development and, as I have said before, every drop of water that is not utilized runs its course idly to the sea and is an economic loss.

"There are great potentialities in the extension of the intercoastal canal system which eventually should extend all the way from Boston to the end of Texas. And to the furtherance of the development of these waterways and the possibilities for hydroelectric power not yet utilized for the fullest upbuilding of the Mississippi River Valley country by adequate flood protection, I can promise to the South my heartiest co-operation.

"I can assure the people of the South, as well as those of the entire country, that in my administration I shall know no difference between North, South, East and West, but shall seek to deal with absolute fairness and justice to every section of our common country. There are great economic issues and vast economic potentialities in every part of this country, from the Atlantic to the Pacific, and from the lakes to the gulf.

Development of South.

It is well said that 'the development of the South means the enrichment of the nation,' and this is true, not only in the material sense, but also in the broader sense of the development of the spirit of Americanism which will permeate the lives of the people of the entire country, rounding out to a greater extent than we have ever known before a genuine Americanism instead of a certain degree of sectionalism.

"It is right that every state and every section should seek its utmost advancement, but there should be no spirit of ill will, of rivalry, for there is enough for all and possibilities for growth and prosperity in every part of this land greater far than the world has ever yet seen.

"Again would I express to the people of the South who have in such vast numbers by their votes shown their confidence in Mr. Curtis and myself, my profound appreciation. If it is within my power to prevent it, they shall never feel that they made a mistake in this particular. Faithfully yours,

"HERBERT HOOVER."

POINCARE GETS CONFIDENCE VOTE FOR HIS NEW CABINET

Deputies Support Government; Premier Hopes for Reparations Settlement.

By the Associated Press.

PARIS, Nov. 15.—The Chamber of Deputies late today gave the newly-formed Poincare Government a vote of confidence, 335 to 147.

A prophecy that the future of France and of Europe would depend upon the outcome of negotiations for revised German war reparations, was contained in the declaration of policy.

In the ministerial declaration M. Poincare expressed his belief that this conference would arrive at a final solution of the problem. He said that in the exchanges among the different governments thus far no unresolvable incompatibility of views had developed.

M. Poincare indicated that two articles of the budget relating to the return of certain religious orders to France might be detached from that measure and voted upon separately by the Chamber of Deputies.

Two Mexican War Veterans Left.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 15.—Only two veterans of the Mexican War remain on the Pension Bureau rolls, William Fitzhugh Buckner, 100 years old, of Paris, Mo., and Owen Thomas Edgar, 97, of Washington. The Pension Bureau made this announcement today after striking from its rolls the name of Richard Albert Howard, who died at Sterling City, Tex., Nov. 1. He was 97.

Starts Mexico-to-Canada Flight.

MEXICO CITY, Nov. 15.—Joaquin Gonzales Pacheco, Mexican aviator who made a non-stop flight from Windsor, Ont., to Tampico last June in company with Fritz Bieler, hopped off today for Windsor on a return flight with L. C. McMillan, also a pilot. Their intinerary includes stops at Tampico, probably Brownsville, then Dallas, St. Louis, Detroit and Windsor.

PROHIBITION VOTED DOWN BY 120,000 IN NEW ZEALAND

People at Referendum Favor Adoption of Licensing System Against Present Dry Law.

By the Associated Press.

WELLINGTON, N. Z., Nov. 15.—The swing back to a liquor licensing system after three years of prohibition in New Zealand was even more pronounced in yesterday's voting than first returns indicated. It was estimated today that the majority against prohibition would reach 120,000. The question is always voted on in connection with the Dominion's triennial elections.

The question put to the voters was whether they favored continuance of prohibition or whether a licensing system should be adopted. The majority favored the adoption of a licensing system.

(In the last triennial election in November, 1925, prohibition received 319,450 votes, national continuance of a limited licensing system, 299,484, and state purchase and control, 56,043. In 1914 prohibition was defeated by a large majority and was defeated again in a referendum held in 1919 after a recount of the soldiers' votes overcame an earlier lead held by the prohibitionists.)

Germany Makes More Tires.

BERLIN, Nov. 15.—The German tire output last year increased 76 per cent over that of 1926, but owing to the heavy increase in motor traffic consumption in Germany kept pace with production. The output of tires in 1927 totaled 18,676,348.

Port Arthur Defender Dies.

HELSINGFORS, Finland, Nov. 15.—Admiral Oscar Starck, who commanded the Russian navy in the defense of Port Arthur against the Japanese attack in 1904, died today. He was 82 years old.

COMMISSION GETS BRIEFS ON STREET CAR WAGE DISPUTE

MEN WANT INCREASE, COMPANY REDUCTION

Latter Declares It Is Acting in Public Interest; Former Say Higher Scale Is Warranted.

By the Jefferson City Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch.

JEFFERSON CITY, Nov. 15.—Conflicting views on the weight to be given the financial condition of the St. Louis Public Service Co. by the State Public Service Commission, in arbitration of the demands of the carmen for increased pay and the company's counter proposal to reduce wages, were presented in briefs filed yesterday by attorneys for the carmen's union and the company.

Attorneys for the union contend the existing income condition of the street car company "is no defense to the demands of the union if these demands have been proved to be fair and reasonable." They declare the union's demands have been proved reasonable and cite several court decisions in support of their claim that the financial condition of the company is not an element in the case.

The company contends it is unable to pay the scale demanded, or even the existing wage scale, and asserts its financial condition and ability to pay is the dominant element to be considered by the commission. The company likewise cites several court decisions, holding that the financial condition of a company is a factor to be considered in arbitration of wage cases.

Task Before Commission.

From these conflicting lines of reasoning, and a record of hearings that contains many conflicting claims as to the effect of the proposed scale, the effect of existing and proposed working conditions, and widely varying estimates of cost, the commission must make the award.

The union demanded an increase of 5 cents an hour in the existing scale of pay for motormen and conductors, which ranges from 50 cents an hour for the first year, up to a maximum of 67 cents an hour attained after three years of service. It demanded that the advance from the proposed new minimum of 55 cents an hour to the proposed maximum of 72 cents an hour be made in a year and a half instead of three years. Changes in working conditions, chiefly affecting the time in which runs would be completed, also were sought.

The company countered with a proposal to reduce wages 5 cents an hour, making the pay of transportation employes range from 45 to 62 cents an hour.

Public as Interested Party.

In its brief the company declares the public is a party at interest, as well as the employes and security owners, and asserts it is unable to continue paying the present scale of wages, much less an increase. The company asserts it is failing to earn the return of 7.14 per cent which the Public Service Commission held was reasonable, when it increased the company's valuation to $63,500,000 for operating property. It is asserted in the company brief that, if present wages are continued, the company must be permitted to charge a fare averaging 8.3 cents a passenger, to earn the return, and, if the wage increase is granted, it must charge an average of 9.3 cents for all passengers, adults and children, to earn the return. The present fare is 8 cents cash, 3 cents for children.

Exhibits submitted by the company showed it was earning fixed charges, but was falling approximately $1,200,000 a year below the $4,535,000 the Commission held it was entitled to earn under present conditions.

The company asserted it was acting in the public interest in resisting any increased operating expenses which did not accrue as benefits to street car riders. "Even if the company were in a position financially to meet the full demands of the union in this respect," it was stated in the brief, "its officials would be derelict in duty if they did not resist to the utmost any additions to the annual wage bill which did not promise something in the shape of betterment in quantity or quality of service that can be passed on to the patrons of the service."

Better Morale Contention.

Attorneys for the union contend such betterments would result through improved condition of the men, a higher morale, and a continuation of the more efficient service which the union contends the men have been rendering in recent years.

In support of the wage demands the union contends the nature of the work demandse a better wage, that the intensity of the work has increased through traffic congestion, that the employes are more efficient, as shown by reductions in the number of accidents; that such wages in St. Louis have not kept pace with increases in other comparable cities, and that present earnings of the carmen are inadequate to maintain them and their families on an acceptable standard of living.

Present working conditions are declared unreasonable and the periods required for completing the majority of the runs are declared to be unreasonably long. The brief also urges improvement of the working conditions of shop employes, and declares the wages of such employes and electrical workers should be increased.

SMITH PARTY AT SAVANNAH

Governor Stops for Golf Game on Way to Biloxi, Miss.

By the Associated Press.

SAVANNAH, Ga., Nov. 15.—Gov. Alfred E. Smith and his party stopped at Savannah today for a round of golf before proceeding to Biloxi, Miss., for a vacation.

The Governor was greeted at the railroad station by several hundred persons. He was taken by Carl Espy, his Savannah host, to the Savannah Golf Club. The day's program included luncheon at the Espy home and an informal reception there tonight. The party will depart for the Gulf Coast at 4 o'clock tomorrow morning. Included in the Governor's party were John J. Raskob, Senator Pat Harrison of Mississippi, former Transit Commissioner Gilchrist of New York, and James J. Riordan of New York. They are traveling in the St. Nicholas, private railway car of William F. Kenny, New York contractor.

For Partition of Muscle Shoals.

By the Associated Press.

ATLANTA, Ga., Nov. 5.—The National Fertilizer Association, before ending its convention here, adopted resolutions petitioning Congress to consider the three major properties at Muscle Shoals as separate and distinct problems. It asked that the Wilson dam, with its hydroelectric plant and the steam power plant No. 2, be sold, separately or jointly; that nitrate plant No. 1 be assigned to the Bureau of Chemistry and Soils for governmental experimental purposes, and that cyanamid plant No. 2 be kept in condition for from one to three years, then sold to the highest bidder.

Shaw's Garden 'Mum' Show Has a Japanese Setting

A colorful and fragrant Japanese garden, with winding walks, bamboo fences and arched Japanese gates, to set off the beauty of 300 distinct varieties of chrysanthemums, fills the floral display house at Shaw's Garden for the annual "mum" show which opened yesterday.

The visitor steps from the chilly walks of the outer garden, where the grass has withered and the trees are bare, into the fragrance of some 4000 blossoms.

Just within the entrance stand two arched gates, after the Japanese manner, which open on stairways leading to the garden. There the usual wide walks have been eliminated for narrow pathways, which wind among the varieties of chrysanthemums, while overhead are two dozen huge hanging baskets, which hide the glass top of the display house. The garden is surrounded with a fence of knotted bamboo sticks, and there is an impressive Japanese gate of wood and thatch at the lower exit.

"Mop-Head" and "Cream Puff."

Every variety of "mum" the garden can offer is displayed, from the tiny pompom to the great 12-inch "cream puff." There are huge beds of the popular large-flowered varieties, started last March and developed by careful pinching of laterals; a dozen varieties of "bush" chrysanthemums, planted in December at the close of last year's show and pinched daily in a different manner to create the bush effect; five types of hanging "mum," developed through years of experiment, and other varieties, including the shaggy-petaled Mankato or "mop-head," the Japanese quilled chrysanthemum and the wide-petaled varieties which remind the visitor of daisies.

George H. Pring, horticulturist of Shaw's Garden, admits that the Japanese garden presentation is an experiment, and he is fearful that the huge Sunday crowds may overrun the narrow walks and trample on the blossoms. When the show was planned, he decided to sacrifice efficiency to beauty, and he will wait until Sunday to see whether a crowd of from 20,000 to 30,000 persons can file through the display house without destroying the beauty of the exhibition.

Work by Floriculturist.

To Paul Kohl, floriculturist of the garden, Pring gives the credit for this year's show. Kohl directed arrangement of the garden and construction of the Japanese fences and gates. Yesterday everything was complete except the placing of a few identification cards on plants.

Duration of the show, as in past years, will depend on the weather. If the weather remains normally cool for this season, the show will continue through Nov. 30 from 10 a. m. to 5 p. m. daily. However, if warm weather causes the "mums" to wither, the show may be ended earlier.

WON'T DROP FALL-DOHENY CASE

U. S. Counsel Says Trial Depends on Ex-Secretary's Health.

By the Associated Press

WASHINGTON, Nov. 15.—After conferring with President Coolidge today, Atlee Pomerene, special Government oil counsel, said there was no intention of dropping the bribery charges against former Secretary of the Interior Fall and E. L. Doheny for their transaction in the Elk Hills naval reserve.

Pomerene said bringing Fall to trial here depended largely upon the latter's health. He admitted that separate indictments might be sought. Fall and Doheny have been acquitted of a conspiracy charge growing out of the oil scandals. Harry F. Sinclair, with whom Fall was also indicted, was found not guilty by a jury. Fall still faces the charge from which Sinclair was freed.

Soviet Trust Signs Radio Contract.

By the Associated Press.

LENINGRAD, Nov. 15.—Announcement was made hrough Tass, the official soviet news agency, today that the Soviet Radio Trust had signed a contract with the Radio Corporation of America for the purchase of about $600,000 worth of radio apparatus. The contract also provides for the sending to Russia of American specialists to help the Soviet Union develop its radio network, while Russia will send some of its engineers to America to study the latest radio achievements.

HOOVER TO SPEAK IN EACH NATION ON GOOD-WILL TOUR

Corinto, Nicaragua, Tentatively Fixed as First Stop —Indication of Policy Likely.

MRS. HOOVER AND SON WILL ACCOMPANY HIM

President-elect Not to Discuss Cabinet Appointments Until Return From Latin-America.

By the Associated Press.

PALO ALTO, Cal., Nov. 15.—Going to Latin-America as a plenipotentiary of peace and good will, Herbert Hoover will interpret the character of his mission in addresses which he will deliver in each of the republics he will visit on his two-month tour.

The President-elect already is outlining some of these speeches, the first of which may be made at Corinto, Nicaragua, now tentatively fixed as the first port of call after the battleship Maryland leaves San Pedro, Cal., next Monday. He would be welcomed to Corinto by President Diaz.

A speech in this Central American republic would afford an opportunity for the President-elect of the United States to indicate the policy his administration would pursue in dealing with situations such as arose in Nicaragua and resulted in the landing of marines to police the country.

The use of the marines to supervise the elections of Nicaragua has evoked much criticism both in the United States and in Latin-America. Foremost among the critics in this country has been Senator Borah of Idaho, chairman of the Senate Foreign Relations Committee.

Boston Speech Recalled.

Without mentioning any specific cases of the use of armed forces for the protection of Americans abroad, Hoover in one of the major speeches of his campaign, delivered at Boston, expressed the hope that such incidents would not arise again.

"Unless there can be constantly evidenced amongst all nations proof that the lives and property of all citizens abroad shall be protected," he said, "the foreign trade and economic life of the world will degenerate instead of thrive. This does not imply that our citizens going abroad are not subject to the laws of the country where they reside. They must be subject to such laws unless these laws are a violation of international obligation. This implies no imperialism. It is the simple recognition of the principle of comity and mutual interest among all nations. Confidence in this principle is a necessity to the advancement of civilization itself."

THE POST-DISPATCH PLATFORM

I know that my retirement will make no difference in its cardinal principles; that it will always fight for progress and reform, never tolerate injustice or corruption, always fight demagogues of all parties, never belong to any party, always oppose privileged classes and public plunderers, never lack sympathy with the poor, always remain devoted to the public welfare, never be satisfied with merely printing news; always be drastically independent; never be afraid to attack wrong, whether by predatory plutocracy or predatory poverty.

LETTERS FROM THE PEOPLE

Poor School Accommodations.

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch:

IT is a travesty in school accommodations for the School Board to take a portion of the Simmons School, which is already overcrowded, and attempt to provide a makeshift Sumner Teachers' Normal College. All reason, common sense and modern educational ideals are against such actions.

Prof. Gary Cleveland Meyers of Western Reserve University, writing in Mental Health, says: "It is therefore obvious that health training should take into consideration not merely physical environment as it affects the body-temperature, fresh air, clothing, diet, contagious and infectious diseases—but also those subtler influences which distract, bewilder and confuse the mind—stated from the positive side, the school room which includes teachers, pupils, decorations, temperature, seats, air and voices should all be adopted to the physical and mental comfort of the pupil."

Taking this scientific evidence as a premise, it seems to me that instead of handicapping these young women in their aspirations for the teaching profession, the provisions should be made to give them the most correct esthetic, moral, mental and physical atmosphere in which to prepare themselves.

HENRY W. WHEELER.

Gov.-Elect Caulfield's Thanks.

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch:

NOW that the excitement of receiving the election returns is over, I take occasion to extend to you my sincere thanks for your generosity and fairness in giving publicity to my speeches and other activities during the campaign.

HENRY S. CAULFIELD.

A Nuisance.

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch:

IN the vicinity of 3300 South Grand boulevard is one of the city's best architectural groups—a public library, a church, two schools, fine homes. Why should the residents and passersby have to endure a nuisance there in violation of the zoning law?

We refer to a second-hand auto store at the corner of Grand and McKean. Dirty and decrepit cars, too many for the store itself, are crowded on the lawn and sidewalk, extending beyond the restricted building line. The lawn has been cut to pieces and mud and oil are smeared on the walks.

City officials and police who ask favors at election time will be measured by what they do to abate such nuisances as this.

McKEAN AVENUE RESIDENTS.

Mr. Sidener's Defeat.

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch:

MR. SIDENER has refused to comment at length upon the knockout punch which was handed him by the voters, but he did say, "That water has passed over the dam," which was very appropriate, but needs a little amendment.

What really happened was that the water of public protest and indignation, which had risen to great heights, broke through the dam and swept down upon Sidener and the Republican city machine, with such a flood that even that expert in flood relief, Mr. Hoover himself, was unable to prevent or relieve the devastation that followed.

It was one of the pioneer Vanderbilts who said: "The public be damned." Now actions speak louder than words, and judging the Republican machine by its actions it damned the public and dared it to do its worst just as truly as did Vanderbilt.

It will be some time, we imagine, before they have the temerity to damn the public again, for they must realize by now that the strongest dams sometimes break, and invariably with disastrous results.

O. S.

The G. O. P.'s Effrontery.

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch:

ONE invaluable asset the Republican party certainly can boast is the effrontery to brazen out the most damaging situation. With an embarrassing record—it still contrives to come through with flying colors.

I verily believe that if the G. O. P. were to abscond with the United States Treasury, the achievement would be enthusiastically endorsed by the customary plurality of 6,000,000, or is it 7,000,000,000?

D. M.

Booze, Bootlegging and Balderdash.

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch:

INSOFAR as St. Louis having occasion to gloat over 14,000 Democratic plurality, there is no occasion whatever. Thirteen cities gave Hoover pluralities and St. Louis was one of five that did not. St. Louis, running true to form, voted for booze, bootlegging and balderdash. It will step from sixth place to seventh or lower in the next census. The only thing where we are showing an increase is the number of persons killed by automobiles.

It is always the pedestrian's fault. When the autoist appears in court to answer for the killing, he is given seven slaps on the wrist and his chewing gum is taken away from him for four weeks and two days.

ARTHUR C. MASON.

THE VESTRIS TRAGEDY.

Only a great tragedy like that which attended the loss of the steamer Vestris could serve to remind us that not even modern science, which has given us the radio, has stripped the sea of its terrors.

The Vestris had been for 16 years in the South American trade. Thousands of Americans had traveled on her through the West Indies and down the South American coast. She was as familiar to that part of the world as a steamship is in any of the great lanes of travel, and she had never been unlucky. Lesser ships in the time of the Vestris had been lost in the Caribbean. Great disasters had occurred in the Atlantic. From New York to the West Indies, and from the West Indies down to Bahia, Rio Janeiro and Buenos Aires, has usually been a safe and pleasant voyage, one popular with winter excursionists.

Yet the Vestris had little more than left New York on her last trip than she began to list. She went down some 250 miles off the Virginia coast, in a part of the sea where ships are so numerous that a disaster of the magnitude of this one hardly seems possible. Apparently no one knows why a more effective use of the radio was not made. The Vestris had radio equipment, and she reported long before she sank that she was in trouble. Some of the survivors are disposed to blame the captain, who went down with his ship. Their testimony is that everybody on the Vestris knew the situation to be hourly growing worse. The ship was listing more and more, and eventually she turned over on her side. Probably the captain thought he would be able to control the list and bring the ship into port under her own power. He would thus have escaped being salvaged, which is a disgrace to ship commanders.

Unfortunately, no appeal for help had been repeated in the long interval between the first alarm and the final SOS before the vessel sank. It is very mystifying. We can much better understand how so many uneventful voyages had lulled the crew into a false sense of security. This usually is the case. Whenever the lifeboats leak, or the life-saving apparatus is deficient, it is due to that cause. So it was with the Vestris. When the test came she was wanting. In consequence, more than 300 human beings put out on a rough sea in unstable craft, much of it already battered. Their hardships were heart-rending. More than 100 of them were lost. One survivor saw a mother with two children clasped in her arms vainly struggling to keep afloat before the trio went under the waves. Many ships went to the rescue, but it was too late to save all. The first arrivals got there in the black darkness of night. Despite their great searchlights they saw nothing. It was not until the next morning that the first survivors were found.

Seldom have the immensity of the sea, and the futility of all man's invention, been so graphically demonstrated as in that search. Battleships, destroyers, trans-Atlantic liners, tankers, coast patrol boats, all wove around the tragic spot for 24 hours, in a network of attempted relief. They literally scoured the sea. What a pity it was that because of the long silence of the Vestris when she was palpably sinking much of this relief was in vain! It is a puzzling mystery, one that unfortunately deepens the widespread conviction of criminal carelessness.

GOV. SMITH'S FAREWELL.

If Gov. Smith was not always happy to some of us in the campaign, he remedied that fault in his political farewell to the country. That was in the best American spirit, a good-natural acceptance of the people's judgment.

Some historians think that Pericles, who ruled the Athenian empire, and whose beneficence gave to Greece her glory, was the best politician of whom we have any record. It is said of him that he never despaired of his foes as such. He believed that he could, given time, make them his friends. He did this repeatedly, and it was a political axiom of his time that his enmity was only for the day.

Yet we were told during the campaign that Gov. Smith had never read a book. Even so, he has read the book of life. He is something more than a good loser. He is an American, and he displayed in his farewell perhaps the most admirable of all American qualities. Like Pericles, he despaired of none of his foes as such. He moreover gave his party sound advice when he advised it to have a program. That is what the Liberal party in England, also a minority party, has. It has in this way put itself intellectually head and shoulders above our own Democratic party.

AN OLD ST. LOUISAN.

Mrs. Wilhelmina Welker, who celebrated her ninety-fifth birthday yesterday, came to St. Louis from Lippe-Detmold, Germany, Nov. 16, 1851.

That was in a time when St. Louis and the region immediately behind it was a veritable land of promise to Germans. It had been made so by a book written by one Duden. Duden came over from Germany and explored to some extent the locality comprised by the present City of St. Louis, as well as St. Louis, St. Charles and nearby counties. He must have seen it in the Indian summer, when the fruits of nature were abundant, because the book he wrote when he returned to Germany precipitated a rush. This was what brought much of the great German population to the region hereabouts, particularly that in St. Louis and the bordering counties. Not all the people to whom Duden's magic had lent wings with which to cross the sea found this the land of milk and honey he had pictured. They found that only by the sweat of their brows could they enjoy the riches of this new world, and this is the way they have enjoyed them. They have not, since they found this out, so much enjoyed Duden.

Mrs. Welker lived when she came here on Sixteenth street between Biddle and O'Fallon. That was then the West End. It is the East End now, which will serve to show how long this venerable lady has lived in St. Louis.

FOR THE SAKE OF THE CHILDREN.

For more than four years the club women of Missouri have shouldered a task that belongs to the State. They have been seeking out and providing care for the crippled children of parents too poor to pay for the tedious medical, surgical and hospital care necessary to reclaim the children who otherwise would go through life as dependents.

Under the leadership of Mrs. C. W. Green of Columbia, chairman of the Welfare Committee of the Missouri Federation of Women's Clubs, they have found more than 400 suffering children. They have provided free expert orthopedic surgery. They have obtained free hospital care in St. Louis and Kansas City. They have induced men's service clubs to provide the mechanical braces so often necessary. They have persuaded the railroads to give free transportation.

Now they are through. They feel that the State can no longer shirk its duty. They have disclosed that there are thousands of children, in Missouri, whose physical condition can be bettered, if not completely made over, by proper care. They are preparing to storm the Legislature in January to demand that the State no longer dodge its responsibility.

GERMANY AND COMMUNISM.

According to a St. Louisan who is in Frankfort, Communism is no such terror to Germany as it is to us. He saw in that city recently a great Communist demonstration, and to his amusement neither the public officials nor the Communists seemed to take it very seriously. He estimates that there were from 8000 to 10,000 men in line. Bands played, red flags fluttered, and the whole marching pageant sang the Internationale. Instead of trying to prevent the demonstration, the police went on before and cleared the way. After the parade, the Communist leader in Germany spoke on the platz. Then the gathering dissolved into the beer gardens and the saloons. The day closed with all the marchers, in hundreds of good-natured groups, every one made mellow by good beer, singing a German national anthem.

What a people! In 19 of the States of our own Union there are anti-syndicalist laws under which anyone attempting to participate in such a demonstration, or trying to organize one, would be thrust into prison. There is no justification for such intolerance, nor is it wholesome. Communism is a delusion, and it is no more possible to prevent its lodgment in the minds of some people than it is possible to keep people from being Holy Rollers or Fundamentalists. The Germans, who are older than we are, have not the slightest fear of it. They have lived next door to Russia ever since the revolution which resulted in the soviet republic, but they have never actually feared that Germany would be engulfed by Communism. They know quite well that it is the disinheritance of the people, who are at last without land, that causes such an extreme. The German people own Germany, as our own people own the United States. All such people have a stake in the country, and they are by that fact in defense of all property. The Germans evidently believe that the certain way to encourage Communism in Germany would be to suppress that element of the population which, because of the demoralization and poverty resulting from the World War, has embraced it. The German republic goes steadily on. It is steadily improving the status of the German people. It is in no more danger of Communism than is our own country, and nothing like so foolish about it.

FATHER'S LAST STAND.

In a day when the foundations of the American home are subject to so many vicious stabs as to make them resemble a lattice fence, another vicious stab comes with poor grace. We refer to the movement among pharmaceutical manufacturers to impart sweet, smooth, seductive flavors to such rare old beverages as castor oil, salt solutions and onion syrup.

The father of today has very few checks on his young ones. One of his standbys is to threaten a dose of cod liver oil if Junior doesn't quit filching neckties. What, now, if Junior come back with "O K. I'll take pineapple flavor"?

A COUNTY POLICE FORCE.

To solve its vexing problems of lawlessness, an efficient, county-wide police force is the greatest need of St. Louis County. The County Taxpayers' League deserves public encouragement in sponsoring a law to establish such a force.

No matter how honest and well-meaning the Sheriff and Constables may be, they are not in a position to carry on a relentless war against crime. When, as in the past, some of the holders of these offices manifest not the least interest in law enforcement, but only care for the spoils, what hope has the community? The Sheriff and Constables are civil as well as police officers, and have numerous duties to perform for the courts. Furthermore, they are paid under the thoroughly objectionable fee system. Their authority and powers are hampered by law.

In short, as has been pointed out many times before, the whole system of Sheriffs and Coroners, designed for the needs of rural England and coming down to us with the common law, is not capable of coping with the work of catching criminals and assuring the public peace and safety. A bill for a St. Louis County police force failed in the 1927 Legislature through political opposition. Every effort should be made now to secure the passage of a law for a properly organized and sufficiently powerful police force for this semi-urban, growing district of 200,000 population.

THE RIVER RETURNS A PROFIT.

Secretary of War Davis expresses satisfaction over the report of the Inland Waterways Corporation for the first nine months of the year. This governmental body, which operates barge lines on the Mississippi River, has earned $277,782 this year, as compared with $45,507 for the same period a year ago. This gain was made despite a deficit of $65,000 in the Warrior River division, and a loss of $198,000 in the upper Mississippi River division. The profit is accounted for by the earnings of the lower river line of $540,000 for the nine months.

It will be noted that, while the Warrior division lost $65,000, last year its deficit was $173,000. In a year, therefore, the deficit was reduced by $108,000. On the other hand, the lower line netted only $255,000 for nine months last year and has, therefore, more than doubled its earnings within a single twelve-month period. It is to be noted, too, that the Warrior River terminal operations showed a net profit of $33,358 as contrasted with a loss of more than $13,000 last year.

Certainly the Government is to be congratulated for its initiative in this matter. It is demonstrating that river transportation is not only a desirable means of easing our transportation problem, but that it is financially profitable. In a few years we may expect to see all the lines making a handsome profit, thus justifying those who have been saying for years that river traffic, far from being dead, must be an essential part of the future transportation system of the United States.

WHAT CARELESSNESS COST.

"A Navy Second to None"

The Navy General Board repeats its demand upon Congress for a nevy second to none; Congress and public opinion should curb the jingoes and see that common sense, economy and the universal desire for peace get their chance as against naval experts juggling with figures.

From the New York World

THE declaration on naval policy from the General Board coincides with reports from Washington that Senate leaders are agreed on pushing the pending naval construction bill. The General Board's report contains nothing surprising. It repeats the demand for a navy second to none. It asks for the replacement of all old cruisers with modern 10,000-ton cruisers; suggests omitting small cruisers, and proposes a destroyer and submarine tonnage equal to England's. This harmonizes with the American demand at Geneva for ample strength in large cruisers, and with the pending bill for the building of fifteen 10,000-ton cruisers.

Obviously, a 15-cruiser program to cost $274,000,000 is a very different matter from Secretary Wilbur's proposal a year ago for spending $740,000,000 on 74 ships. But even this modified proposal should have careful scrutiny and should not be adopted unless and until it is clearly shown to be necessary to reasonable defense. To demonstrate this necessity we require more careful and thorough arguments than Mr. Coolidge's statement that England will soon have 68 cruisers against our 40. Such figures, taking no account of tonnage, guns, speed or age, mean little. Senator King said last February:

> Our 18 capital ships, with a tonnage of 528,850, constitute a more effective fighting unit than Great Britain possesses. Seven of our capital ships were completed before 1918 and 1923, and are superior in construction, equipment and fighting strength to those of the British navy.
> We have in the naval establishment at this time 10 modern 7500-ton cruisers which at their rated tonnage give 75,000 tons of vessels in this class. Each of these cruisers carries six-inch guns and excels the best British cruisers in the rate of speed. In addition, the navy has 22 cruisers of the second line. This brings our present and authorized cruiser tonnage to more than 200,000. Congress has heretofore authorized the construction of eight 10,000-ton cruisers to mount eight-inch guns, which, when completed, will give us an additional 80,000 tons. * * * Of these (cruisers) remaining in Great Britain's fleet, 34 are less than 5000 tons, and of these the 34, 13 are less than 4000 tons.

If we listened to our General Board alone, and England to her Admiralty alone, each nation would believe that its navy was hopelessly inferior to the other's. It is for Parliament and Congress, and for public opinion behind the two, to see that common sense, economy and the universal desire for peace get their chance as against naval experts juggling with figures. A reasonable expansion, yes; but this great nation, with no foes and no powerful neighbors, can act cautionsly and slowly.

While it is thus acting, it is to be hoped that the question of a further limitation of navies by international agreement can be reopened. The initiative now lies clearly with England and France, and they cannot move too promptly.

FOR BIGGER AND BETTER CROW FEASTS.

From the Brooklyn Eagle.

FROM Great Britain comes an idea that we should hasten to incorporate in our political system even if it requires another constitutional amendment. In the forthcoming general election the voice of Winston Churchill, now the Conservative Chancellor of the Exchequer, is to be heard from Liberal platforms, where Churchill speeches in praise of Liberal principles will be reproduced from old phonograph records and amplified for emphasis.

The possibilities in this scheme are almost limitless and if realized would be the greatest time and argument saver ever devised to spare the voters in a given campaign. What the idea is worth can be realized by all those who followed the recent campaign in this country. By far the greater part of that campaign was given up to showing the inconsistency of the opposition. Gov. Smith popularized the phrase "Let's see what the record has to say," but he had his own record constantly quoted against him.

In our crude way we wasted hours of valuable radio time on this matter of records. Republicans squandered thousands in time showing that the Democrats were anything but consistent in their attitude toward prohibition, farm relief, the tariff and what not. While Mr. Hughes was proving that Gov. Smith had said thus and so, the Governor was proving that Mr. Hughes had at some other time expressed views out of line with his later utterances. Mr. Borah quoted at length from Smith declarations in 1920 to show him up, and the Governor quoted Borah's old speeches to prove his lack of consistency. All the campaigners engaged in the same practice.

How much more simple if we had thought of the scheme that is to be employed by the British Liberals! But the new method should be made compulsory. Why not enact the necessary legislation at once and compel all our public men, and especially those who are apt to run for office, to record their views on important matters for the phonograph archives? It might be well, at the same time, to have the political platforms put on records. Then, at the beginning of every campaign, these records should be brought out and broadcast. After that the campaigners would be required to stick to the issues. When politicians or parties began to diverge from the record the public could automatically sit in on the feasts of crow.

The speech tests which prove that St. Louis English is the standard of America also demonstrate that there are differing dialects of American spoken from the rock-bound ooasts of Maine to the sun-kissed shores of California. So simple a sentence as "Do it now" would be spoken in different ways by inhabitants of different sections of the country. Some of them would put it off until tomorrow. Some would not do it at all. So complex a sentence as "John, who was sick, is well," would be subject to the same modifications, subtle, but none the less, distinguishable. While hope is held that eventually we will have but one standard of speech in this country, that soon the speech of Republican Virginia will be identical with the speech of Democratic Massachusetts, for the present we must face the fact that by their vowels shall you know them. Then let us have done with dialect in novels. The author's effort to produce shadings and inflections may be an accurate transcription of the speech of a character, but the reader will not reproduce the subtle shading. He will read the words in his own variety of English, or, if he lives in St. Louis, he will read the words in standard English. The "naow" the author tries to reproduce becomes "now" to a certain reader, or 4 o'clock tomorrow afternoon to another reader. As the effort to imitate dialect is utterly wasted, even on people who speak the dialect, and would consider it standard speech, and as the dialect makes the book harder to read, dialect in novels should be abolished.

"The First Great English Liberal"

IT is true the prevailing idea of Charles James Fox does him scant justice. It is known, of course, that he was one of the few members of the British Parliament who denounced and opposed the war on the Thirteen Colonies in America. It is more widely known that he was a spendthrift, a gambler, imbiber of strong drink and associate of fancy women. Fox was unfortunate. The great Burke parted company with him, bitterly. Brilliant Pitt, the younger, was against him most of the time. Fox spent his life in the opposition, most of it in leading hopeless and undependable minorities. He was no man's man; he would be bound by no party—he was Charles James Fox. John Drinkwater, eminent playwright and sometime student of history, calls him the first great English Liberal.

It is apparent that Drinkwater, when he took up the subject, had in mind the United States, where his works sell well. The book is not formally addressed to Americans, but it might well be. It is, in large part, a reasonable presentation of the circumstances of the Revolution, from the point of view of an Englishman many years after.

Drinkwater's story is not new. It hardly pretends to be, beyond offering a few papers of minor importance never before published. It does, however, connect the American developments with the scene in England in perhaps a more pointed way than has been done before. And therein lies its value.

Every schoolboy knows, of course, that the Revolution was the fault of King George III. Some schoolboys know, too, that there were Englishmen who opposed the war. Drinkwater shows, further, that the fight in England was the same fight as in America, that the issue there, the same as here, was absolutism against democracy.

The early Hanoverian Georges were a sad lot. The first never could speak English. He was more interested in his German states than in his English kingdom. The second was litle better. There was no possibility of settling with them the nature of constitutional monarchy, for had Parliament balked them they would have gone back to Germany and stayed there. But the third George could speak English. He was proud of the name Briton. He was, indeed, a pious, amiable, albeit, stodgy, family man. He thought, as he had been taught, that the business

JOHN G. NEIHARDT

"The First Great English Liberal"

IT is true the prevailing idea of Charles James Fox does him scant justice. It is known, of course, that he was one of the few members of the British Parliament who denounced and opposed the war on the Thirteen Colonies in America. It is more widely known that he was a spendthrift, a gambler, imbiber of strong drink and associate of fancy women. Fox was unfortunate. The great Burke parted company with him, bitterly. Brilliant Pitt, the younger, was against him most of the time. Fox spent his life in the opposition, most of it in leading hopeless and undependable minorities. He was no man's man; he would be bound by no party—he was Charles James Fox. John Drinkwater, eminent playwright and sometime student of history, calls him the first great English Liberal

It is apparent that Drinkwater, when he took up the subject, had in mind the United States, where his works sell well. The book is not formally addressed to Americans, but it might well be. It is, in large part, a reasonable presentation of the circumstances of the Revolution, from the point of view of an Englishman many years after.

Drinkwater's story is not new. It hardly pretends to be, beyond offering a few papers of minor importance never before published. It does, however, connect the American developments with the scene in England in perhaps a more pointed way than has been done before. And therein lies its value.

Every schoolboy knows, of course, that the Revolution was the fault of King George III. Some schoolboys know, too, that there were Englishmen who opposed the war. Drinkwater shows, further, that the fight in England was the same fight as in America, that the issue there, the same as here, was absolutism against democracy.

The early Hanoverian Georges were a sad lot. The first never could speak English. He was more interested in his German states than in his English kingdom. The second was litle better. There was no possibility of settling with them the nature of constitutional monarchy, for had Parliament balked them they would have gone back to Germany and stayed there. But the third George could speak English. He was proud of the name Briton. He was, indeed, a pious, amiable, albeit, stodgy, family man. He thought, as he had been taught, that the business of a ruler was to rule. The fight was joined.

A few in Parliament thought otherwise, but it did them little good. George cracked the whip over the complaisant Lord North, and North cracked the whip in turn over a bought-and-paid-for majority. The war in America was ignorantly permitted to develop, brutally mismanaged, and ultimately lost, but the fight in England, the struggle for constitutional limitations on the power of the King and the establishment of the people's duly elected representatives as supreme authority, was won—not immediately, but nonetheless decisively. It is in this fight that Fox rises to his full stature.

The ins and outs of it, the reviewer confesses, are not of breathless interest. At least, Drinkwater does not make them so. He contrives, however, to show a strong and gifted man full of the courage of his convictions and fighting for them in the face of imposing odds. So there is, after all, drama in the large, if not in fine, in this account of Charles James Fox.

BY RAIL AND TRAIL. By Mae Foster Jay. (W. A. Wilde Co., Boston.)

The author, who, as the wife of a civil engineer, has spent years in various parts of the West, living in the open, here shares her experiences with young people. The quality of the book ranks it high among the season's juveniles.

LAMBS IN MARCH: AND OTHER ESSAYS. By Anne Bosworth Greene. (Century.)

AMERICA'S PART. By Henry J. Reilly, Brigadier-General. (Cosmopolitan.)

The author entered the great war as Colonel of the 149th U. S. Artillery and became Commander of the Eighty-third Infantry Brigade. The purpose of his book is "to set forth the best obtainable facts, without regard to national or international likes or dislikes, in answer to the question: Did this nation really play an important part in beating Germany on the battlefields of France, or did it merely send a few troops to show the flag to justify a usurious attitude later on?"

SCIENCE AND GOOD BEHAVIOR. By H. M. Parshley. (Bobbs-Merrill).

Believing that a great many people have lost faith in the authority of religion and, as a consequence, have nothing upon which to base a desire for good conduct, the author undertakes to show how a good life may be lived by virtue of scientific truth.

MUNICIPAL OPERA PLANS FOR NEXT SUMMER DISCUSSED

Committee Considers Adoption of a Budget to Prevent Loss by Bad Weather.

Plans for next summers' Municipal Opera were discussed yesterday at a meeting of the Executive Productions Committee of the Municipal Theater Association. Harry L. Sallsbury was elected chairman of the committee and M. E. Holderness, vice chairman.

Adoption of a budget to reduce the organization's expenses so that if bad weather is encountered no loss will result, is favored by the committee. The cancellation last summer of seven performances resulted in a deficit of about $3400.

Selection of operas for 1929 will be made as soon as the length of the season is determined. The chorus again will be limited to St. Louisans.

SCHOOL GIRL'S PAPER WINS HISTORY PRIZE

Norma Foristel, 14, of Cleveland High, Gets E. H. Frost Award on Story of St. Louis

Norma Foristel, 14 years old, 4850A South Broadway, a Cleveland High School pupil, has receivd the $10 prize offered by Edwin H. Frost of Yonkers, N. Y., for the best paper on the early history of St. Louis written by a juvenile user of the Public Library.

Norma is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Francis Foristel, and a niece of Edward W. Foristel, attorney. Her paper of 650 words outlines the facts as to the settling and growth of St. Louis, beginning with a reference to the Mound Builders.

Sixteen papers were submitted. The judges making the award were Dr. Arthur E. Bostwick, librarian of the Public Library; Dr. Alexander N. DeMenil, noted student of St. Louis history, and Carlos F. Hurd of the Post-Dispatch staff.

About the Mound Builders.

Most of the contestants touched upon the Mound Builders. One writer apparently confused the builders with their work. She wrote: "The early settlers were the French, the mounds and Spaniards The permanent settlers were the French, the Germans and the English."

"St. Louis," said the same contestant, "when discovered, was a dense forest with a few log cabins here and there."

Another writer, who showed a disposition to give all possible credit to the city's early residents, said:

"The Indians were nice to the French when they first came, but they soon began to get troublesome, because they stole trinkets from the French. The Indians didn't know any better, and that is why they did it. * * * Why did they call the settlement St. Louis? Well, I know why, because Louis IX was a good man, a religious man, so called a saint, and that is why they named it St. Louis.

"Now as we know, the French had a good character, because they like to make friends with everyone, and because they were nice people. * * *

"We are prosperous now, and it is our duty to keep it that way, because the early French people started us out right."

Naming of the Clyt.

Several explanations of the naming of the city were offered. Here is one that credits Pierre Laclede with the realization that he was no saint:

"The people wanted to name the city after Laclede because he was such a good man, but Laclede thought the King of France, who was Louis IX, was a better man."

Still another explanation of the city's name:

"Many people have wondered why it was not named Laclede after its founder, and this is the answer. Laclede did not want the notoriety of having it named after himself."

Several speak of the city's commercial future, and one writes:

"The French started a very good fur trading center, and it is up to us to keep it that way and improve it more if we can, by making it a leading fur trading center in the world."

New York Day by Day

By O. O. McIntyre

NEW YORK, Nov. 15.

At the peak of a brilliant career he was imprisoned in a wrecked sleeper abroad and frightfully scalded. A famed Swiss surgeon was called in. For several days the patient was cowled in cotton and then a careful examination was made. The surgeon called his wife and told her her husband would never see again. The organs of sight were destroyed beyond surgical repair.

"Our fight," he said, "must be psychological. Under no circumstances must his plight be mentioned to him, or must he be treated as one who is blind." He returned to his patient and a week later said: "You are the most courageous man I have ever known. See to it you always retain that courage." Then he removed the bandage.

From that day, seven years ago, to this no mention has been made to him of his blindness or has he ever mentioned it to another. He lives exactly as one who has full use of his optical faculties. He rides well and is interested in fine horses.

A brace of secretaries keep him abreast of the news of the day and the latest in literature. He even follows the progress of comic strips. When he is told of a good play or a good book he will say: "I must read that," or "I must see that."

He has learned to walk about his district alone and while he wears black glasses there are many meeting him on these walks who do not know he is sightless. He has mastered the violin by ear and carried on the direction of a business. Those who meet him since his accident have always been impressed by his cheerfulness. In refusing to submit to his bludgeoning, he has in many ways mastered it. By a sort of subtle sense he is able to describe certain things others see but which he does not.

A RESTAURANT recently had broccoli on its menu for dinner. Almost simultaneously every patron who ordered the dish began to look about wanly and hopefully for a little privacy. All required medical attention and recovered. It developed a poisonous fluid used by the grower in destroying insects that attacked roots had impregnated the vegetable.

THERE is a little coffee colored Panamanian boxer with a hefty wallop who has become a figure along the Illuminated Aisle. He wears black silk shirts with collars to match and flaming red four in hand ties. His cane is all white as are the buttons on his shoes. And dangling around his neck is a monocle attached to a pink string. "Jimmy Walker," observed a Broadwayite, "in mourning."

NEW YORK has seen the final word in motor stage coaches—used to travel from coast to coast. It is the first motor coach to provide sleeping quarters. Twenty-six passengers are carried—two in each compartment. The cushions of the seats are made into berths at night. There is ample room and wash basins with running water, also a compact kitchen. The busses will not stop save to discharge or take on passengers at certain points where relief drivers are picked up.

THE corner popcorn stand does not thrive in New York, somehow. In almost every other large city they have become institutions manned usually by gentlemen with a lion tamer's roach in their hair. A few are seen on the lower East Side, but uptown they have become almost memories.

ONE thing may be said for the reputed bad manners of a New Yorker. He never raps at your hotel door without first being announced by telephone.

ADD metropolitan annoyances: Those gentlemen with "confidential messages" from friends who must see you in person and then try to sell you membership in exclusive clubs.

THE latest among New York's ultra sportsmen is polar bear hunting in Alaska. And most of us, what with riding to hounds and such, haven't yet caught up with our pheasant shooting.

DEANS OF GRADUATE SCHOOLS MEET HERE

Executives Attend Convention of Association of American Universities.

Deans from the 28 outstanding graduate schools in America gathered today at Hotel Chase for the three-day convention of the Association of American Universities, a body formed 13 years ago to raise American scholarship standards.

Dean Frederick Woodbridge and Dr. Adam Le Roy Jones of Columbia University; Dean Gordon J. Laing and Dean Henry G. Gale of the University of Chicago; Dean George H. Chase of Harvard, Dean Henry S. Graves of Yale and Sir Ronert Falconer, president of the University of Toronto, are among the outstanding scholars who will attend the conference.

Dr. Otto Heller, dean of the graduate school of Washington University, will be host to the visiting scholars at an informal dinner tonight, following the first business session of deans this afternoon.

Papers on educational problems will be read at sessions tomorrow in the Woman's Building at Washington University. A formal dinner, tendered the delegates by Acting Chancellor Throop and the corporation of Washington University, will be given tomorrow night at the University Club. The conference closes Saturday with a visit to the Washington-Grinnell football game.

Those attending the conference are Dr. David A. Robertson of the American Council of Education; Dr. Stephen P. Duggan of the Institute of International Education; Dean Charles B. Lipman and Prof. A. O. Leuschner, University of California; Dean Hardee Chamblis, Catholic University of America; President Wallace W. Atwood and Prof. Elmer Ekblaw of Clark University; Dean R. A. Emerson of Cornell; Dean Arthur H. Daniels and Prof. Phineas L. Windsor of the University of Illinois; Dean Ferdinand Payne of Indiana University; Dean Carl E. Seashore of the State University of Iowa; Prof. Tenney Frank of Johns Hopkins; Dean Ellis B. Stouffer of the University of Kansas; Dean John R Effinger and Dean G. Carl Huber of the University of Michigan; Dean Guy Stanford Ford and Dr. L. B. Wilson of the University of Minnesota; Dean Walter Miller and Dean Frederick M. Tisdell of the University of Missouri; Dean Herman G. James of the University of Nebraska; Dean J. F. Royster of the University of North Carolina; President Walter Dill Scott and Dean James A. James of Northwestern; Dean William McPherson of Ohio State University; Dean H. Lamar Crosby of the University of Pennsylvania; Prof. W. F. LUNCHEON GUEST

MISS LOUISE RUMSEY.

MISS RUMSEY, debutante daughter of Mrs. Louise Chappell Rumsey of Hotel Chase, was the guest of honor at a luncheon yesterday which Mrs. Oliver L. Garrison Sr. of Brentmoor gave at the St. Louis Woman's Club.

The marriage of Miss Gertrude Renz Reasor, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. William E. Reasor of Hampton Park drive, and Warren Harold Kendrick, son of Mrs. A. W Kendrick, 216 North Elm street, Webster Groves, will take place tonight at 8:30 o'clock at the Delmar Baptist Church, the Rev. Dr. Ryland Knight officiating.

The bride will be attended by a group of former schoolmates, Miss Helen Smith of Hammond, Ind., maid of honor; Miss Maxine Bray, Miss Gertrude Hoppe and Miss Betty Burley, all of St. Louis; Miss Helen Eberle of Webster Groves; Miss Irene Parrett of Xenia, O.; Miss Alice Lanterman of Kansas City, Miss Virginia Chesrown of Olney, Ill., and Mrs. Robert Patterson of East Orange, N. J., sister of the bridegroom, bridesmaids.

They will wear taffeta and tulle gowns, made in the bouffant mode, in the autumn shades, and will carry bouquets to match. They are to wear their gifts from the bride, crystal chokers and bracelets.

The bride will be gowned in a period gown of ivory satin and rose point lace made with a satin court train. Her veil is of rose point lace and she will carry lilies of the valley. Mr. Kendrick gave his bride a platinum and diamond bracelet, which she will wear as her only jewelry.

Sam Hodgdon will be best man, and the groomsmen are to be Proctor Wright, Robert Schnellbacher, Gershon Ward Jr., Newell Franks, Charles Bowman, all of Webster Groves; James Yates Jr., Ray Fleming and Charles Reasor, brother of the bride, of St. Louis. Mr. Kendrick gave his groomsmen ostrich leather billfolds.

A reception will follow the ceremony at the Reasor home in Hampton Park. After a three-week honeymoon in the South, Mr. and Mrs. Kendrick will make their home at 216 North Elm street, Webster Groves.

SOCIAL ACTIVITIES

MISS ISABELLE BROOKS BOND, debutante daughter of Mrs. H. Wheeler Bond, 17 Vandeventer place, will be the guest of honor at a tea to be given this afternoon by Mrs. Charles Edward Potter and her daughter, Miss Rita Potter, at their home, 5106 Washington boulevard. Several hundred guests have been invited from 4 to 6 o'clock.

The decorations will be in the shades of red combined with white. Smilax will be used about the house and white roses in the music room, where the hostess, her daughter, the guest of honor and Mrs. Bond will receive their guests. An interesting feature of the background will be a lovely cream-colored shawl which has been in the Potter family for more than 200 years, draping the grand piano.

Mrs. Potter will be gowned in black chiffon velvet; Mrs. Bond will wear blue velvet and Miss Rita Potter will wear burnt orange velvet with flounces of matching tulle. She will carry roses to match. The guest of honor will wear red transparent velvet and will carry white roses.

The tea table in the dining room, and the punch bowl table in the reception hall, will have an arrangement of red roses and steevia. The tea table will be lighted by red tapers in silver candelabra, and the candies will be in red with touches of green.

The debutantes serving will be Miss Harriet Moreno, Miss Elizabeth Ferguson, Miss Isabell Kirkpatrick, Miss Louise Rumsey, Miss Mary Scudder Hallett, Miss Marion Bischoff, Miss Janet Lawton, Miss Elizabeth Fusz, Miss Janet Harris, Miss Marie Von Phul Michael, M Nancy Blair, Miss Gladys Muckerman and Miss Louise Rexford.

In addition, there will be three of last year's debutantes, Miss Grace Moulton, Miss Marie Reine Fusz and Miss Mary Scudder Bond, sister of the honor guest, and a group of Mrs. Potter's friends will assist, including Mrs. Bransford Lewis, Mrs. Carl Sommers, Mrs. Joseph C. Darst, Mrs. L. William Ray, Mrs. Albert Happel, Mrs. Paul B. Jamison and Mrs. Louis Johnson.

Mr. and Mrs. Frank V. Hammar, 7 Hortense place, have departed for Washington, where they will pass a week

John M. Schiff, son of Mr. and Mrs. Mortimer L. Schiff of 932 Fifth avenue, New York, has arrived in St. Louis to remain three months. He is a guest at Hotel Chase.

Miss Isabell Kirkpatrick, debutante daughter of Mr. and Mrs. H. C. Kirkpatrick, 6301 Washington boulevard, will be complimented with a theater party Monday, Dec. 17, to be given by her uncle and aunt, Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Scott Kirkpatrick. Following the theater there will be a supper dance at the Opera Club at the Coronado Hotel.

Mrs. Clinton L. Whittemore, 6420 Forsythe boulevard, and her daughter, Miss Elise, departed Friday for New York. They will attend the Princeton-Yale football game in Princeton, N. J., Saturday.

Mr. and Mrs. Thomas N. Dysart, 13 Kingsbury place, have sent out invitations for a dinner dance at the St. Louis Country Club Dec. 1 in honor of Miss Alice Chapman, debutante daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Berr G. Chapman Jr.

Mrs. Margaret Chapman Byers has sent out cards for a musical tea Sunday afternoon at 4:30 o'clock at her studios at 5227 Waterman avenue.

By the Associated Press.

ROCHESTER, Tex., Nov. 15.—A suicide verdict in the case of Mrs. Ernest Stewart, actress, who was shot and killed here last night during the performance of a play, was returned today by Jesse G. Foster, County Judge.

Although it had been thought Mrs. Stewart, whose stage name was Gene Gladstone, had been shot accidentally, Judge Foster said evidence showed she had a disagreement with her husband, who was manager of the Merry Madcap Stock Co., over family matters.

Witnesses said Mrs. Stewart stopped her husband back stage and said: "You did not keep your promise to be, but I am going to keep mine." Then she drew a pistol and shot herself.

HOOVER TO SPEAK IN EACH NATION ON GOOD-WILL TOUR

added, however, as Colombia, Ecuador and Bolivia are urging upon the State Department that they be included in the good-will calls.

With the possible exception of Santiago, Chile, Mr. Hoover plans to spend only 24 hours in each of the capitals where he will call. The schedules probably will be so arranged that he will arrive in each early in the day and leave late at night.

Wife to Accompany Him.

The President-elect is to be accompanied on his tour by Mrs. Hoover and their son, Allan. The others in the official party will be Henry P. Fletcher, American Ambassador to Italy, representing the State Department; George Akerson, secretary to Mr. Hoover; George Barr Baker of New York, a personal friend; Commander Augustin T. Beauregard, U. S. naval aid to the President-elect, and a force of four clerks and interpreters.

With the hope of clearing up the large volume of mail that has been pouring into his home here since election day, Mr. Hoover has trebeld the working force in his offices, and he expects to have answers to all letters in the mail before he leaves Palo Alto next Sunday night for San Pedro. He will board the Maryland immediately after his arrival there at 9:30 a. m. Monday.

The influx of friends to Palo Alto to say good-by to the President-elect already has started. Among his callers yesterday were Gov. C. C. Young of California and Senator Samuel M. Shortridge, who lives in Menlo Park, only a short distance from the Hoover home.

Continued publications concerning possible selections for the Hoover Cabinet brought a statement yesterday on behalf of the President-elect, that he had not discussed Cabinet appointments with anyone and that he would not do so until after his return from his Latin-American tour early in January.

Information also was obtained that Mr. Hoover does not contemplate returning to Washington until the day before his inauguration March 4. It is fairly certain now that he will establish his headquarters at some point in Florida, yet to be selected, and will summon there party leaders and others with whom he will discuss affairs of his administration.

Brazilian Ambassador Asks Hoover to Visit Sao Paulo.

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 15.—Explaining that he had been prevented from carrying out a plan to go to California to tender to Herbert Hoover the official salute of his Government, Ambassador Amaral of Brazil, in a telegram yesterday, requested the President-elect to extend his stay in Brazil to include a visit to the coffee-producing region of its State of Sao Paulo.

The Ambassador's message said that the Brazilian Government had ordered him at his own request to proceed to California to tender the salute "as the first contact" of Hoover with Brazil. The early date for Hoover's departure and the demands of State functions in Washington, however, prevented his going to California, the Ambassador added. Do Amaral assured Mr. Hoover: "The Brazilian Government and the Brazilian nation will warmly welcome your excellency in the country."

Capt. Collyer's Estate to Aunt.

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, Nov. 15.—The will of Capt. Charles Bascom Collyer, transcontinental pilot who was killed Nov. 3, was probated yesterday disclosing that the aviator left all his property in New York State, valued at "over $1000," to his aunt, Estelle A. Smithey of Farmville, Va. Collyer, a native of Jetersville, Va., was killed when the Yankee Doodle crashed into the side of a canyon near Prescott, Ariz., in an attempt to better its own West to East transcontinental record.

COOLIDGE GETS LL.D. FROM CATHOLIC U.

Degree Presented to President at Washington in Presence of Many Hierarchs.

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 15.—An honorary degree of doctor of laws was conferred upon President Coolidge yesterday by the Catholic University of America when he attended the inauguration of Mgr James H. Ryan as the new rector of the institution. The degree was conferred upon the President by Archbishop Curley of Baltimore, counselor of the university.

Cardinals O'Connell of Boston Dougherty of Philadelphia and Hayes of New York, and Mgr. Fumasoni-Biondi, apostolic delegate to the United States, wearing the full regalia of their positions, greeted Mr. and Mrs. Coolidge at the University Hall and accompanied them in the procession to the platform where the ceremonies took place.

Numerous members of the Cabinet and of the diplomatic corps, in addition to many Bishops and university professors, also were on the platform. The end of the large hall was draped with American flags on a background of the papal colors.

Cardinal O'Connell greeted the President, declaring that Catholic education had often been misunderstood, that no student of a Catholic university could ever acquire ideas subversive of American institutions or inimical to public order.

As a fellow New Englander, Cardinal O'Connell said he had often had occasion to observe the highest importance which the chief executive placed on religious influence in Government and the noble example he had set in the application of Christian principles in the administration of public affairs.

FINDS POLICEMAN IN BAR HOLDING GLASS OF BEER

Capt. Stinger Suspends Patrolman After Ordering Saloon Raided; Proprietor Arrested.

Police Capt. William Stinger saw a policeman enter a saloon at 1724 North Sarah street as he was driving by yesterday afternoon.

When the policeman failed to reappear within a reasonable time Capt. Stinger investigated and found him standing at the bar wit hhis hand under his coat. Capt. Stinger withdrew the hand and found it held a glass of beer. He promptly called police from the Deer Street Station and the saloon was raided. Frank Ryan, the proprietor, was arrested and 16 cases of home brew, two gallons of whisky, and 10 gallons of wine confiscated.

Sidney Callahan, the patrolman who was in the saloon, was suspended. He said he went in the place to see if everything was all right, found the glass of beer on the counter and was inspecting it when Capt. Stinger entered.

FIRST PRESBYTERIAN TO MARK 111TH ANNIVERSARY TONIGHT

Oldest Protestant Church West of Mississippi in New Building at 7200 Delmar.

The First Presbyterian Church, the first Protestant church established in St. Louis and the oldest Protestant church with a continuous history west of the Mississippi River, will observe its one hundred and eleventh anniversary tonight at 8 o'clock in its new building at 7200 Delmar boulevard.

Dr. R. Calvin Dobson, pastor, will relate the history of the church. Pastors of other Presbyterian congregations of the city will participate in devotional exercises.

The First Presbyterian Church was organized Nov. 15, 1817, by Dr. Salmon P. Giddings, missionary from Connecticut. The congregation numbered eight persons. The original church, built in 1825, was at Fourth and Locust streets. Subsequent sites were at Fourteenth and Locust streets and Washington boulevard and Sarah street. The present church was dedicated last Sunday.

Relief from Gas Stomach Pains Dizziness

The doctors tell us that 90 per cent of all sickness is due to stomach and bowel troubles. You can't be well if your digestion is bad; you are likely to get sick unless you relish food and digest it properly.

Tanlac has a wonderful record as a relief from digestive troubles, even those of years' standing.

Mrs. J. M. Roath, of 1200 W. 14th St., Sedalia, Mo., says: "For 15 years I suffered from stomach trouble, constipation and nervous headaches. Tanlac relieved me of the headaches and I gained weight. I ate more and enjoyed my food."

If you suffer from gas, pains in the stomach or bowels, dizziness, nausea, constipation or torpid liver; if you have no appetite, can't sleep and are nervous and all run down, you need Tanlac. It is good, pure medicine, made of roots, herbs and barks. Get a bottle from your druggist today. Money back if it doesn't help you.

IF BACK HURTS BEGIN ON SALTS

No man or woman can make a mistake by flushing the kidneys occasionally, says a well-known authority. Too much rich food creates acids which clog the kidney pores so that they sluggishly filter or strain only part of the waste and poisons from the blood. Then you get sick. Rheumatism, headaches, liver trouble, nervousness, constipation, dizziness, sleeplessness, bladder disorders often come from sluggish kidneys.

The moment you feel a dull ache in the kidneys or your back hurts, or if the urine is cloudy, offensive, full of sediment, irregular of passage, or attended by a sensation of scalding, begin to drink soft water in quantities; also get about four ounces of Jad Salts from any reliable pharmacy and take a tablespoonful in a glass of water before breakfast for a few days and your kidneys may then act fine.

This famous salts is made from the acid of grapes and lemon juice, combined with lithia, and has been used for years to help flush clogged kidneys and stimulate them to activity, also to help neutralize the acids in the system so they no longer cause irritation, thus often relieving bladder disorders.

Jad Salts is inexpensive and cannot injure; makes a delightful effervescent lithia-water drink, which everyone can take now and then to help keep the kidneys clean and the blood pure, thereby often preventing serious kidney complications.

FIREMAN SAW THE SIGNAL IN TIME

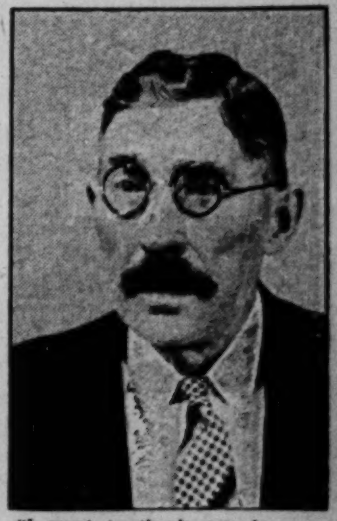
When interviewed a few days ago at his home by the special representative from the Herb Juice Medicine Company, Mr. George H. Knittle, stationary fireman, who resides at 1932 North Market street, St. Louis, Mo., enthusiastically told how Miller's Herb Extract (formerly known as Herb Juice), had saved him many hours and days of unnecessary suffering, because a few bottles of this remarkable remedy brought him relief and good health, such as he was never able to get from any other medicine, he states.



"I want to thank you for your wonderful medicine," stated Mr. Knittle, "and in a few days I was coming by to see you and personally thank you for the wonderful relief and good health your Herb Extract Remedy brought me. But your coming to my place inquiring about my condition shows that you believed the medicine would help me, and sure enough it has. Really, more then I ever expected it would when I first started using it, for I had about lost faith in medicines. But I find your Herb Extract different than anything else. It will do the work and it doesn't take long either. I only used a few bottles, but I got lasting benefits from what I did use. Before I began on it I was in a terrible fix—just all out of sorts in every way. My entire system seemed to be deranged and so completely upset and out of order that I never enjoyed a moment's ease or pleasure. I was in misery all the time. For I had pains all through my body. I suffered terribly with rheumatism, had a bad case of neuritis, liver and kidneys were out of order, stomach all upset, gas would form and cause me to bloat something terribly. I was losing in weight and strength every day, my appetite was very poor, I had no energy to do a thing. I was in bed part of the time, due to my poor state of health. But the turning point came when I used my first bottle of Miller's Herb Extract. And from then on I improved rapidly with each dose, until I had used several bottles; then my troubles were gone. I felt like a new man. Yes, I saw the health signal in time to save me from the impending trouble ahead. I made quick use of the time, got started on the medicine right away after being told it would relieve me of my ailments. Well, it did the work for me and every chance I get I will tell someone about it. Really, I've never found the equal of this good Herb medicine."

Hundreds call daily to see the Herb Juice Medicine Company's special representative, who has established headquarters at Wolff-Wilson Drug Store, Seventh and Washington, to learn more of this great medicine that is bringing health and happiness to so many St. Louis citizens.

SOAKED BY RAIN AND BATTERED BY SEAS ALL NIGHT

SWIMMING TOWARD SHIP WHEN SAVED

Unable to Climb Ladder When Picked Up by Relief Craft, Attracted by Waving Piece of Shirt.

(Paul A. Dana, representative of the Radio Corporation of America in South America, a passenger on the Vestris, and Mrs. Clara Ball, a stewardess of the Vestris, were called the pluckiest pair he had ever seen by Capt. Schuyler Cummings of the American Shipper, who rescued them. They had been floating in the water 20 hours at the time of their rescue. Dana tells his story of the foundering and the subsequent hours of terror in the following story).

(By Paul A. Dana, in a Hospital, as Told to Lorena A. Hickok, Associated Press Staff Writer.)

(Copyright, 1928.)

NEW YORK, Nov. 15.—Our first night out, Saturday night, the Vestris began to hit rough weather. As the night progressed, the storm got worse, until, before the night was over, we were in the worst storm I ever saw on the sea.

It was late that night—perhaps a little after midnight—that a thing happened which I think started the trouble that ended in the tragic sinking of the Vestris.

Two big waves hit her, almost simultaneously, bow and stern. The ship quivered from end to end. You could almost feel her wrenching. The next day she developed a leak, and I believe that started the leak. One of her plates must have been wrenched loose.

Only Five at Breakfast.

It was rough Saturday night—and Sunday was rougher. Only four of the passengers beside myself were down for breakfast.

The minute I stepped out of my cabin that morning, I began to feel uneasy. The Vestris was listing. I had been on steamers before that listed, but I had never seen quite such a list before. It looked bad.

In the dining salon that morning I ran into Capt. Frederick Sorenson, and we started to talk things over. He did not like that list either. Inasmuch as he was a sailor, I decided he must know what he was talking about—that he was a good man to stay with. We spent most of the day together.

Most of Passengers Ill.

Whether the other passengers were uneasy, I don't know. Most of them were violently seasick and spent the whole day in their bunks. As I said, there were only five down for breakfast. No more showed up for lunch or dinner.

By the middle of the afternoon, while the storm still continued with no apparent let-up, the list

This famous DEVIL'S FOOD BAR makes any dinner a party

IT SURELY MAKES A HIT WITH THE MEN! Delicious devil's food frosted with bitter-sweet chocolate icing. "Devil's Food Bar" I call it.
"You bet it's good!"

BY ALICE ADAMS PROCTOR

You'll find it at your grocer's... always fresh. And just as delicious, I believe, as any cake you could bake yourself!

MADAM, would you like to make a food discovery of major importance?

A discovery that saves you time and trouble.. and frees you forever from the tedious drudgery of baking?

Then today at your grocer order a Hostess Devil's Food Bar. Serve it to your family for supper.

This cake, I believe, will absolutely satisfy. It will convince you that baking cake at home is utter folly.

You see, I know the sunny, immaculate kitchens where it is made. I know the talented pastry cooks who bake it.

I know, too, the ingredients that are used. Carefully selected eggs. Specially selected flour. Pure refined sugar.

Try the other Hostess Cakes, too. Chocolate Layer. Silver Bar. The famous Cup Cakes.

There are no bargains in health

To safeguard precious health and preserve your teeth, avail yourself of the best skill and knowledge of dental science. It is economy. It is the only reasonably sure means of preventing disease that attacks neglected gums, thus ravaging the system, robbing youth, and often causing loss of teeth.

See your dentist every six months. Brush your teeth regularly. And don't forget that teeth are only as healthy as the gums. So brush gums vigorously, morning and night, with the dentifrice made for the purpose, Forhan's for the Gums. It helps to keep them healthy.

After you have used Forhan's for a few days you'll notice a vast improvement in the way your gums look and feel. They will be firmer, sounder—thus strong enough to resist disease. Also you'll find that Forhan's safely and effectively cleans teeth white and protects them from acids which cause decay.

There are no bargains in health. So obtain the best protection that money can buy. Get a tube of Forhan's from your druggist and start using it today.

had become so pronounced that all the furniture that wasn't fastened down in the dining salon and in the smoking room had slid over to the starboard side, where it was crashing around as the ship rolled.

"After dinner, Sorenson and I went into the smoking room and started for the bar. We managed to find two chairs wedged in on the starboard side of the smoking room, from which we could reach around into the bar. I had a couple of whisky and sodas, felt a little better, and went to bed about 10 o'clock. After wedging my bed into a corner of the cabin so it couldn't slide around, I got to sleep.

Water Even With Windows.

"My cabin was on the top deck, starboard side. When I woke up at 8 o'clock Monday morning there was the water—right on a level with my windows. There was water sloshing around on the floor of my cabin, too.

My steward came in, groaning, with a badly wrenched shoulder. There was apparently a leak, he said, the hold was filling with water, and he had been bailing—with a bucket—all night. The cargo had shifted, too, and the ship had tipped clear over until the water was on a level with my windows on the top deck.

I dresed as quickly as I could, ate the banana which was all my steward could get for my breakfast, and went up on the bow port deck.

Cargo Thrown Overboard.

The crew was throwing the cargo overboard—all the stuff they could handle. It looked like bales of cloth and such stuff. Their derricks weren't working, so they couldn't get rid of the heavier things, like automobiles.

A little crowd of men stood up there, leaning over the railing and watching the crew throw the stuff overboard, some of them had come out with their life preservers on. They looked badly scared. Although I had dressed myself that morning with the idea that I'd probably have to leave the ship before the day was over, I tried not to take such a dark view of the thing. Some of us did what we could to cheer the more timid ones—told them this was just a precaution and so on.

Hard Wind Piles Up Waves.

The sky had cleared during the night, and now the sun was shining brightly. The wind was still blowing hard, however—and those waves, great, towering black waves—they looked 40 feet high.

Officers were going about cheery but noncommittal. They never told us anything. I never knew until after the Vestris had gone down that they had even sent out an S O S, although, when I went into the smoking room for a little while that morning and tried to read and divert my mind, I thought I heard the radio sort of sputtering.

Finds Trunk Under Water.

Once I went back to my cabin to try to rescue my money that I had left in a trunk, no use—the trunk was under water and wedged in under my bunk. I got my passport, stuck a pack of cigarettes in my pocket, and left—for good.

The ship kept on tipping. It looked to me as though she had a list of 45 degrees. You could hardly walk on the deck.

At 10:30 o'clock, the women and children were brought up and were told to put on life preservers. Still we got no definite information from the officers or crew.

The women were wonderful. Some of them were crying quietly, but there was no hysteria. One of them held in her arms a baby not more than 8 months old. All the children had been bundled up. They knew now that they would probably have to leave the ship.

Tries to Cheer Up Boy.

"Isn't this fun?" I said to one little fellow with bright blue eyes, trying to cheer him up. He looked at his mother, who was crying, and nodded solemnly.

At 11:30 they started to launch the lifeboats, over the port side—the side that was up as she listed. Then the trouble began. It took them two hours to launch those boats, an operation that usually takes about 10 minutes.

The difficulty was that the lifeboats kept catching on the sides of the ship. The outsides of the lifeboats were covered with clapboards, like a frame house, and these would catch on the overlapping steel plates of the ship's hull.

They tried to hold the lifeboats out—away from the ship—by pushing with oars. It was a slow and painful process.

Hole in Side of Life Boat.

Boat No. 8, the lifeboat to which I was assigned, had a hole torn in her side as they were letting her down. They patched it up with a piece of tin before they let us in, but the tin didn't hold.

When the boats were about 10 feet from the water, they told us to climb down the rope ladder and get in. Two boats were filled with women and children before they filled No. 8.

In No. 8, before I got in, were 10 women and two children — two youngsters about 6 or 8 years old. One of the women was Mrs. Clara Ball, with whom I subsequently floated on the piece of wreckage. Another was Mrs. Inoye, wife of the counselor of the Japanese Embassy at Buenos Aires. The ship's bartender was aboard, and our crew consisted of four Negro sailors.

40 Dive From Vestris.

One boat never got away at all. It was still on deck when she sank. They had tried to launch some from her starboard side, but they had had to cut them away before they could be filled. These were rowed around to where her keel had been when she went down, and they picked up a lot of the swimmers.

She went down silently—with just a little puff of steam. Her boilers must have been cold. The engine room had not been functioning all morning.

Just a few minutes after we pulled away, our lifeboat began to fill with water. The tin patch tore away. She had air compartments, however, so that we could stay in her, even after she was under water.

Still the women tried to keep calm, although the tears streamed down their cheeks. There was no screaming.

It wasn't long before a big wave came along and capsized us. I got caught under the lifeboat as she turned over. I wasn't hurt, except for a little scrape on my neck. As I struggled out from under, I saw a woman's foot bob up. I grabbed it and hauled her with me. She was Mrs. Ball.

But the waves were pounding it to pieces. The air compartments, stored under the seats, tore loose. She was breaking up.

Great black waves—they looked to be 100 feet high from where we were—kept pounding down on us.

I saw a piece of wood—wreckage—floating in the water nearby. "Come on," I said. "We swam to it.

"Take hold of one end," I told her, "and I'll take the other." Silently she did so—never a whimper out of her. We then proceeded to make ourselves as comfortable as we could—to wait for help.

The water was warm—warmer than you find it in an indoor swimming tank. It was so warm, in fact, that you hardly gasped when you plunged in. The fact that it was warm probably helped to save our lives. But it was ennervating, too.

Mrs. Ball was fully dressed—with a coat and sweater on under her life preserver. She had on gloves, which certainly saved her hands. Mine are all cut up.

"What in the world is that you have stuck in the front of your life preserver?" I asked her.

She grinned and pulled up a slipper. Her feet were so narrow, she explained, that she had a hard time getting shoes to fit, and she wanted to save this pair if she could.

Through the afternoon we

Leaves Tobacco Tin as All-time Calling Card

U. S. A.
Gentlemen:

While in Banff, Alberta, in 1909, I climbed Tunnell Mountain. On top of this mountain there is a cairn of stones where tourists leave their cards with remarks about the scenery, etc. Not having a card with me, I left a tin of Edgeworth Sliced, scribbled my name and address on a piece of paper, and said, "Have a fill on me."

I have kept up a haphazard correspondence with one of three who wrote me thanking me for the Pipeful of Edgeworth. What makes me write you is that today from Australia I received two slices of Edgeworth with the words, "Have a fill on me," so you see Edgeworth keeps friends friendly.

Yours sincerely,

No wonder we named this Reo the Flying Cloud

The fastest, sleekest, staunchest clipper ship that ever swished by a foreign merchantman on the high seas and dropped her so far astern that her crew could only gape. That was the Flying Cloud in the gallant 50's when American clippers showed the world how Yankees could design ships, build them and sail them.

Translate this clipper ship craftsmanship into terms of motor car craftsmanship—and you'll know why we named it the Reo Flying Cloud. It's got speed. It's got power. It's easy to handle. It can do 60 miles on a country road and hug it almost as closely as it can a paved road at 70. It can climb hills before which another car would hesitate. It can pick up at a pace that's equalled only by the abruptness at which you can pull it down to a dead stop.

Maybe you've never sat behind the wheel of a Flying Cloud — and maybe (if you haven't) you're missing a real bet.

Gas Made Her Dizzy Staggers Like Drunk

"I had stomach gas so bad I would get dizzy and stagger. Adlerika has made my bowels regular and has surely helped my stomach."—Mrs. E. Bundy.

Adlerika, a simple glycerin, buckthorn bark, saline compound, acts on BOTH upper and lower bowel and brings out foul matter you would never believe was in your system. This old matter may have poisoned you for months and caused GAS, sour stomach, headache or nervousness.

Try this simple proof: Take any medicine which acts on lower bowel only—most laxatives do. After your bowels have moved, take Adlerika and in a short time you will be astonished at how much MORE sour, old matter and GAS is brought out!

Dr. H. L. Shoub, New York reports: "In addition to intestinal cleansing, Adlerika checks the growth of intestinal bacteria."

Dr. J. Weaver: "In my 50 years' practice I have found nothing to excel Adlerika."

J. E. Puckett: "After using Adlerika I feel better than for 20 years. Awful impurities were eliminated."

Give you stomach and bowels a REAL cleansing with Adlerika and see how good you feel! Just ONE spoonful relieves GAS and chronic constipation. At leading druggists. Sold in St. Louis by Wolff-Wilson Drug Stores. Send for FREE checkerboard. ADLERIKA, Dept. P-96, St. Paul, Minn.

What Dr. Caldwell Learned in 47 Years Practice

Dr. Caldwell watched the results of constipation for 47 years, and believed that no matter how careful people are of their health, diet and exercise, constipation will occur from time to time regardless of how much one tries to avoid it. Of next importance, then, is how to treat it when it comes. Dr. Caldwell always was in favor of getting as close to nature as possible, hence his remedy for constipation, known as Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin, is a mild vegetable compound. It can not harm the most delicate system and is not a habit-forming preparation. Syrup Pepsin is pleasant-tasting, and youngsters love it. It does not gripe. Thousands of mothers have written us to that effect.

Dr. Caldwell did not approve of drastic physics and purges. He did not believe they were good for human beings to put into their system. In a practice of 47 years he never saw any reason for their use when a medicine like Syrup Pepsin will empty the bowels just as promptly, more cleanly and gently without griping and harm to the system.

Keep free from constipation! It robs your strength, hardens your arteries and brings on premature old age. Do not let a day go by without a bowel movement. Do not sit and hope, but go to a druggist and get one of the generous bottles of Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin. Take the proper dose that night and by morning you will feel like a different person. Use for yourself and members of the family in constipation, biliousness, sour and crampy stomach, bad breath, no appetite, headaches, and to break up fevers and colds. Note special coupon offer:

Your Inner-System Can Be Restored to More Normal, Healthy Action

THE KONJOLA MAN

He is personally explaining the new medicine that has been a sensation in Chicago, Detroit and other great cities of the Central States, and has brought new health to thousands.

Konjola is a new formula, containing the medicinal juices extracted from 22 natural plants and herbs. It is made into one compound which restores the stomach, liver, kidneys and bowels to better health and activity. Konjola banishes poisons from within the system and cleanses the important functionary organs. Thus it ends the aches, pains and miseries so common among people today.

New feelings of health come from the effect of Konjola in a natural and safe way. The action of this medicine is amazingly quick and the relief, in nearly all cases, is permanent and sure.

clung to the spar. It wasn't so bad, and having something to cling to made it easier to keep our heads out of the water. Only every now and then a great big wave would come crashing down on us, almost knocking the life out of our bodies and smothering us in foam.

I think the hardest thing was to keep from getting excited and floundering about. We had to save our strength and not move about unnecessarily. Mrs. Ball was wonderful. She showed iron nerve. Never a whimper out of her.

Several times during the afternoon we tried to hail the lifeboats, but they couldn't hear us or see us because of the waves. I don't think they passed us up deliberately. It's pretty hard to spot swimmers in waves like those.

Begins to Fear Sharks.

Toward sunset it began to cloud up. And then a thought flashed into my mind that made me feel a little sick all over. Sharks.

I don't know whether Mrs. Ball ever thought of them or not. If she did, she kept still about it.

During that long night of waves and wind and rain we clung to the spar—talking intermittently. She told me that she was a stewardess. When we made for the spar and for several hours after we had attached ourselves to it, I had no idea who she was.

I confess that we spent a good deal of time cussing out Capt. Carey for not getting those radio messages out earlier. Mrs. Ball had heard that one went out at 8 o'clock Monday morning and had been canceled.

We agreed, though, that it was a tough break for the Captain. Nobody likes to admit he's licked until he has to. Probably he thought the Vestris would ride it out.

I'd like to know if it's true, though, that he sent out an S O S at 8 o'clock and then canceled it.

The night wore on. Several times we saw the searchlights of ships. They were too far away to see us then, but it gave us hope. And several times fish brushed against my body in the water and I squirmed. Mrs. Ball never said a word, if she noticed them. If she was undergoing what I was, she never let on at all. I decided to hold on anyway and wait until a shark actually attacked me before I let go.

At daybreak came the worst moment of all for us. As the dawn broke—not a ship was in sight. And our piece of wreckage was beginning to break up. We had to hold it together while using it for a support.

Sighted Battleship.

At about 11 o'clock we sighted the Wyoming. She must have been 20 miles away. But our spar was practically gone.

"How about it?" I asked Mrs. Ball. "Shall we swim for it?"

Without a word she started off toward the Wyoming. I kept by her side.

We had been swimming for an hour when I looked back and saw the American Shipper. She was only about a mile away and coming toward us.

I tore off the tail of my shirt and waved it wildly in the air. They saw it. A boat was lowered

Hoisted to Other Vessel.

As we got up alongside, they threw out a rope. I fastened it around my body, under my arms, and grabbed Mrs. Ball. I had an idea that, when she gave in, she'd go quickly. I was right.

They hauled up into the boat and then hoisted us up in one of those rope cages they use for hoisting cargo. We never could have made it climbing a ladder. We were much too weak.

I never was treated more wonderfully in my life than I was on the American Shipper. The doctor ripped off my clothes, gave me a couple of shots of whisky and an alcohol rub and told me to go to sleep, which I certainly did. When I woke up the steward was ready to shave me. My clothes were all dried.

I guess there's just one thing more. About five minutes after we were hoisted aboard the American Shipper a dead body floated alongside, and two sharks—

Held in Shooting of Student.

By the Associated Press.

CHICAGO, Nov. 15.—Ben Zuckerman and Ben Glaser, alleged gamblers, have been booked on charges of assault with intent to kill, after police reported four persone had identified Zuckerman's automobile as the one used by assailants of John Acker, Northwestern University student, last Sunday. Acker, who was shot in the back and is in a serious condition in a hospital, told police he thought Zuckerman was the man who shot him, but he was not positive.

Piles Disappear

No Cutting or Salves Needed

External treatments seldom banish Piles.

Nor does cutting remove the cause.

The cause is inside—bad circulation.

The blood is stagnant, the veins flabby.

The bowel walls are weak, the parts almost dead.

To quickly and safely rid yourself of piles you must free the circulation—send a fresh current through stagnant pools. Internal treatment is the one safe method. Ointments and cutting won't do it.

J. S. Leonhardt, M. D., a specialist, set to work some years ago to find a real internal remedy for piles. He succeeded. He named his prescription HEM-ROID, and tried it in 1000 cases before he was satisfied. Now HEM-ROID is sold by druggists everywhere under guarantee. It is a harmless tablet, easy to take, and can always be found at Wolff-Wilson and Walgreen drug stores, who will gladly refund the purchase price to any dissatisfied customer.

ILL-TEMPER MASKS BEAUTY

Rouge and powder useless when stomach misbehaves

The sweetest of dispositions cannot stand the strain of continual stomach distress. Nerves are drawn taut, smiles give way to frowns and beauty disappears. Nor is that all. Skin blemishes and pimples are a common cause of a disordered digestion.

Mild and gentle is the stimulation provided by Triner's Bitter Wine. It warms the stomach, whets the appetite, and encourages the flow of gastric juices upon which good digestion depends. Potatoes and other starchy foods yield quickly. Stop using habit-forming pills and physics and try this delightful laxative tonic—a blend of California wine, cascara and valuable herbs. Your druggist has it—75c and $1.25.

A THREE DAYS' COUGH IS YOUR DANGER SIGNAL

Coughs from colds may lead to serious trouble. You can stop them now with Creomulsion, an emulsified creosote that is pleasant to take. Creomulsion is a medical discovery with two-fold action; it soothes and heals the inflamed membranes and inhibits germ growth.

Of all known drugs creosote is recognized by high medical authorities as one of the greatest healing agencies for coughs from colds and bronchial irritations. Creomulsion contains, in addition to creosote, other healing elements which soothe and heal the inflamed membranes and stop the irritation, while the creosote goes on to the stomach, is absorbed into the blood, attacks the seat of the trouble and checks the growth of the germs.

Creomulsion is guaranteed satisfactory in the treatment of coughs from colds, bronchitis and minor forms of bronchial irritations, and is excellent for building up the system after colds or flu. Money refunded if not relieved after taking according to directions. Ask your druggist. (adv.)

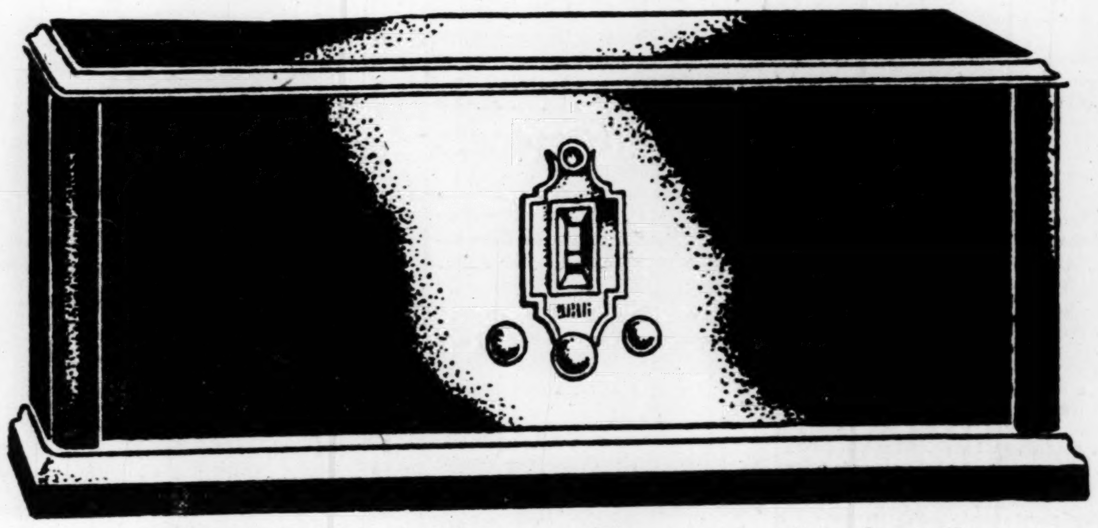
The RADIO BUY of This Year and Next!

Unheard-of Value $130



A.C. Model No. 3. Mahogany. Uses seven radio tubes and one rectifier tube.

THESE new Eveready Sets are now on display all over the United States.

Undoubtedly the radio buy of the year—and coming right at the beginning of winter broadcasting and the holiday season, an opportunity you don't want to miss.

The new Eveready Set is the finest radio money can buy. For remarkable realism and wonderful tone it is far ahead of anything you ever listened to. And only $130.

See and hear these fine sets. Developed by the makers of Eveready Batteries and other well-known Eveready products. Sponsors of the Eveready Hour. The performance of each set is mathematically proved by the famous Eveready Fidelity Curve, the latest principle in radio.

Go to any of the dealers below. Ask for a demonstration. Beautiful mahogany or maple cabinets, walnut consoles or die-cast aluminum cases in silver and green. Eveready Speakers to match.

Whatever you do, don't miss hearing the new Eveready! There's nothing else in radio like it. Now is the time to act.

POTTER TO BE RE-ELECTED TO EXECUTIVE COMMITTEE OF GOLF BODY

DOUGLAS WILL BE SELECTED PRESIDENT AT NEXT MEETING

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, Nov. 15.—The nominating committee of the United States Golf Association has selected Findlay S. Douglas of New York to succeed Melvin A. Traylor of Chicago as president of the association. Douglas will take office at the annual meeting in January.

H. H. Ramsay, New York, and Roger D. Lapham, San Francisco, were nominated for vice president. Ramsay now is a vice president and Lapham has been a member of the executive committee over a period of years.

Prescott S. Bush, secretary, and Charles H. Sabin, treasurer, will be re-elected. John G. Jackson, New York, will be the new general counsel.

Another good golfer will join Bobby Jones on the executive committee when Harrison R. ("Jimmy") Johnston of St. Paul takes his place on the committee.

St. Louisan on Committee.

Wynant D. Vanderpool, former president of the association, continues as an honorary member of the executive committee and the president, two vice presidents, secretary and treasurer are members by virtue of their offices. The executive committee will be completed by the election of Herbert Jaques, Boston; Rodman E. Griscom, Philadelphia; Harry Potter, St. Louis; Ganson Depew, Buffalo, Robert T. Jones Jr., Atlanta; Cornelius S. Lee, New York; Robert M. Cutting, Chicago; Harrison R. Johnston, St. Paul.

New Nominating Body.

The constitution of the U. S. G. A. provides that six of the 13 members of the executive committee must be members of the executive committee or a director of some State, sectional or recognized golf association. This requirement is met on the ticket for 1929 by giving representation to the California Golf Association, Lapham; New England Golf Association, Jaques; Philadelphia Golf Association, Griscom; Western Golf Association, Cutting; New York State Golf Association, Depew; Minnesota Golf Association, Johnston.

The nominations were made by a committee headed by J. Frederick Byers, chairman, and including E. F. Carry, Harold W. Pierce, W. P. Stewart and Cornelius S. Lee.

The nominating committee for 1930 will consist of: Mortimer M. Buckner, chairman; Hobart P. Young, Hamilton F. Corbett, Henry H. Wilder and Thomas B. Paine.

ANDERSON FAVORED TO WIN CHESS TOURNEY

With only two matches remaining for each player, J. A. Anderson established himself firmly in first place in the city chess championship being held under the auspices of the Missouri Pacific-St. Louis Chess Club, by defeating Roland Alpiser, who holds second place. In another match, Lewis Haller, present city champion, adjourned his game with Eugene J. Roesch with positions about even.

The standings:

	Won.	Lost.
Anderson	3½	½
Alpiser	2	2
Haller	½	2½

Russell Gardner, rated along under restraint in first seven-eighths, rushed through on inside to the lead around the final turn and held it safe through stretch. Dolly S. prominent under weak handling throughout and finished gamely. Natrolight, taken into the lead, at once showed most speed to the final quarter and barely outstayed Peter Prim. Latter dropped far out of it and made up ground in last three furlongs. Bourbon tired. Ocean Current could not gain a contending position.

$2 mutuels paid: Russell Gardner, win $11.04, place $5.98, show $5.16; Dolly S., place $32.40, show $17.34; Natrolight, show $35.44.

Rayon	110	7	6	6^{1}	5^{h}	7	7	J. Pevic.	69.79

Wild Charmer rushed up fast in first quarter, was taken under restraint on the turn then responded well after going to outside in stretch and wore down Gen. Grant. Latter began fast and made a fast pace but tired after five-eighths. Mount Beacon saved ground in last quarter and finished fastest of all. Minervus had early speed but after being taken back on turn was outrun. Enthusiastic Edward was away in a tangle and raced well.

FIFTH RACE—$800, 3-year-olds and up, claiming, one and one-sixteenth miles—Start good, won driving, place same. Went to post at 3:22; at post 1 minute. Winner, b. g., 3, by Atwell—Marty Lou. Trainer, F. Swain. Time, :23 2-5, :47 4-5, 1:13 2-5, 1:39, 1:45 3-5. Value to winners, $650, $100, $50.

Mickey D. never far back, worked way up through leaders approaching stretch, came to outside after reaching last quarter and wearing down Tyrol outstayed Fire On. Latter raced far out of it to the stretch, where he closed with a rush and was racing best at end. Tyrol, taken into the lead at once, saved ground making a fast race, but tired badly after reaching last furlong. Peter Parley was taken back under a poor ride. Devon raced well to stretch then quit. Laurel Hall could not keep up but finished gamely.

$2 mutuels paid: Mickey D. win $7.30, place $4, show $3.24; Fire On, place, $4.74, show 3.12; Tyrol, show $4.84.

MISSOURI SENDS SQUAD OF 31 FOR NEW YORK GAME

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

COLUMBIA, Mo., Nov. 15.—A Missouri football squad of 31 men, following an intensive workout here yesterday, entrained early last night for New York and a game with the New York University Violet eleven to be played in the Yankee Stadium Saturday.

The Missourians were accompanied by the Tiger coaching staff and a group of about 40 rooters. They will go directly to New York, arriving there in time for breakfast Friday morning and a short workout that afternoon in Yankee Stadium.

Missouri chances for a victory over Meehan's Violets, although none too bright at best, have taken an upward trend this week as the result of the improved form the Tigers have shown in their scant three days of practice. Fumbles that previously were the bugaboo of the Missouri coaching staff have not been so frequent, and injuries are nearly negligible. No new additions to the injured list were made in practices this week and none developed from the Kansas Aggie game last Saturday, while several regulars who were nursing minor injuries have rounded into good condition.

Probable Starting Team.

Coach Gwynn Henry had not decided definitely on the lineup he would use against Meehan's Eastern leaders, but indicated that the starting eleven, at least, would not be much different from the one used against the Kansas Aggies. The backfield quartet which will start the game, according to Henry's present plans, will be composed of Bob Byars, quarterback, Bob Mehrle and Henry Rosenheim, halfbacks, and John Waldorf, fullback. Billy Oldham, sophomore quarter, and Earle Diemund, veteran halfback, are two others who have some chance of starting the game.

The complexion of the line will go unchanged, which will give the Tigers Keith Hursley and Capt. Miller Brown, ends; Bill Smith and Eugene Hawkins, tackles; Leonard McGirl and Isadore Willner, guards, and Ray Smith, center. The Missouri lineup, as Henry named it will give the eleven an all-veteran representation with the exception of McGirl at guard and R. Smith at center.

SIXTH RACE—Futurity course:

Princess Edith (W. Garner)	4.84	3.94	3.04
Thistle Fyrn (T. Root)	....	14.28	9.08
Sweepsort (C. Churchman)	....	....	8.52

Time, 1:10. Broom Shot, Katrina I., Spooky, Catherine C. also ran.

Lexington Scratches.

Hoppe Victor in Cue Exhibition

Trailing by 81 points as he entered the final block, Johnny Layton, three-cushion billiard champion, made a strong effort to overtake Willie Hoppe, his opponent, in the windup of their six-block 300-point exhibition match at Peterson's last night, but Hoppe won by a margin of eight points, the final score standing at 300 to 291.

Hoppe built up his big lead in the afternoon block, winning 50 to 22. He made a high run of eight in the afternoon match.

FOX HOUNDS COMPETE FOR ALL-AGE HONORS

CHARLOTTESVILLE, Ia., Nov. 15.—An array of hounds, including some of the greatest fox pursuers known to huntsmen, were unleashed this morning for the beginning of the all-age stake trials of the National Association, the winner of which will gain for his owner temporary possession of the coveted Ed Walker Cup.

The trophy, named in honor of Ed Walker of Kentucky, originator of the Walker strain of fox hounds, was donated by Howard Tracy of Chicago, in 1900. Only once has the right of permanent possession been won, the Hunters' Rest kennels of Wartrace, Tenn., gaining the trophy last year after the third successive victory in the trials, but the owner returned it to competition.

International Harvest League.

Results in the International Harvest Hat League on the Cinderella alleys were as follows: Pressing 2, Packing 1; Trimmers 2, Inspections 1; Assemblings 3, Shippings 0. The team leaders were: I. Lawless, 496; J. Crow, 410; Moken, 484; B. January, 449; B. Martin, 497, and J. Bertelsmeyer, 474.

Two New Records Set by Swimmers

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

HONOLULU, Nov. 15.—Two world's swimming records were established here last night by Johnny Weismuller and "Buster" Crabbe.

The Illinois flash shattered the 150-yard mark by cleaving through the water in 1 minute and 26 seconds.

Crabbe, representing the Outrigger Canoe Club, broke the record in the 300-meter medley event in 4 minutes and 13 seconds.

Two thousand persons saw the record broken at the swimming meet at Waikiki Natatorium, and also watched diving exhibitions by Helen Meany and Elmo Tomita, an 11-year-old Japanese girl.

LOUISVILLE HAS NOT SCORED IN LAST 5 GAMES

By Gerald Holland

The Billiken Freshmen, using the plays of Louisville University, which has won only one game out of six this season, will scrimmage the Varsity in St. Louis University's football practice today.

The Varsity reserves have been given the most attention by Coach Heartly Anderson so far this week and it is likely that the boys who have been on the sidelines will have full opportunity to show their ability this week-end. Louisville, weakened by injuries early in the season, has not enjoyed much success and failed to impress the Billiken scout last week in losing to Centre College, 7 to 0.

Owns a Poor Record.

Louisville has not crossed any enemy goal line since Oct. 6, when it won its only victory of the season from Eastern Normal. Since that game, the Cardinals have lost to Detroit, Chattanooga, Transylvania, Western Teachers and Centre, losing in every instance by more or less decisive scores.

The Billiken second varsity team took its second long scrimmage of the week yesterday afternoon when "Hunk" Anderson kept his squad out for two hours in a strenuous drill. Anderson gave his personal attention to the second string backfield, a new combination which he is expected to start for the first time against Louisville. The quartet includes Dave Ennis and Les Hunt, halfbacks; Saul Naidorff, quarter, and Jim Stringfellow, fullback.

Forward Passes Stressed.

Both of the varsity elevens Anderson has been directing in practice have made notable progress in the passing plays. Anderson has stressed the overhead game for two weeks and the Billikens now have a varied assortment of aerial plays in hand. Straight football should be enough to win this week unless the home team slows up to the same extent as in the Loyola game. However, that is extremely unlikely after the fast clip that the coaches have maintained for the last few days.

Coach Anderson believes that his team's biggest weakness in the past two weeks has been the lack of the spirit that helped the Billikens to upset Creighton. If the team enters the Thanksgiving day contest with the same attitude, the Billiken coach is confident that it can win. The regulars who will open against Washington are not in the best possible physical condition at present and several members are considerably underweight. Accordingly, the ailing first stringers will not be overworked until they are in shape for the regulation practice.

STAGG HONORED AT ANNUAL DINNER BY CHICAGO U. ALUMNI

By the Associated Press.

CHICAGO, Nov. 15—The "grand old man of Big Ten football," Coach Amos Alonzo Stagg, was given his thirty-seventh annual vote of confidence by University of Chicago alumni at their annual banquet last night, but his team received nothing but forensic brickbats.

Disheartened at the team's dismal failure on the gridiron this season, football stars of better years called them everything from "wooden men to men without a spark." Chicago's high scholastic standards and the $300 tuition fee also were blamed, the speakers claiming they combined to keep good athletes away from the university.

Stagg, who is 66 years old, was cheered lustily throughout the meeting.

16 WOOSTER

TOURNEY DRAWS 255 QUINTETS; 22 CITIES SEND BOWLERS HERE

By Herman Wecke

Many of the leading bowlers of this section will compete for championships in the annual Middle West tournament, which starts on the Schaefer-Delmar Recreation alleys tonight and continues up to and including Dec. 3. A total of 255 quintets from 23 cities will strive for honors in the competition.

Sixteen teams entered by Wooster Lambert will compete at the opening ceremonies tonight. Though these quintets are not expected to shatter any world records, they nevertheless cannot be termed booster fives, being made up of some of the better bowlers of the city.

Carlson to Bowl Dec. 2.

However, the real fireworks of the tournament are expected to come later. There will be keen interest in the rolling on Dec. 2. On that day, Ad Carlson of Chicago, who at present holds the indivdiual match game championship, will be seen on the drives. Carlson last season defeated Charley Daw, the Milwaukee star, in a 60-game match to win the title. At present he is getting into condition to defend his honors against a Cleveland star. Daw also will be in action during the rolling here.

And other Chicago aces, who have held various titles will appear. Among them are Harry Steers, Fred Thoma, Sykes Thoma, Chuck Collier, Bill Wernicke, W. Fritag and Jule Lellinger.

Besides Chicago and Milwaukee, other cities to be represented will be Kansas City, Indianapolis, St. Joseph, Wichita, Quincy, Oklahoma City, Highland, Ill., Omaha, Atchison, Tulsa, Davenport, Belleville, Louisville, Peoria, Springfield, Cudahy, Wis., Des Moines and Dubuque.

Team With 3281 Record.

One of the best records established by a team this season was made by the Nickey Cleaners of Springfield, Ill. This five has rolled 3281 in league competition and owns a high single game of 1133. The team will roll Dec. 1 and will be shooting with such fine quintets as Baby Ruths, Oh Henrys, and Birks Bros. of Chicago, as well as the Zieglers and several others from Milwaukee.

Jimmy Smith, who is generally regarded as the best bowler in the country, is not entered in the tournament this season. Jimmy, at present, is on another of his exhibition tours and could not find time to roll in the Middle West.

St. Louis' leading teams, among them the Lamberts, Witter Razz, Washington Five and others, are entered in the competition.

The tournament last season was held at St. Joseph, with the following gaining championships in the various events:

Five-man—T. J. Crowes, Chicago, 3024.
Two-man—Dick Montgomery and George Falkenback, St. Joseph, 1253.
Individual—Wallie Lungren, Chicago, 675.
All-Events—Wallie Lungren, Chicago, 1939.

See where Illinois reports a gain of eight bushels per acre in corn. And Hoover hasn't even taken over the job yet.

After he has been in office for six months or so there will be so much corn that the farmers will be wiring Herbert to ease up on the farm relief or turn his attention to hogs.

McKechnie Jumps to Second Place In Vote on Cardinal Managership

STANDING OF THE "BIG FOUR"

NAME.	New Votes	Previous	Total
Billy Southworth	92	45	137
Bill McKechnie	60	16	76
Frank Snyder	48	19	67
Roger Bresnahan	22	8	30

Boosters of Bill McKechnie, manager of the Cardinals until Owner Sam Breadon makes a decision regarding his 1929 leader, made a gain in the straw vote being conducted by the Post-Dispatch yesterday, but he still trails Billy Southworth by almost 2 to 1.

Of the first 350 ballots received, a total of 137 were for Southworth, against 76 for the incumbent. In the second day's mail, which brought more than 250 votes, Southworth was the favorite of 92 fans, whereas McKechnie received 60.

Frank Snyder and Roger Bresnahan, the other two of the "big four," trail. Snyder's total to date is 67 and that of Bresnahan but 30. However, since the announcement by John McGraw of the Giants that Bresnahan had been given his release, there has been a slight flurry in favor of the former Giant coach. In an earlier count, Snyder was second.

Players Obtain Votes.

Several players, now members of the Cardinals, also have come in for a share of scattering votes. For instance, there was Frank Frisch, with nine; Grover Alexander received two: Rabbit Maranville three and Bottomley one. Jack Onslow, McKechnie's chief assistant in 1928, also came in for one.

One fan suggests that Ty Cobb, in spite of his poor showing as leader of Detroit, would make a good man for the Cardinals. Another thinks that Bill Killefer, Hornsby's assistant in 1926 and for the last two years with the Browns, would be the man for the St. Louis Nationals in 1929. And then there is Joe Schultz, last season at Danville. G. H. Eckart writes as follows in favor of Schultz: "Don't overlook Joe Schultz. He has personality and good baseball sense and has had training in the Cardinal System."

Of course, there are the usual jokesters, inasmuch as Dr. Robert Hyland, club surgeon; Charley Barrett, Jack Ryan, Heine Mueller and Will Rogers have been mentioned.

A McKechnie booster (W. A. M.) writes: "In the late world series, no man, no matter how efficient, could have made Bottomley and Hafey hit the ball. They were willing, but failed, so why blame McKechnie?"

Would Have Advantage.

Charles Thacker of Fairfield, Ill., says: "One reason for picking McKechnie is that he filled the place well last year. He knows the strong and weak points of the club and this will help him in 1929. Incidentally, it will give him an advantage over any other man who would be named."

In regard to Frank Snyder, a fan says: "He has plenty of baseball experience; has been schooled in the McGraw system and was a success at Houston last year, with a team which was good in spots, but apparently no great one. While probably not the smartest man in the world, I believe he will enforce discipline and get the most out of the players."

"An aggressive man with experience as player and manager, besides the training he has had in New York under McGraw, surely gives him first consideration. Bresnahan can do more with this team than all the others put together," writes H. W. Ullman in casting a ballot for the former Giant coach and one-time Cardinal manager.

Vote coupons will appear each day, including Sunday, after which the straw vote result will be announced. Mail the votes to the Sports Department, Post-Dispatch, and interesting comment on candidates will be published.

Scholle Will Play Center for St. Charles High

The St. Charles-University City game to be settled on the U. C. field tomorrow afternoon is one of concern to the County League football ring inasmuch as the outcome will virtually determine the grid champions of the season for that organization.

In four games, St. Charles has been defeated once, by Kirkwood, while University City remains undefeated in six games, one of which resulted in a tie.

In the tussle, on which the championship hinges, there will probably be witnessed one of the most pretensive aerial attacks displayed by any of the contendors this season. By an aerial offensive, University City outwitted Kirkwood, 13-6, and against such threats St. Charles will battle.

Facing a team that will probably outweigh them slightly, St. Charles will use a number of passes, the execution of which will depend largely upon Feldman and Schoenberger. Throughout the past week Coach Dueringer's squad has undergone consistent passing practice with only a little scrimmage.

Scholle, St. Charles center, who has been out of the lineup for the past two weeks with an injury, will start in the U. City engagement but Bacon, one of St. Charles' best halfbacks, will be held out because of a fractured left hand.

A win for University City would eliminate St. Charles from the title race and would retain for the victors a virtual undisputed first-place position.

St Charles, 13; Maplewood, 12.
St. Charles, 26; Ritenour, 0.
St. Charles, 6; Kirkwood, 14.
St. Charles, 24; Normandy, 12.
University City, 44; Ritenour, 0.
University City, 18; Wellston, 0.
University City, 12; Normandy, 0.
University City, 13; Kirkwood, 6.
University City, 0; Maplewood, 0.
University City, 22; Clayton, 0.

SALLY LEAGUE ADOPTS NEW ROOKIE RULE

By the Associated Press.

CHARLOTTE, N. C., Nov. 15.—Sally League owners, it was announced after a four-hour executive session here yesterday, have voted to adopt a "rookie rule," limiting the number of Class B players on a team in the circuit and also adopted an "inactive list" limit which will not allow a club to carry more than four disabled players on its roll.

The "rookie rule" adopted provides that each club must carry on its active list not less than three players who have not been at bat more than 75 times in leagues higher than Class C. It also requires two players on the active list who have never been at bat in organized baseball more than 50 times.

AUSTRALIAN-AMERICAN BIKE TEAM LEADS ON POINTS IN 6-DAY RACE

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

CHICAGO, Nov. 15.—The Australian-American team of Harris Horder and Hy Kockler went into the lead in the six-day bike race today after a night of the wildest sort of riding.

They are closely challenged by the "kid" team of Walthour and Duelberg who equal the leaders in laps, but have two fewer points. McNamara and Debaetes are in third place, one lap behind the leading pairs.

GARVEY, YALE STAR, IS ON INJURED LIST

Shaw Wins on Foul

DETROIT, Mich., Nov. 15.—Archie Bell, New York bantamweight, lost on a foul to Billy Shaw, Detroit, in the eighth round of their 10-round bout here last night. Bell was leading by a wide margin when a low blow dropped Shaw. It was necessary to carry the Detroit boxer to his dressing room. Jim O'Brien, Bridgeport, Conn., won the referee's decision over Chuck Minnella, Linton, Ind., welterweight, in an eight-round bout.

HOCKEY LEAGUE SEASON STARTS WITH 5 GAMES

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, Nov. 15.—With new faces to be seen on nearly every team, the 1928-29 season of the National Hockey League will get under way tonight. A brisk trading season this fall brought changes to all but the Montreal Maroons and the Boston Bruins.

At Montreal the Maroons and Canadiens will play the first game of their intra-city rivalry that attracted the largest crowds in the league last year. Two greatly revamped tail-enders of last year, the Chicago Black Hawks and the New York Americans, will give their new teams a first test against Toronto and Ottawa.

The world's champion New York Rangers play their first game at Detroit with the hope of getting a good start toward the Stanley Cup playoffs this season. The trade which brought the Rangers John Ross Roach, one of the finest goalies in the league, from Toronto, as well as several other deals, have strengthened the New York team to a point where it is a favorite to walk off with most of the honors. Boston, trailing only the Rangers in the pre-season predictions, opens against Benny Leonard's Pittsburg team, one of the unknowns of the league.

A last-minute change will put Flat Walsh, sub goal tender of the Maroons, in the American's net for the opening game. Jakie Forbes, regular American net minder, is laid up with a cold, while their substitute, Joe Miller, has been loaned to Pittsburg to replace the holdout, Roy Worters. Walsh comes to the New Yorkers as a loan under the new rule which empowers President Frank Calder to select a substitute to fill such vacancies.

DENVER TO BID FOR 1929 NATIONAL A. A. U. TRACK AND FIELD MEET

By the Associated Press.

DENVER, Nov. 15.—J. Lyman Bingham, graduate manager of athletics at Denver University and president of the Denver chapter of the A. A. U., departed yesterday for New York, where he will enter Denver's bid for the national A. A. U. track and field meet.

Bingham will take with him a certified check for $6000 as a guarantee for the meet, which, he said, may be held here, in view of the favorable attitude Murray Hulbert, president of the A. A. U., expressed on a recent trip here.

Cleveland and San Francisco also are bidding for the meet, Bingham said. The track committee of the A. A. U. will convene in New York Sunday and its recommendation will be presented to the delegates in convention next Monday.

McCarthy-Hornsby Combine Will be Watched With Great Interest in 1929 Campaign

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

NEW YORK, Nov. 15.—"Watch the Chicago Cubs," comes the word from the boys who see all, hear all and know nothing. "Watch the Cubs with Hornsby in there."

There's one thing you can always say for the boys. They are never any sillier than usual. With Hornsby playing second base and Joe McCarthy running the ball club, no one will have to tell baseball to watch the Cubs. It will be watching because it will be prompted by one of the most impelling of all emotions—human curiosity. No chemical laboratory ever attempted a more interesting experiment than will be sponsored in Chicago next spring.

There is little of the "clubhouse lawyer" about Hornsby. His emotions are too honest to tolerate even a hint of surreptious conniving. He simply is impetuous, crazy to win. In fact, he is a ball player with only one possible liability. He prefers to do his thinking out loud.

Branch Rickey, Jack Hendricks and Jim Tierney have listened from left to right to some of his most candid thoughts without marked enthusiasm. The first two were managers of ball clubs on which Hornsby worked; the third is something of a one-man "kitchen cabinet." All three are agreed that there is one outstanding trouble with Hornsby. He isn't a deaf mute.

Will McCarthy overlook a few frank utterances from time to time? Undoubtedly. Joseph generally is credited with being a man of human understanding and an occasional expression of honest opinion about this and that is only part of the ball game, after all. But Joseph's family name is McCathy and he comes by its very honestly.

"There's one thing you can bet on, no matter what happens," an American Association man told the writer recently. "Joe McCarthy will boss any ball club he is managing."

Can't Stand Intolerance.

This man knew McCarthy through all of the latter's years in the association. But he doesn't know Hornsby or he wouldn't be thinking along the lines his remark called to mind. Hornsby is no man to consciously and deliberately try to undermine another's authority. To all outward intents, he reported to Jack Slattery in St. Petersburg last spring with nothing in his mind except the matter of getting himself ready to give the best he had for the ball club. It is natural to suppose that Hornsby had something to do with or was behind the beheading of Slattery and his own elevation to the job of player-manager. There is nothing in the evidence to sustain this notion.

Hornsby, however, did say a number of things to the boys in his role of field captain and his tone never was the kind that lacks authority. He wasn't with the club three days before he had called some of the players off the gallows for smoking in the dressing room. That's Hornsby. Intolerant of carefree spirit; out of patience with mediocrity. He lives baseball; he breaths it. To those who don't share his enthusiasm, he becomes something of a fanatic, a pest.

Watch the Cubs? The next thing you know somebody will be telling us not to forget to breathe.

INTERNATIONAL PIN TOURNEY TO BE HELD IN SWEDEN, JUNE 6-10

NEW YORK, Nov. 15.—The international bowling tournament will be held June 6 to 10, 1929, at Stockholm, Sweden, with seven countries participating. The American team will sail May 18 to compete against ten-pinners representing Sweden, Norway, Denmark, Finland, Germany and Holland. The American cup, emblematic of the team title, is now held by Sweden.

LAMBERT TEAM WILL ROLL IN CENTRAL STATES

The Wooster Lambert team, leader in the Major City League, has entered the tenth annual tournament of the Central States Bowlers' Association, to be held in Detroit starting Nov. 24. The Lambert team will be composed of Wooster Lambert, Forest Beye, Rudi Meyer, Roy Nelson and Otto Stein Jr. In the doubles, Lambert will roll with Meyer; Nelson with Stein, and Beye will double with Eddie Grub. The team is scheduled to bowl Dec. 7 and is the only team entered from St. Louis.

*MILDNESS is not the whole story of a fine cigarette. Chesterfields are genuinely mild but they are something more. They stand out as the cigarettes that satisfy because they are made of high quality tobaccos; because they are blended and cross-blended in a way that can't be copied—and that blending produces a satisfying taste and fragrance. They are "the mild cigarettes that satisfy."

TEX RICKARD DECLARES DEMPSEY WILL SIGN TO FIGHT NEXT SUMMER

FORMER HOLDER OF TITLE SAYS HE MAY CHANGE HIS MIND AGAIN

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

NEW YORK, Nov. 15.—"Jack Dempsey will sign a contract in January to fight a leading white heavyweight next summer at a New York ball park."—Tex Rickard.

"It will give me great pleasure to meet Dempsey at the Yankee Stadium on June 15, 1929."—Paulino Uzcudun.

"I may fight and I may not, depending on how I feel next year. That's a long time off, and I'm a changeable guy."—Jack Dempsey.

Interest in the scramble for Gene Tunney's vacated heavyweight title reached the boiling point today as a result of the above statements, made following a conference between the promoter and Dempsey late yesterday and dinner given by Paulino last night to metropolitan sports writers.

Dempsey Evades Issue.

Dempsey, who attended the dinner, evaded the issue of his comeback. But Rickard, who has just returned from Florida, said he was convinced that he had persuaded the former champion to make an attempt to regain his lost laurels.

It was learned that Dempsey had stipulated that his opponent must be one of the following group—Uzcudun, Jack Sharkey, Knute Hansen or Young Stribling. Dempsey also was quoted as saying that he must get a percentage of the receipts that will assure him half a million dollars for his end.

While Rickard professed to believe that the negotiations were as good as closed, Dempsey was his usual noncommital self.

"I'm not ready to make any statements right now," Dempsey said at the dinner. Then he intimated that he had decided to attempt a comeback by adding: "Tex and I never had any trouble in the past over terms and we won't have any this time."

Ballyhoo for Uzcudun.

The next speaker, the grinning, gold-toothed Basque, seized upon this opportunity to announce that he would fight the ex-champion on June 15, 1929, at the Yankee Stadium. He declined to amplify that statement.

Dempsey and his wife plan to leave for Los Angeles next Monday or Tuesday. According to Rickard, the Manassa man mauler will meet him in the South in January for the signing ceremony.

FOUR DATES ON BEAR SCHEDULE FOR '29 FILLED

By Jerry Bernoudy

Football practice, as usual, was carried on at Washington University yesterday afternoon, but like many other late season workouts, there was nothing about the session to distinguish it from any other drill the Bears have held this season. Scrimmage has been taboo by Dr. Sharpe this week for fear of further injuries.

Carl Bickel was missing from the fold as the Bears prepared for their game with Grinnell, but it was believed that his absence was due only to some extra work at the medical school where he is a student. In his place in the regular backfield, Dr. Sharpe put Scott Hornsby, who has been taking part in all the workouts this week although he is still noticeably handicapped with an injured back.

According to dispatches from Grinnell, the two teams will be fairly evenly matched in weight. The Pioneers are captained this year by Charles (Red) Fail, a veteran end, who is completing his third year of service on the varsity squad. He is a constant threat on the receiving end of forward passes, which mode of attack has been employed with unusual success by the Iowans in their contests to date this year.

Artie Eilers, business manager for the Bears, announced that Washington already had four games lined up for the 1929 football schedule, which will be featured with the opening of the new stadium. The three games booked at present include a contest with Illinois College on Oct. 5 to open the season. Butler, Drake and St. Louis are the other three schools who have definitely signed to battle the Bears. In addition, negotiations are expected to be completed Monday with Chester L. Brewer for a game with the Tigers here either Nov. 2 and Nov. 9.

Britton Outpoints Brignolia

By the Associated Press.

BOSTON, Nov. 15.—Jack Britton, 43 years old, former world's welterweight champion, received an ovation from the Boston boxing public here last night when he decisively outpointed Larry Brignolia, rugged Cambridge youth, in 10 rounds. Britton, who showed all his old-time ring skill except for fast footwork, took every round by a wide margin.

Wray's COLUMN

More Buffoonery.

HANS STEINKE, the New York commission's candidate for the wrestling crown, and Stanley Stasiak, a burly veteran of the mat, treated the Kansas City public to an exhibition of how wrestling ought not to be conducted. Typical of the buffoonery and pretense that has at times characterized this bedraggled sport, the match went to three "falls," each culminating in what seemed to be carefully planned climaxes.

In the first fall, Steinke, a veteran trained in European schools to faithful observance of rules, suddenly forgot his training. He hoisted up his foe, upended him and then bumped him head down on the floor outside the ring, losing the fall on a foul.

In the second fall, despite the well-known rule against the strangle, Stasiak tried to choke Steinke. The match was squared when Steinke was given the fall on a foul.

Steinke gained the final "fall" on a flying mare—or what was called that. But in order not to let the show reach too tame a conclusion, Stasiak pulled a brainstorm, which a police detail had to quell.

* * *

Mat Commission Needed.

ALL this from two tried and tested old war horses, to whom the rules of the mat are as A. B. C. They probably would be barred from wrestling in Europe for such a display and in America, if there were a competent governing body, for such an apparently premeditated fracture of the rules of fair play.

Hokum of this sort has been fed the American public to an amazing degree. No stop can be put to it, because the promoters or the wrestlers find that it pleases the fans, who half believe it is the real stuff.

The situation is due to the failure of the Legislatures of States and the councils of the various cities to pass laws regulating this game—a sport that above all others should be held to strict account.

Boxing, which is comparatively free from charges of faking, is conducted under a State microscope. It also has to pay for one inspection by the State and for another survey by the city.

How is this, Mr. Legislator? And how is it, Mr. Alderman?

* * *

Old Age Insurance.

BABE RUTH adding $10,000 more to his fund, has run his old age insurance up to $130,000. His caution and providence of later years are in strong contrast to the earlier profligacy of the King of Sock. Time was when Babe spattered $50,000 a season from Havana to Broadway, in a manner to make "Coal Oil Johnny" seem slow.

* * *

Babe still sets in the coin—but he is not wasting all of his tremendous earning power. When Babe finishes, he still will be beyond worrying where his next $20,000 a year is coming from.

* * *

Babe, it is said, has earned more than a million dollars in 14 years. Strange to relate, a great deal of his income has come from writing—"ghost writing," as it is called.

It is said that Babe makes more money and is paid higher wages than Bernard Shaw and other noted literateurs!

GARETH PAYS $236.12 FOR $2 AT LEXINGTON; EDITH CAVELL IS VICTOR

NEW YORK, Nov. 15.—Repeating her brilliant performance of two years ago, W. M. Jeffords' Edith Cavell won the $10,000 added Pimlico cup race over a two and a quarter mile course yesterday. W. J. Salmon's Display was a poor second and J. N. Camden's Hydromel, third. The mare ran the distance in 3:53, only four-fifths of a second slower than her own track record. The race was worth $10,025 to the winner, including a $500 plate.

A second feature at Pimlico, the $2000 Consolation Handicap, went to an even longer shot, Phidias, who paid $50.50 to win. Eider was second and Barley Corn third in the two-mile race for 3-year-olds and up.

In the first race at Lexington, Gareth came home at the second largest price of the Kentucky season, paying $236.12 straight for a $2 mutuel ticket. The place tickets brought $43.76. The Lexington feature, the Phoenix Hotel Handicap, was won by the Everglade Stable's Dunmore. Flat Iron, an overwhelming favorite, was second and Broadside third.

DETROIT—Billy Shaw, Detroit, won on foul over Archie Bell, New York (8). Jim O'Brien, Bridgeport, Conn., outpointed Chuck Minnella, Linton, Ind. (8).

Granite City and East St. Louis to Meet Saturday

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

GRANITE CITY, Ill., Nov. 15.—Reserve strength may decide the football championship of the East Side Saturday afternoon when the undefeated Granite City and East St. Louis high school elevens clash in East St. Louis.

The East St. Louis team returned from Quincy Saturday with six regulars crippled, while Granite City's 13-to-0 Conference victory over Alton Monday was probably more costly. Only four of the first eleven appeared for practice in uniform, and while most of the casualties were from bruises and minor injuries, Granite City will enter the game with two regulars missing and several in doubtful condition.

Granite City's Greatest Team.

Coach Bozarth has built up an unusual football system here this year. Eight complete teams, drawn from a squad of 120, a third of the boys in the school, work out nightly under four coaches. Fired by an unprecedented enthusiasm for football, the turnout has afforded Bozarth a wealth of material, largely green, and from it he has developed the greatest team in the history of the school.

Six strong prep elevens have bowed in succession to the light but aggressive Red and Black outfit, and Granite City has scored 122 points against opponents 18 to lead the Southwestern Conference and lay claim to downstate honors.

East St. Louis is the only team able to challenge the triumphant drive of Granite City to its first Conference championship the right to contest for Illinois supremacy. East St. Louis has won four games and tied two in six starts, amassing 78 points to its opponents' 25.

Rivalry Sharp Between Schools.

Keen rivalry exists between the two schools as last year East St. Louis nosed out Granite City, 20 to 13, for the league title. Bozarth, who developed powerful teams at Staunton in 1924 and 1925, State title contenders, is meeting with like success in his second season with Granite City, and comparative scores give his eleven a slight edge.

All Granite City is excited over its school team and a delegation of a thousand fans will accompany the squad to Parsons Field in East St. Louis for the game. Granite City has never defeated East St. Louis on the gridiron.

The records of the teams to date:

Granite City 7, Mount Olive 0.
Granite City 25, Belleville 6.
Granite City 19, Wood River 0.
Granite City 43, Collinsville 6.
Granite City 13, Alton 0.

East St. Louis 13, Webster Groves 7.
East St. Louis 6, Collinsville 0.
East St. Louis 26, Edwardsville 0.
East St. Louis 21, Alton 0.
East St. Louis 6, Wood River 6.
East St. Louis 6, Quincy 6.

Since Collinsville clinched third position in the conference race by defeating Edwardsville, 26 to 2, Monday, and is out of the running for second honors, interest of the entire league centers on the East Side clash.

Both Strong in Backfield.

Forward walls evenly matched, the title contest will bring two great backfield trios face to face. Granite City has a triple-triple threat" in Bud Colin, Tommy Wilson and Ed Rich. All veterans, each kicks, runs and passes, and around this combination Bozarth has built a highly deceptive attack.

Frazier has a powerful trio, offensively and defensively, in Captain Baskette, Warfield and Cassady.

Colin, G. C., 36 points.
Baskette, E. S., 14 points.
Cassady, E. S., 13 points.
Warfield, E. S., 12 points.
Rich, G. C., 12 points.

Cassady and Colin are rated the best kickers in the conference, adding to the interest of the game, and should it result into a punting duel, the East Side halfback has the edge, while in point kicking, Colin has booted nine place kicks for extra points in 13 attempts this season.

NEW JERSEY GOLFER BEATS CIUCI TO WIN MIDSOUTH GOLF MEET

By the Associated Press.

PINEHURST, N. C., Nov. 15.—Jack Forrester of Short Hills, N. J., with a score of 72-67—139 for 36 holes, yesterday won the [illegible] annual Mid-South open medal play golf tournament in which a field of 57 professionals and amateurs competed.

TENDER YOUNG CHICKEN · · · with DELICIOUS SWEETBREADS À LA KING

PENNSYLVANIA CHEFS are specially trained to prepare such delicious dishes as these at three big Pennsylvania dining car schools at New York, Columbus and Chicago

This week on THE AMERICAN

Beside them, in another pan, sliced green peppers give their pungent flavor to a bubbling butter sauce. Presto—they are poured in with the chicken and sweetbreads, zestful sauce and all, with a generous addition of sliced young mushrooms.

In goes the rich cream sauce. Slowly the well beaten yolks of new-laid eggs and pure rich cream are stirred in. Now just a dash of lemon juice, and the delicious whole is ready to be poured over crisp golden-brown toast.

On all Pennsylvania menu cards this week you find this summed up in "Chicken and Sweetbreads à la King"—served with parsley potatoes and green peas. Behind every item on the card is the same careful selection of the best raw materials, the same conscientious preparation and cooking. But for delicate, zestful flavor, this has few rivals. Try it.

Heeney Will Be Offered Battle With Emanuel

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

LOS ANGELES, Cal., Nov. 15.—Negotiations for a Tom Heeney-Armand Emanuel bout here under way today, the match to take place in the Olympic some time next month, according to Promoter Jack Doyle.

Heeney, who is now in Vancouver, B. C., may come here for a conference inside the next 10 days. The contender, who fought Gene Tunney less than a year ago in New York, is returning from a honeymoon from his native New Zealand.

Courtney Gains Kayo.

NEW YORK, Nov. 15.—George Courtney of Oklahoma made his debut as a light heavyweight by knocking out Paul Swiderski of Syracuse in the eighth round of their 10-round bout at the Manhattan Casino last night. Courtney handed out a terrific beating to the upstater.

Soldan Victory Will Give School Its Fourth Leg on Yale Football Title Cup

By Harold Tuthill

If Soldan wins the City High School League football championship either this week or next, the West Enders will clinch their fourth leg on the coveted Yale Bowl, the trophy emblematic of the championship. Five legs are needed to retain the cup permanently.

In addition to Soldan, Cleveland and Roosevelt also possess three legs on the bowl, but neither team is expected to win final honors this year. Beaumont, which has an outside chance to press Soldan for the lead has never, even when the school fought under the name of Yeatman, won the bowl.

The present holder of the donation from the local Yale alumni is Roosevelt, which last year galloped away with the championship. This was Roosevelt's first acquisition of football honors, although the Rough Riders were bequeathed two and one-half legs by the now-deceased McKinley High School.

The half-leg on the trophy came about as a result of a tie with Central in 1916, a year after the bowl was placed in competition. Because of the complications evolving from a first-place tie, the ruling in the league is that all ties between championship teams be played off.

Central Gave Up Award.

Central, the owner of the other half-leg, has also won the championship in 1918 and 1922. The ear 1923 is marked "No Award" on the cup because Central, although it won the championship that year, it used a player who proved ineligible. The player was ruled out of participation in scholastic athletics because he was over-age, and with the ruling Central voluntarily relinquished its rights to the cup, for that season.

The chronological history of the Yale Bowl shows that from 1915 to 1919 McKinley and Central grabbed all the honors. In 1919 Soldan stuck its fingers in the pie and pulled out the plum.

When the fall of 1920 rolled around Cleveland found itself with two problems which could be solved by one method. The one dubious honor was that it, together with Yeatman, had never won the high school football championship. The other riddle was the new coach, Bert E. Fenenga. It was Fenenga who removed the stigma from Cleveland and won honors for himself by defeating the other four members of the circuit in that memorable year, with his powerful Cleveland eleven.

Jimmy Cook of Soldan wrested the trophy from his South Side opponent in 1921, and the succeeding year the cup was passed to Central, where it stayed until Cleveland won its second championship in 1924. Cleveland recaptured the bowl in 1926, after Soldan had held it for a year. Roosevelt won it last year and it is probable that the Rough Riders will yield the cup to Soldan after the present campaign.

Cook Is League Veteran.

On the basis of years of servitude, Jimmy Cook is the "old man" of the high school league. Cook commenced his work at Soldan in 1913 and is still fighting for the West End teams. Cook was second to only Mike Walker up to last June, when Walker resigned to take over the task of drilling the freshman football squad at Washington University. Walker had completed a span of a score of years under Central's banner.

Fenenga comes next to Cook, having begun his activities at Cleveland in 1920. After him is Lee R. Carlson, who started his career as football coach at McKinley in 1922. Raymond C. Lewis dates his regime at Beaumont since 1924, when the present Beaumont faculty were housed at Yeatman. Alfred Friedli is head football coach at Central for only this year. Next season Paul H. Conant will pick up the football threads at Central where they were severed by the departure of Mike Walker.

Year—Championship School.
1915—McKinley (now Roosevelt).
1916—McKinley and Central.
1917—McKinley.
1918—Central.
1919—Soldan.
1920—Cleveland.
1921—Soldan.
1922—Central.
1923—No award.
1924—Cleveland.
1925—Soldan.
1926—Cleveland.
1927—Roosevelt.

SPRINGFIELD TEACHERS BASKETBALL TEAM TO GET STRONG OPPOSITION

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

SPRINGFIELD, Mo., Nov. 15.—Plenty of opposition for the champion Springfield Teachers College Bears in the coming M. I. A. basketball race is promised, reports from the other four conference schools indicating that strong teams will be turned out.

Springfield closes its grid season this week and will start next week in basketball. This will give the Bears a jump of two weeks on the other schools. Coach A. J. McDonald's team won the championship last winter by winning nine out of 12 games, in one of the hottest conference races in history.

Every member of the Bear squad except Harvel Clarke, guard, will return in addition to a wealth of new material.

Maryville is said to have the strongest basketball nucleus in years, while Kirksville and Cape Girardeau also are said to be enthusiastic over their prospects.

With four veterans back, Warrensburg expects to make a strong bid for the title this winter. Coach Tad Reid will have Petrie, guard; Russell, center, and Cull and Garrison, forwards, to form the team's nucleus.

Conference teams will play 16 games instead of 12 during the coming season.

Holman Signed By Officials of St. Louis Team

By W. J. McGoogan

That forward who was to be transferred to the St. Louis professional ice hockey team by the Chicago Black Hawks in the deal which sent Val Hoffinger, defense man, here has become as elusive as money. First the Black Hawks permitted St. Louis to have Lola Couture but he played so well against the Black Hawks in the exhibitions here that he was reclaimed by Chicago.

Then Mickey McKay was left here but only lasted a day until the Hawks completed a deal with Pittsburg by which McKay goes to that club. He departed to join his new team last night and now St. Louis is without the forward who was promised by Coach Herb Gardner.

Coach Alex Irvin is waiting for word as to whom the Hawks will send here and is of the opinion that it will be either Couture or Earl Miller.

In the meantime Irvin has signed Speed Holman, a free agent, who formerly played with the Cleveland and the Detroit teams. Holman is 30 years old, a native of Canada. He is a wingman and has a reputation of being very fast on skates and an excellent shot.

Another good forward is what Irvin is looking for and Holman may be the man.

Today the players will go through another hour's scrimmage at the Winter Garden. They have all recovered from the colds, bruises and cuts with which they were afflicted in the exhibitions with the Black Hawks and are ready for the strenuous grind necessary to fit them for the opening of the American Association season on Nov. 27.

ILLINOIS TEACHERS' TEAMS PLAY SATURDAY

CARBONDALE, Ill., Nov. 15.—Undefeated in the Little 19 Conference, the Charleston (Ill.) Teachers' College football eleven invades the Southern Illinois Teachers' gridiron in the latter's home-coming game here Saturday. Eyes of the conference are on the game, because, should the Southern Teachers win from Charleston, the Easterners' hopes for the conference title would vanish. Should they win from Carbondale, their last major hurdle would be negotiated to the championship, as the Easterners view it.

Better Than Whiskey For Colds and Flu

The sensation of the drug trade is Aspironal, the two-minute cold and cough reliever, authoritatively guaranteed by the laboratories; tested, approved and most enthusiastically endorsed by the highest authorities, and proclaimed by the people as ten times as quick and effective as whiskey, rock and rye, or any other cold and cough remedy they have ever tried.

All drug stores are supplied with the wonderful elixir, so all you have to do is to step into the nearest drug store, hand the clerk 60c for a bottle of Aspironal and tell him to serve you two teaspoonsful. With your watch in your hand, take the drink at one swallow and call for your money back in two minutes if you cannot feel the distressing symptoms of your cold fading away like a dream, within the time limit. Don't be bashful, for all druggists invite you and expect you to try it. Everybody's doing it.

Take the remainder of the bottle home to your wife and children, or Aspironal is by far the safest and most effective, the easiest to take and the most agreeable cold and cough remedy for children as well as adults. Quickest relief for catarrhal croup and children's choking up at night.

EX-POLICEMAN SENT TO JAIL ON DRY CHARGE

C. Arthur Cole Gets 30 Days and $100 for Failing to Register Still.

C. Arthur Cole, former policeman attached to the Mounted District was sentenced to 30 days in jail and fined $100 by United States District Judge Faris today when he pleaded guilty of violation of the internal revenue code by failing to register a whisky still.

Judge Faris accepted the recommendation of Assistant United States Attorney Hapke for the minimum sentence, but flatly rejected a request by Cole's attorney that the former policeman be placed on probation. Police Inspector Walton was in court prepared to act as Cole's probation officer.

Hapke told the Court the two chief Government witnesses, a man and his daughter, who lived in the house at 5973 Bancroft avenue where Cole operated the still, had disappeared. Cole's lawyer followed with his plea for a parole, explaining that as a result of Cole's disclosures five policemen had been dropped from the force on charges of protecting liquor dealers.

As a matter of fact six policemen were dropped and four were subsequently reinstated, the remaining two being told that they, too, would have an opportunity to clear themselves.

Cole's lawyer continued that Police Inspector Walton would recommend that the jail sentence be suspended and would be willing to act as parole officer.

"I will not do that," rejoined the Judge. "The disappearance of those two witnesses makes anyone who can think rather suspicious. It makes me believe somebody interested in this case made it worth their while to get out of town or out of the way. I shall accept the recommendation of the Government for the minimum sentence, but I shall not grant a parole."

HOUSE CAMPAIGN FUNDS COMMITTEE GOING TO TEXAS

Will Leave Nov. 23 for Garner's District; May Visit Hidalgo County.

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 15.—The House campaign funds committee will leave for Texas Nov. 23 to investigate campaign expenditures in the southern part of the State, particularly in the Fifteenth Congressional District which has been represented in the House for 20 years by John Garner, a Democratic stalwart.

The committee, in making its decision by unanimous vote, also mentioned the county of Hidalgo, Texas, as one of the sections in which it would inquire into campaign activities.

The motion that the committee visit Texas was made by Representative Nelson (Rep.), Maine. By a party vote of 3 to 1, the committee also adopted a resolution to request the House to extend its authority to investigate until March 1 next. This proposal was supported by Chairman Lehlbach, New Jersey; Chindblom, Illinois, and Nelson, all Republicans; Representative Black (Dem.), New York, voted no, while the other Democratic member, Representative Ragon of Arkansas was absent. The committee will go to Texas by way of St. Louis.

BEST-CLYMER CO. STOCK RISE ON RUMORS OF SALE OF FIRM

One Report Is That Kroger Grocery Co. Is Negotiating for Purchase of Food Packing Plant.

Reports of a discussion for the sale of the Best-Clymer Co. have caused a revival of activity in its stock on the local market, forcing the price up from $19.25 last month to $23, the price at which 100 shares changed hands yesterday. The latter price is about the level at which the stock sold in recent months before a slump in October.

M. E. Singleton, chairman of the board of directors of the company, declined today to discuss the negotiations. He denied one version of the report which linked the Best-Clymer Co. with the Kroger Grocery Co.

The Best-Clymer Co. manufactures and packs food products. It is capitalized at 39,998 shares of no par value common stock. It paid no dividends in 1927, but dividends of $2 and $3 a share were declared in the two years preceding.

CLARK AVENUE MAN CLAIMS WELDONA QUICKLY HELPED HIS RHEUMATISM

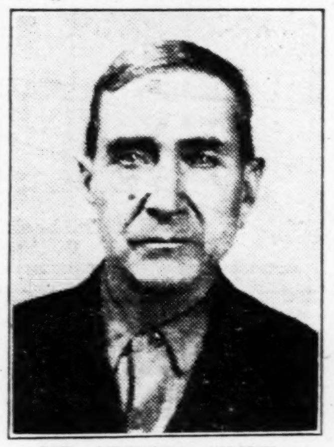
Almost every day someone in St. Louis comes forward with a letter for publication telling how Weldona quickly rid them of rheumatism. Among those who consented to talk for publication was Mr. Edward Kline, who lives at Erie House, corner Fourth and Clark avenue, said: "I have had rheumatism in my right arm, shoulder and right knee. My knees were very stiff and sore, and it was with great difficulty that I could get up from a chair after sitting any length of time. My right arm and shoulder pained and ached so that it was impossible for me to my hand to my head, to comb my hair or put on my coat. I had tried about everything recommended for rheumatism, but nothing seemed to reach my case until I obtained Weldona tablets.



MR. EDWARD KLINE.

"I really had not taken Weldona very long before I saw it was helping me. I soon began to sleep better, could get my hand to my head, comb my hair and shave. I am very enthusiastic about my recovery and will be only too glad to tell others what Weldona tablets have done for me if they care to write or call.

$1000 reward to anyone proving that testimonials are not genuine.

Weldona is absolutely harmless, and its use will not upset the stomach, affect the heart or any other organ. It contains no dope or any harmful ingredients and is full of results for rheumatics.

The Weldona representative who now meets the public every day at Walgreen's Drug Store, 514 Washington Ave., St. Louis, gladly explains more about this remedy and gives out the 24-page fully illustrated and interesting books, entitled "Germs of Rheumatism," which are absolutely free of charge to all who call or write for them.

ST. LOUIS MERCHANTS' ECHANGE, No. 15.—Wheat was irregular on the local market today, selling higher after lower early range. The close was at advance while corn finished lower. There was report that the President might outline farm relief plan in coming address.

Wheat opened fractionally lower and ruled so in the early period. Winnipeg was down fractionally early and Liverpool in afternoon cable was ⅞d to 1⅛d lower. Corn was fractionally off at outset and in early period.

The early wheat price decline was credited to report of rather free offerings of Argentine wheat to Europe.

Comment on crop prospects for Argentine and Australia also had bearish influence. Improved weather conditions were reported in corn belt.

December wheat opened at $1.15¼. May wheat, $1.23; December corn, 86⅛c and May corn, 91½c.

Local wheat receipts, which were 85,400 bushels, compared with 68,600 a week ago and 40,600 a year ago, included 16 cars local and 45 through. Corn receipts, which were 109,200 bushels, compared with 82,600 a week ago and 11,200 a year ago, included 68 cars local and 10 through. Oats receipts, which were 26,000 bushels, compared with 52,000 a week ago and 68,000 a year ago, included 11 cars local and 2 through. Hay receipts were 11 cars local and 4 through.

GREAT FAITH IN THE NEW KONJOLA MEDICINE SHOWN

From every section of St. Louis, including many nearby towns, there came a vast number of people to find out about this new Konjola medical compound. It is appalling to note the great majority of modern people who are suffering from different forms of stomach, liver, kidney and bowel disorders. Several prominent, well-known St. Louis residents were among the first to purchase this medicine.

THE KONJOLA MAN

The Konjola Man has arranged to interview everyone personally, and has taken up headquarters at the Walgreen Store, 515 Olive street, where crowds are calling to purchase the medicine or ask for free samples and literature.

"Konjola takes a different form of action on the human system than any previously known medicine," said The Konjola Man. "It is a liquid taken immediately after meals, which works with the sufferer's own food. It contains the medicinal ingredients of twenty-two Natural plants. These have the best possible effect upon the stomach, liver, kidneys and bowels, so that your food works with nature, restoring more healthy normal action to these important organs. After all, it is Nature that really does the work, and Konjola brings the help that nature requires. This is the safest, surest and best way to conquer the ailments so many people are suffering, for example:

"Sharp pains over the kidneys, a dull, achy feeling across the back, swollen limbs, frequent night rising, dizziness, spots before the eyes, liver trouble, including biliousness, sick headaches, yellowish complexion and constipation, stomach trouble with the familiar symptoms of indigestion, wild heart palpitation, feeling like fire from the throat to the pit of the stomach, intense pains and a heavy feeling like a rock in the stomach, sour, acidy risings in the throat, sharp cramps, etc.

"Many other forms of misery come from disordered stomach, liver, kidneys and bowels. Rheumatism and neuritis is common. The pains are intense, muscles swollen, joints stiff and rigid. Neuritis and rheumatism are very similar, and often one disease is mistaken for the other. In either event, both ailments cause intense suffering, often leading to fatality. Liniments, rubbing treatments, and many chemical medicines ordinarily bring just temporary relief. Such ailments must be permanently ended from the system within."

The Konjola Man comes to St. Louis direct from unusual successes in other large cities. In Cincinnati over a thousand public statements of indorsement were issued in praise of this Konjola, many from public officials, doctors, nurses, ministers and people in all walks of life. 100,000 bottles were sold in 20 weeks in Detroit and Toledo.

The Konjola Man is at the Walgreen Drug Store, 515 Olive street, where he is daily meeting the public and introducing and explaining the merits of this remedy. Free samples given.

AMAZING
GROWTH OF ST. LOUIS

Makes it possible for one of St. Louis' most successful firms to offer an opportunity with earning possibility of $40 a week as a minimum in addition to your present salary; permanent position for those not engaged in other work. These positions are especially appealing to

BOOKKEEPERS, TEACHERS,
HOUSEWIVES, CLERKS,
CARPENTERS, MECHANICS,
ALL TRADESMEN.

We do not desire door-to-door canvassers nor salespeople: THIS IS PUBLICITY WORK, AND EXPERIENCE IS NOT NECESSARY, just ordinary common sense. We have no schools; there is no delay; you go to work at once and are given every assistance and co-operation by expert executives to help make your advancement rapid; our future executives being chosen from those fortunate enough to be selected at this time.

THIS OPPORTUNITY TO INCREASE YOUR PRESENT EARNINGS SHOULD TAKE YOU OUT OF THE SMALL-PAYING DRUDGERY CLASS; A CONNECTION WITH US SHOULD END YOUR MONEY WORRIES. Was such an opportunity ever offered you before?

Our representative has arranged to receive you IN PERSON ONLY—from 2 to 2:30 p. m., or from 7:30 to 8 p. m., on Friday, November 16. Telephone applications not considered. If you are white and over 25 years of age and are INTERESTED IN MAKING MONEY, tear this ad out as a reminder and apply at Room 306 Missouri Hotel only during the above hours.

NEW YORK BONDS (COMPLETE)

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, Nov. 15.—Total transactions in bonds on the New York Stock Exchange today amounted to $11,474,000; previous day's sales $12,409,000; week ago, $10,309,000; year ago $14,495,000. Total transactions from Jan. 1 to date were $2,624,990,000, compared with $2,931,517,000 a year ago and $2,597,617,000 two years ago.

Quotations on all Liberty bonds are in dollars and thirty-seconds of a dollar; that is, for instance, a sale printed $99—24 means $99 and 24 thirty-seconds of a dollar and not $99.24.

History and Business: The Bellanca Aircraft Corporation, incorporated under the laws of the State of Delaware on December 31, 1927, is the outgrowth of my twenty-two years of research and practical experience in the development of aviation. The company is engaged in the manufacture and sale of aeroplanes at New Castle, Delaware. The manufacturing plant is located on a tract of about 365 acres, which includes a flying field endowed with great natural advantages, a feature of which is an 1100 foot frontage on the Delaware River. It is one of the most modern aviation fields on the eastern coast, and is equipped with two runways—east and west, 5,000 feet and north and south, 2,500 feet. The manufacturing and assembly plants and the hangar embody the latest improvements in designing construction and all other facilities to form a complete unit for aircraft construction.

Production: The Bellanca Aircraft Corporation is now manufacturing aeroplanes at the rate of five aeroplanes a month, and are concentrating at present on the Bellanca CH, a cabin monoplane, powered by a Wright Whirlwind engine, and with a seating capacity for six persons. The safety, comfort and exceptional performance of this model, which is a refined and perfected development of the famous Columbia, has created a demand for the Bellanca CH, which necessitates an expansion of our manufacturing facilities.

Record: The purchase of the Bellanca plane rests upon its consistently remarkable performance under all conditions. It has won first place in every efficiency contest entered. At the recent National Air Meet in Los Angeles, a Bellanca won the Aviation Town and Country Club trophy for efficiency, the fourth time this has been won by a Bellanca. At the same meet a Bellanca won the Detroit News Transportation trophy for efficiency, competing against five makes of planes. After the Los Angeles meet, E. F. Schlee and W. S. Brock established a new American endurance record with a Bellanca, staying in the air 59 hours, 7½ minutes, with a load of 6,300 pounds, the heaviest load ever carried by a plane of this size. The old world's endurance record made by Clarence Chamberlin and Bert Acosta in April, 1927, and the New York to Germany flight of the Columbia emphasize the soundness of the principle which underlies the designs and construction of Bellanca planes.

Purpose of Issue: Proceeds from pending financing will be used to enter upon a program of quantity production in the various models of Bellanca monoplanes, including seaplanes and multi-engine planes. This schedule calls for an output of one plane per day of the CH type. In addition to the present models, the company plans to announce in the near future a new type of commercial plane with new motor arrangements superior in efficiency in my opinion to any craft now on the market.

Earnings and Balance Sheet: Due to the heavy expense involved in the initial operations and moving of the plant to New Castle, Delaware, in June of this year, indicated profits for 1928 will not be material but have been consistently on the increase for the past few months. I am convinced that the profits to be secured from the business now on the Company's books will be most gratifying to stockholders for the year 1929. In addition the Company should derive a large amount of income during the coming year due to the development of its airport and through other models of planes.

The balance sheet of the Bellanca Aircraft Corporation upon the completion of the present financing as of September 30, 1928, as certified by Messrs Lybrand, Ross Bros. & Montgomery, shows current assets of $1,786,561.33 and current liabilities of $104,707.78, or a ratio of 17 to 1.

Management: The management will be under the direction of Mr. Giuseppe M. Ballanca with whom will be associated executives of wide experience in production methods.

In order to insure continuity and stability of policy, the holders of the new stock will transfer same to five Voting Trustees under a five year Voting Trust Agreement.

Applications will be made in due course to list the Voting Trust Certificates on the New York Curb Market.

Price $23.50 per share

The Voting Trust Certificates are offered subject to allotment or prior sale and in respects when, as and if issued, and accepted by us, and subject to approval by our counsel. It is expected that delivery of temporary certificates or of interim receipts will be made on or about November 26th, 1928, at the office of the American Trust Company, 135 Broadway, New York City, against payment therefor in New York funds. Legal details passed upon for the Bankers, by Messrs. Choate, Larocque & Mitchell, New York City, and for the Corporation, by Robert H. Richards, Esq., Wilmington, Del.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 15.—Loans to brokers and dealers, held by New York Federal Reserve member banks for the week ending Nov. 14 were announced by the Federal Reserve Board today as $4,930,817,000, representing an increase of $1,849,000 as compared with the preceding week.

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, Nov. 15.—The New York Stock Exchange easily absorbed a tremendous amount of selling today and in the late hours of trading prices again tended upward, wiping out or diminishing a number of losses running from 1 to 5 points, and sending a number of issues up 4 to 10 points.

The afternoon upturn came in the face of a rise in the call money rate from six to 6½ per cent. Westinghouse Electric was swept up 10 points to 138½, a record price, while A. M. Byers rose 8. Coppers again came in for heavy buying, Kennecott rushing up 5 to 141¾, a new high price. General Motors overcame early heaviness and made a moderate gain.

The ticker again fell far behind the transactions, and total sales mounted to the vicinity of 5,000,000 shares.

* * *

Spurt in Last Hour.

The ability of the market to absorb the tremendous profit taking sales without a serious setback aroused new enthusiasm among the bulls, and old favorites like the coppers began to stride upward at a fast pace in the final hour. Andes and Kennecott broke into new high ground for the year. A. M. Byers and Westinghouse Electric extended their gains a number of points, the latter reaching the highest figure in its history. General Motors, which had been heavy, showed some recuperative power. Bethlehem Steel went higher.

There were a few large blocks at the opening, but as the session progressed, the bulk of the transactions appeared in lots of less than 200 shares.

These small transactions again delayed the stock ticker, which was about 40 minutes late at 1:30 p. m.

Call money renewed unchanged at 6 per cent, despite the heavy midmonth demand for funds. Much of the day's selling undoubtedly was inspired by predictions of an increase of more than $100,000,000 in brokers' loans, which have been rising now for 11 consecutive weeks.

In First Three Hours.

Radio dropped from an early high of 277 to 269 and Montgomery Ward from 293¾ to 285⅛, but both made partial recovery. Sears-Roebuck sold down 5½ points below last night's final price, Peoples Gas 4 and Midland Steel Products preferred, Keith-Albee preferred and Warner Brothers A sold down 3 points or more. Sinclair, Barnsdall and several of the motor shares also turned heavy.

City Stores B came to the forefront of the advance with a nine-point jump to a new high at 114⅞. Chicago Pneumatic Tool ran up seven and one-half points to a new high at 150 and National Dairy Products, Air Reduction, National Supply and Johns Manville all advanced five points or more to new high prices for the year.

COTTON TRADE IS QUIET ON NEW YORK MARKET

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, Nov. 15.—The cotton market was extremely quiet today, with an early decline in response to relatively easy cables which evidently promptid some liquidation and Southern selling. Moderate rallies followed. The early offerings were absorbed by trade buying or covering and fluctuations later were comparatively narrow. In mid-afternoon the market was dull but steady, with the active months ruling about 3 to 7 points net lower.

Futures closed steady, 3 to 5 points lower: December, 19.56-57c; January, 19.49c; March, 19.50-52c; May, 19.40-41; July, 19.24-25.

Value of Management

"Many years' experience leads us to believe that rightly managed, there are few investments that will afford a more adequate income or a greater enhancement in value over a period of years."

There it is: Real estate will not manage itself. More owners are coming to realize this, and are coming in to join us, and give us the benefit of their experience and get the value of ours.

YOUTH TAKEN IN POLICE CHASE OVER ROOFTOPS

Charles Nabert Arrested on Burglary Charge; Two Others Are Held.

When police went to the room of Charles Nabert, 17 years old, 4617A Delmar boulevard, early today to arrest him as a burglar and automobile thief, Nabert fled to a rear porch, carrying a bag of golf clubs, an aviator's coat and a pair of goggles. Nabert stepped on a chair, flung the bag and other articles onto an overhanging roof and climbed up after them.

Police Sergt. George Siefert also climbed to the roof. Then began a chase over roof tops to Walton avenue, 21 roofs away. Nabert, clutching the golf bag, aviator's coat and goggles, jumped the spaces between the roofs and the policeman followed. At length Nabert came to the last roof and was faced with the alternative of jumping off or surrendering. He surrendered.

Police then went to the home of Guy Bales, 22, 4621 Enright avenue, and arrested him in bed. A third youth, Charles McIntosh, 18, who gave an address on Newberry terrace, had been arrested as he fled from the drug store of Landers Ester at 3457 Morganford road. Patrolman John Maize was trying the front door there at 1:30 a. m., when he saw two men inside. He went to the rear and caught McIntosh as he ran out. A second man ran out and escaped with a third who had waited in an automobile. The patrolman fired three shots at the car. The drug store had been robbed of $30.

Police reported McIntosh named Nabert and Bales as his accomplices in the drug store burglary and also implicated them in eight automobile thefts. Police have not learned where Nabert got the golf outfit and aviator's equipment.

Patrolmen Charles Rein and Ernest Busch were chasing two Negroes through an alley near Garrison and Easton avenues last night when one Negro turned and fired two shots at Busch. Busch fired five times at the Negro who dropped his revolver and overcoat, but escaped. The Negro staggered as if wounded, Busch reported. Rein fired three shots at the other Negro, who also escaped. The Negroes had just taken $10 in a holdup of Max Fredlich, proprietor of a dry goods store at 3024 Easton avenue, whose cries for help brought the policemen to the scene.

TRAFFIC ON VANDEVENTER LINE

Surveyed by Public Service Co., Which Would Abandon Cars.

Checkers for the Public Service Co. have begun a survey of the traffic carried on the Vandeventer car line, which the company wants to abandon in favor of busses when the widening of Vandeventer avenue is completed. The observations are being made at the chief transfer points. The information will be submitted to the Public Service Commission, which is considering the company's proposal.

Other checkers for the car company are counting the number of service cars in operation, the number of their passengers and their time schedules. Service cars are considered to give the trolleys serious competition and to interfere with traffic downtown.

DENOUNCES TOLL BRIDGES

Head of U. S. Highway Officials Say They Should Not Exist.

By the Associated Press.

CHICAGO, Nov. 15.—Addressing the American Association of State Highway Officials yesterday, its president, J. M. Mackall, declared "toll bridges should not be permitted."

In support of that opinion, the assembled highway officials rerouted Federal Highway No. 40 through Ohio so that it would pass through Marietta over a toll bridge which the State has the right to purchase. At present it uses a private bridge upon which the State has no option.

Closes School to Go Hunting.

By the Associated Press.

BREMEN, O., Nov. 15.—E. J. Arnold, school superintendent here, learned when the hunting season opened today that virtually all his boys and some of his girls wanted to go hunting, so he dismissed the entire school of 300 for the day. Then, shouldering his gun and unleashing his dog, he took to the field with a party of his high school boys.

Civil War Veteran Disposes of Membership in Board of Trade to Retire.

By the Associated Press.

CHICAGO, Nov. 15.—Seats on the Chicago Board of Trade touch a new high price yesterday when two were sold at $28,500 each. Eben Matthews, 82-year-old Civil War veteran, sold one of the seats and retired. The purchasers were D. M. Woodruff of Detroit and Matthew Becker, Chicago.

Since directors of the board recently appropriated $100,000 for developing a securities market, memberships have been in sharp demand. Twenty-four were sold while the price climbed from $12,000 to $20,000, five went at more than $20,000.

Liner to Become Whaler.

By the Associated Press.

GOTHENBURG, Sweden, Nov. 14.—From trans-Atlantic passenger liner to whaler in the Antarctic will be the fate of the veteran Swedish American Steamer Stockholm which has arrived in Gothenburg on its last trip from New York. The ship has been sold to a newly formed Norwegian company which will transform it into a whale boat with a modern whale oil distillery on board. The Stockholm was built as the Potsdam in Hamburg for the Holland-American Line. In 1915 it was bought by the Swedish-American Line.

THE WAY
— OF —
A WOMAN

— By —
Marguerite Mooers Marshall

WIVES' WRONGS.

THE wrongs of husbands—notably alimony, which afflicts the ex-husband rather than the current husband—are to be threshed out at an international congress, meeting next January in Vienna. As an assist to the agenda of the Congress, this column noted yesterday what seem, to its pitying feminine eye, ten typical Husbands' Wrongs. But by no means are all the wrongs on one side of marriage. To-day we offer a careful compilation of ten Wives' Wrongs, and we sincerely hope that some day, somewhere, a woman's congress deals with them—or, rather, with the husbands responsible for them!

1. Whenever the wife has a run in her stocking or a rip in her sleeve she hears about it from her lord and master, but he is a one-way commentator on her appearance—he can always criticise, he can never compliment.

2. The wife must be a human timetable and memorandum, getting everybody in the house up in the morning and off to train or school; getting dinner ready on the dot at night; getting laundry, ice, groceries, meat, Sunday papers and her husband's newly pressed evening clothes into the house on time.

3. The wife is frequently subjected by her husband to slighting comparison with women younger, richer, more leisured and more selfish than herself.

4. The wife is expected to laugh at her husband's funny stories and to believe the stories of his unusual cleverness every time she hears them—the same stories.

5. No matter how valiantly she has pleaded with him to forswear the 11 p. m. cheese sandwiches that mean a sick headache next day, no matter how she has implored him to avoid wet feet and clothes and the consequent heavy cold by wearing rubbers and taking an umbrella, still the wife of a husband who becomes ill through his own folly gets the treatment of an illegally registered voter from an election official of the opposite party—in short, she's regarded as the world's guiltiest.

6. The housekeeping wife is the slave to her husband's dietetic preferences; she may delight in the savory broiled squab or the simple fried tripe, or the delicate snow pudding, yet if he thinks "you don't get but a bite of the first," or that the second is "common," or that the third "has no taste to it"—she can never serve one of her favorite dishes.

7. The wife is continually accused of hiding or throwing away the screwdriver, the favorite pipe or the slip of paper with the bootlegger's new number—just because no man ever knows where he leaves anything.

8. Sooner or later every husband addresses to his wife a sentence beginning, "When you were young"—

9. Even though the wife work as hard and earn as much outside the home as the husband, it is she, not he, who either performs or is responsible for the performance of the work inside the home—as he says, he "doesn't sew on buttons when there's a woman around."

10. The wife may be loved, respected, even obeyed, but almost never is she romantically adored—in the moonlight her husband merely remarks, "Some moon," and when she says, "Do you love me?" he answers, "Sure!"

Burned food means a careless cook and if you should by chance spoil something through burning, don't tell everyone about it. We are not allowed to boast about our good points in this world and why should we select our mistakes for broadcasting? Children's Bedtime Story
By THORNTON W. BURGESS.

RUSTY IS WORSE OFF THAN BEFORE.

Oh, how the world of pain would shrink
If people now and then would think —Old Mother Nature.

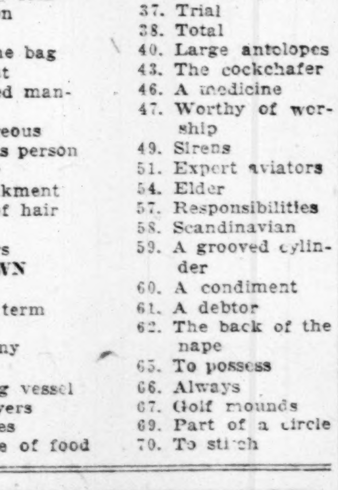
* * *

SPANG! A bullet from the air rifle of a boy who thought he was having sport tore through a leaf close beside Rusty the Fox Squirrel. This was bad enough, but a moment later something worse happened. He heard the voice of a boy calling and it wasn't the voice of the boy who was shooting at him. Then the boy down below answered. They called back and forth two or three times and presently another boy appeared on the scene and joined the one down at the foot of the tree. He also had a horrid air rifle.



"What are you shooting at?" he demanded of the firstcomer.

"What are you shooting at?" he demanded of the first-comer.

"A Squirrel," replied the first-comer. "A big Fox Squirrel. I hit him once. Between us, we ought to get him. We'll have a lot of sport hunting him."

"Where is he?" demanded the newcomer eagerly.

"Way up in the top of this tree," replied the first boy. "He manages to keep the trunk of the tree between him and me, but with two of us he won't be able to do that. Do you see the knot 'way up there on the trunk of the tree? Well, that Squirrel is just about opposite that, only on the other side of the tree. Now, you keep a sharp watch there, while I go around on the other side. Be ready to shoot the instant he comes around."

The newcomer said he would. The other boy backed away a little and began moving around the opposite side of the tree. No sooner did he get around there than Rusty whisked around the trunk of the tree close to that knot the first boy had pointed out. Spang! A bullet chipped a piece of bark off right close to Rusty's face.

Spang! Another bullet passed right through Rusty's whiskers. This was getting too hot for comfort. There was nothing for it but to try another tree. Rusty ran out along a limb and jumped to the nearest limb of another tree. As he did so, two bullets whistled close by him. Then began a race through the treetops. As fast as he could, Rusty tried to get away by jumping from tree to tree. Below, shouting excitedly, ran the boys, shooting whenever they got the chance. Another bullet hit Rusty and stung. My how it did sting! Fright and pain made him feel as miserable as ever a Squirrel did feel.

Once he thought he had found a place of safety. It was an old crows' nest. Rusty curled up in the nest and was out of sight. But it didn't take the boys long to guess where he'd gone. One of them started to climb the tree. Rusty waited until he was almost to the nest. Then he jumped out and once more ran for his life. The moment he was out of that nest, the other boy began shooting.

It was great fun for the boys, but it was very dreadful for Rusty. It always is very dreadful for the ones who are hunted. The worst of it was, Rusty couldn't see any reason for it. He understood being hunted by Redtail the Hawk and Hooty the Owl, and other enemies among the furred and feathered folk. Those people were hungry and they were hunting him because they were hungry. But these two-legged creatures didn't need him for food. And they seemed to be having a good time in hunting him. Rusty couldn't understand it at all. When you come to think of it, it is rather hard to understand.

ETIQUETTE

By Kathrine de Peyster.

INTRODUCTIONS.

WHAT would be the correct form of introduction between a man friend and my sister? Would I introduce my sister to the gentleman or vice versa, and what would I say?

2. How would I introduce a married sister and her husband and what would be the right thing to say?

INTERESTED.

• • •

1. A gentleman is introduced to a lady. Therefore, you would say, "Mary, may I present (or introduce) Mr. Allen?" Or, "Mary, this is Mr. Allen," or "Mary, Mr. Allen"—these are in their order of formality.

2. If you are introducing a married woman to her, say, "Mary, this is Mrs. Allen," "Mary, Mrs. Allen." If the woman is unmarried, you say, "Mary, this is Miss Allen, or "Mary, Miss Allen." (An unmarried woman is introduced to a married woman.)

If you are introducing a gentleman, say, "Mary, this is Mr. Allen," or, "This is my sister, Mr. Allen." Then present her husband in the way that I have indicated above.

I LIKE to read your column on etiquette, and in a recent column a question was asked about addressing a married woman. To quote you, "it is extremely bad form to address a letter to a married woman, "Mrs. Mary D. Smith."

1. Suppose one has received a letter from a woman who signs herself, Mrs. Mary D. Smith, and it is unknown to the person receiving the letter what the husband's given name is. In answering this letter, how should it be addressed?

2. In signing her name to a letter, should a woman who is married sign it Mary D. Smith, Mrs. Mary D. Smith, Mrs. Peter James Smith?

3. When one knows only the given name of a woman and knows not whether she is married or not, as is the case in my writing to you now, how should a letter be addressed, "Miss" or "Mrs."? E. S.

1. Since you do not know the writer's formal name, you would have to address it to Mrs. Mary D. Smith. To prevent this undignified and incorrect addressing of the answer envelope, a married woman should, when she is writing to a person who does not know her husband's name, indicate it after the direct signature: Very truly yours, Mary Dwight Smith. (Mrs. Anthony Smith.)

2. A letter—no matter what kind it is—should never be signed Mrs. anybody. For the direct signature, Mary D. Smith, or better, the name for which the D. Stands written out, is correct.

16 and 40 No Excess Fat

It's easy to avoid

Everybody knows that excess fat is nowhere near so common as it was. Mothers look like daughters. Slender figures are the rule. You should know how scientific research has brought this change about.

Science has discovered that a great cause of excess fat lies in a deficient gland. No starvation, no over-work can cure it. The cause must be corrected, and that lies in a gland which largely controls nutrition.

Modern physicians, in treating obesity, attack that cause. They supply the lack. That is why excess fat has so fast disappeared in late years. Slender figures are the vogue.

A great medical laboratory, years ago, embodied this new method in Marmola prescription tablets. People have used them for over 20 years—millions of boxes of them. You see the results wherever you look. There is new youth and beauty, new health and vitality. Excess fat is nowhere near as common as it was.

Do what these people have done—multitudes of them, for 21 years. They have seen the fat go, seen new youth and vigor come back. Friends all about you will testify to that.

Every box of Marmola contains the formula, also the reasons for results. You will know exactly why these good effects appear. Get back to normal weight in this scientific way. Fat is a disease. You will benefit in many ways when the cause is ended. Start now.

Marmola prescription tablets are sold by all druggists at $1 per box. If your druggist is out, he will get them at once from his jobber.

NOVELTY MARKS NEW FASHIONS

NEW YORK.

THE extreme novelty of the fashions of 1928 is most vividly illustrated by the evening gowns that are seen at smart gatherings everywhere in America. They are distinguished by a new splendor of material, beauty of line and intricacy of workmanship.

The most important fabric for evening wear is moire taffeta. Taffeta is no longer limited to the bouffant frocks of the debutantes. The new gowns achieve a dignity and sophistication that are demanded by women of all ages. They are cut with long, snug corsages and have crisp circular flounces, peplums or godets that drop low at the sides or the sides of the back, for the very irregular hemline is an essential of the well-cut evening gown. One beautiful deep rose taffeta gown had a silver thread moire that shimmered with every movement of the wearer. Another very novel cream moire gown was polka dotted in gold thread. Its circular peplum slanted down toward the back and its line was carried out by circular drapery that dropped below the hem at the sides of the back.

Transparent velvet is another of the smart fabrics this season. It is seen in printed designs, but is most chic in dull black. Several lovely gowns had loose, irregular panels and soft bows at one hip or the back. In these the greatest length was usually placed at one side. One very effective black velvet gown had a smooth princess silhouette achieved by diagonal lines and a very full circular skirt, dipping at the back, that hung straight in a tube-like effect when in repose and flared gracefully when the wearer moved. Its smooth blackness was unrelieved by color, but the ensemble was enlivened by slippers and an evening bag of silver sequins.

The splendor of metal creates a demand for fabrics in which metal is introduced. There are numbers of metal brocade gowns, cut with straight panels that flow in beautiful long lines from a girdle placed at a low waistline. Metal lace gowns are extremely popular and becoming to the younger set. They are made in exquisite confections of lace and tulle or entirely of lace. One very smart gown of silver lace had a swathed hipline dipping low at the back and repeating the line of the low decolletage. Its circular skirt was full and just cleared the ground at the back.

Girl's Advertisement Asks for New Mother

FATHERS often advertise in German papers for suitable husbands for their daughters, but the case of a daughter seeking a new mother through the medium of the press, is believed to be unique.

The Munich Neueste Nachrichten has the following advertisement: "For my father, tall, slim, versatile, good looking widower of 50, I wish to hear of a refined lady, with a view to matrimony."

"Am remaining in Munich only one week longer, so shall appreciate prompt offers to the office of this paper."

Place a crust of bread in the kettle in which cabbage is cooking. It will absorb a great deal of the odor.

Do You Match Your Neck With Your Face?

The Movie Stars Do!

One of the reasons why these beautiful young women always look so lovely and well-groomed is because their makeup does not stop with the face! No woman can be said to be fully made up unless the neck matches the face. And a dab of powder won't do it! But Cinderella Finishing Lotion—now offered to the public for the first time—will do it! It is made in five shades and tones the skin of the neck, arms or shoulders in tints that make it harmonize with the complexion. It will not rub off—and resists the action of water. Prevents tan, freckles and sunburn—and does not clog the pores or dry the skin. Used with other Cinderella Cosmetics it insures perfect grooming and positive protection.

Influence of the Parents

By Dr. Brice Belden.

THE attitude of the child toward the parents manifests itself in curious ways in adult life, not only from the standpoint of the individual but from the standpoint of society as well.

All children bear their parents love and affection. On the other hand, since parents must needs coerce, correct and even punish the child, we find that the child, besides love, often feels some measure of resentment toward those whose task it is to train him.

Especially is this true of children whose character is obstinate and independent. The restraint placed upon them is naturally more vigorous than that used to curb a docile, co-operative being. In consequence of which such self-willed children may, at times, develop antagonisms toward either mother or father, or both, that actually amount to hate.

As the child matures authority over his actions passes more or less completely from the parents until he feels quite free so far as they are concerned.

However, wholly or partly, new authorities begin to impose themselves upon him. His teachers or his nurse exert such influence early. Later it is wife or husband, as the case may be, employers, the police and the State.

Now then, the degree of general resistance to authority in general is largely conditioned by the degree of tolerance or intolerance which the adult manifested as a child. The individual may not realize that he is willing or unwilling to adapt himself to the restraints of society because of his willingness or unwillingness to be coerced by his parent as a child, and usually those motivations are entirely unconscious to him. Nevertheless, direct correlations can be worked out in any particular case and, when these are brought to his attention, the individual remembers how he felt as a child and can quickly link cause and effect together.

A study of the histories of persons of criminal tendencies shows how frequently they were lawless as youngsters and how, specifically, they disliked one or both parents and refused to be ruled by them.

It is interesting to note further how our society has somehow recognized the continuance, either direct or by substitution, of parent affection and has used terms to designate this symbolic attitude.

For example, the term Alma Mater signifies a kindly mother who cherishes and cares for us after we go out into the world just as did their real mothers years before.

The term Mother Church is also employed in a similar sense of guidance and protection and in the Catholic Church the priest is spoken of as Father.

We must do what we can to instill love, tenderness, respect, loyalty, pride and admiration in our children as regards their attitude toward us.

Continual exhibitions of disobedience and resentfulness should be studied and overcome. For we never can tell how much, and in what specific ways these childhood resentments may affect the social status and happiness of our boys and girls after they grow up.

Girl's Advertisement Asks for New Mother

FATHERS often advertise in German papers for suitable husbands for their daughters, but the case of a daughter seeking a new mother through the medium of the press is believed to be unique.

The Munich Neueste Nachrichten has the following advertisement: "For my father, tall, slim, versatile, good looking widower of 50, I wish to hear of a refined lady, with a view to matrimony."

This modern match-making daughter is in a hurry about it, too, for her advertisement goes on: "Am remaining in Munich only one week longer, so shall appreciate prompt offers to the office of this paper."

Influence of the Parents

By Dr. Brice Belden.

THE attitude of the child toward the parents manifests itself in curious ways in adult life, not only from the standpoint of the individual but from the standpoint of society as well.

All children bear their parents love and affection. On the other hand, since parents must needs coerce, correct and even punish the child, we find that the child, besides love, often feels some measure of resentment toward those whose task it is to train him.

Especially is this true of children whose character is obstinate and independent. The restraint placed upon them is naturally more vigorous than that used to curb a docile, co-operative being. In consequence of which such self-willed children may, at times, develop antagonisms toward either mother or father, or both, that actually amount to hate.

As the child matures authority over his actions passes more or less completely from the parents until he feels quite free so far as they are concerned.

However, wholly or partly, new authorities begin to impose themselves upon him. His teachers or his nurse exert such influence early. Later it is wife or husband, as the case may be, employers, the police and the State.

Now then, the degree of general resistance to authority in general is largely conditioned by the degree of tolerance or intolerance which the adult manifested as a child. The individual may not realize that he is willing or unwilling to adapt himself to the restraints of society because of his willingness or unwillingness to be coerced by his parent as a child, and usually those motivations are entirely unconscious to him. Nevertheless, direct correlations can be worked out in any particular case and often, if brought to his attention, the individual remembers how he felt as a child and can quickly link cause and effect together.

It is interesting to note further how society has somehow recognized the continuance, either direct or by substitution, of parent affection and has used terms to designate this symbolic attitude.

For example, the term Alma Mater signifies a kindly mother who prepares her sons and daughters for the world just as did their real mothers years before.

The term Mother Church is also employed in a similar sense of guidance and protection and in the Catholic Church the priest is spoken of as Father.

SAYINGS OF

Mrs. Solomon

By Helen Rowland

THE HAPPY WIDOW.

My Daughter, waste not thy pity upon the Golf Widow.

* * *

Go to. Other wives may have their sorrows and afflictions. But where GOLF is, there is sweetness and light—and a good digestion!

* * *

Nay, he ariseth at dawn, and sneaketh out of the house, while the family yet reposeth. He maketh his own coffee, and complaineth not. He fortifieth himself at the font within his locker, and all the world looketh rosy!

* * *

Lo, what golfer complaineth at the ringing of the alarm clock, or waiteth to be called unto seven times seven times?

* * *

The grouch knoweth him not; and dyspepsia is a stranger unto him. His liver worketh more beautifully than a new car, and his figure keepeth its slenderness and symmetry. Embonpoint cometh not nigh unto him.

* * *

Go to. Every man hath his pet folly, whereby he worketh off the original sin within him. And some choose wine and some tobacco and some choose love and some choose poker. But GOLF exceedeth them all!

* * *

Other men may vent their morning-after grouches upon their wives; but the golfer bloweth off the carbon of his brainstorms in the open, where it is safe. His moods and his complexes are known only to his God and caddy!

* * *

Other husbands may be full of alibis and deviousness. But the golfer confineth all his lying to boasting of his GAME, and deceiving his fellow-players. He hath no imagination left!

* * *

Yet his wife feeleth no jealousy, whatsoever his wanderings and howsoever long his absence. For she knoweth that he prefereth a pleasant day and a beautiful course, unto a moonlight night and a beautiful woman.

* * *

* * *

* * *

WOMAN'S RIGHTS AND MAN'S

By Dorothy Frooks

ALMOST every State in the Union gives woman the right to the disposition of her property. At one time when the common law predominated, woman's property automatically passed to her husband the moment they were married. The law made them one, and that one was the man. Man took possession of his wife and all she had.

With the equalization in the business world that has since followed, woman's independence in economic and commercial spheres has brought on new laws. Today woman has more rights than man, in the very field that ignored her existence in the past.

Woman has a dower right in her husband's real estate. A dower right is a one-third interest in properties which her husband had at the time of their marriage or obtained subsequently. To dispose of these properties, the husband cannot give good title to the purchaser unless his wife signs the deed of conveyance together with his signature. In signing, she conveys the property jointly with her husband. Dower rights which take effect only after the husband's demise are thereby relinquished. No man can convey or sell his real estate holdings unless his wife signs her name to the conveyance or sale on the same deed with her husband.

A woman who owns real estate, no matter how she obtained it, has an exclusive right in disposing of same. Whether or not she bought the property with her husband's money does not matter in her disposition of her property. If the deed is in her name, she can sell or convey as she pleases. It is not necessary for her husband to sign. The deed is valid and his consent is not necessary.

Woman can dispose of her property freely. According to the laws in nearly every State, the husband must have his wife's signature to pass good title.

There is an organization shouting that this is a discrimination against men. They are trying to effect legislation to do away with the privileges that women have. As it stands today it appears, "what's yours is mine, and what is mine is my own." Women are exploiting the apparent unfairness of the situation. Men are chivalrous and silent in this regard.

After all, the laws are made for the majority. The greater number of our wives today are totally dependent upon their husbands' support. Under these conditions we cannot accept the conclusions of a handful of women. If we were to fall in line with their thought we would be depriving a nation full of women of the protection they really need. Strange to say, the women who least understand the laws are those who need the protection most.

Shake your furnace grate to remove the ashes and stop before the live coals drop out?

* * *

Spread the coal evenly over the whole grate area?

* * *

Keep the dampers wide open after firing until the blue flame appears, then check off the draft as much as your need for heat requires?

* * *

Keep the ash pit free from ashes?

* * *

* * *

* * *

Spread a thin layer of the anthracite pea or buckwheat over the entire grate and let this ignite well before filling the fire pot with coke, then when this burns a blue flame do you add another layer of the anthracite?

Sanitary Cotton.

When there are kiddies in the family (and it isn't always the kiddies) it is hard to keep the box of absorbent cotton closed and sterile. The cotton is gotten in haste and is left out of its wrappings and forgotten. A Mason jar is nice to hold absorbent cotton and stands more chance of being closed after using.

Hems Out of Date For Sports Clothes

THERE are no hems to let out on the newest Paris sports clothes. Hems are out of favor and in their stead Paris uses row on row of machine stitching to finish wool sports clothes. The same method is used for cuffs and collars at some of the leading houses of sports apparel.

Tweeds are the cause of the change. They do not hang well, dressmakers say, when finished with hems which have to be put in on the bias, since most of the current season's sport skirts are more or less circular.

The Work Table.

One mother has taken a discarded card table and covered it with plain black oilcloth. She keeps this in the play room and what fun the children have when they want to play games, paint, cut out paper dolls, etc. The oilcloth will wipe off easily and if scratched, it is not serious, as it may be replaced very cheaply.

Chicken filling may be made a little "fussier" by adding a few chopped nuts.

A Good Indian

BY E. J. RATH

INSTALLMENT XXVI

CONFIDENCES.

THE work of the trail was hard. It was a work that sent the traveler cringing to his tent at night from sheer weariness, with aching shoulders and back, numb arms and leaden legs; it even dulled thought at the day's end, so that a blanket on a rough and lumpy pile of balsam seemed a couch quilted for a sybarite. It was a toughening, hardening life, but exacted rigorously its toll of privation.

Putnam was dazed by it, even though he shirked what he could—which was much. Some of the buoyant indifference slipped from him. Fight as he would against it, he felt himself merging into the routine, even becoming a part of the machine itself, although a lesser one. He did nothing he could avoid, yet far more than he had believed possible. He worked with his hands!

Louis was relentless! He did not explain that there was an easier way; he did not need to, for there were none but the guides to dispute him, and the guides worked by the day and were indifferent. He was a driver, taciturn and without compassion, meting punishment and granting no mercy. The water journeys were short and the portages many. Always, between water and water, a ragged hill trail interposed. The whole placid scheme of the big woods gave way to rough paths and stony heights, where the tasks crowded close upon each other and the rests were few.

But it was not the physical exaction that printed its mark on the face of Therese Putnam. It was something that came from within. There was still cynicism in her eyes, but it was half-dissolved with a look of inquiry and doubt; sometimes the balance changed, as in a motion-picture film, one picture fading, the other intensifying, yet both clear upon the same field. There was a puzzle in her brain, crying for somebody to read the answer; a queer uncertainty that robbed her of sureness and threatened the poise that was a part of her pride.

Cassie Reynolds, who matched her closely in some things, sensed the change quickly; more than that, she understood it. She could read a meaning in the faint disquiet of manner in Putnam's wife, in her preoccupied and silent moments, and in the furtive glances that sometimes roved the camp, affecting to be aimless, yet always searching for something. Cassie said nothing; she did not tell even Louis, to whom she told most things. She merely watched and remembered—and thought.

It was on a portage, at noonday, where the lunch stop was made, that Mrs. Putnam linked her arm with that of Cassie and led her for a walk among the quiet trees.

"Does all this worry you?" she asked lightly.

"Who? Me? Not a bit," answered Cassie. "I never worry."

"Nor I—except for my complexion," laughed Mrs. Putnam.

Cassie knew that she lied.

"Still, I'm a bit tired of it," added the elder woman. "I'll be glad to see New York again. Of course, it goes without saying that you will."

"Oh, I'm not so sure, Mrs. Putnam. Two weeks ago I knew that anything like this was impossible—for me. Now I'm not certain about it. I believe I could learn."

"Honestly? Well, possibly. I thought so, too, at first. But somehow"——

"—somehow, back in New York we all seem to be in our proper proportions. Out here it seems as if things exaggerate themselves—things and people. We see too much of each other, I suppose."

"Perhaps," said Cassie noncommittally.

"Will she ever get to it?" thought Cassie.

"I suppose all this rough and tumble is good for the nerves, after a fashion. I think it did mine good, for a while. But I'm sure that too much medicine is bad for me. Is it that way with you, Miss Reynolds?"

"If you're speaking of medicine, I don't take it," observed Cassie, cheerfully. "I eat a light lunch, drink plenty of water and often I walk all the way to Harlem."

"You're lucky, my dear," laughed Mrs. Putnam.

"Sure it is."

Mrs. Putnam seemed to find brief amusement in this.

"May I ask something personal?" she asked, after a brief pause.

"Shoot."

"Is there a young man under serious consideration?"

Cassie laughed.

"Why, certainly," she answered. "If I said 'no,' you'd have me down for a liar, and you'd be right. I'm human. Only, I do all the considering."

"You mean, he doesn't do any?"

"That's the answer. He leaves it all to me. That's because he doesn't know there's anything going on."

"That man is doomed."

"I hope so," said Cassie frankly.

Mrs. Putnam studied another root.

The water journeys were short and the portages were many.

"Are you ever jealous of him?" she asked.

"Nope. Don't have to be. That is"—— Cassie paused for a second. "No; I'm never jealous."

Mrs. Putnam observed her with shrewd eyes.

"It's the same way with me," she remarked evenly.

"We're a grand pair of liars," Cassie told herself. "Only I almost slipped while I was telling it. What's the matter with me, I wonder?"

"Why don't you try making him jealous of you, Miss Reynolds?"

"Never thought of it, particularly. I suppose I might. How?"

"It's not difficult for you to interest somebody else, is it?"

It was Cassie's turn to look, but Mrs. Putnam's face was sphinxlike, if friendly.

"Oh, I don't suppose I'm universally hated," admitted Cassie.

"I'm sure not. Now, Clag doesn't hate you at all.

"That's nice of him," she ventured cautiously.

"In fact, I'd say he found you quite interesting."

"That's still nicer," said Cassie.

"And you mustn't think I'm patronizing when I say that Clag is somewhat exacting, my dear."

"I'll bet he is. He married you."

Mrs. Putnam laughed, in a flat tone.

"I didn't have that in mind," she said. "But, you know, the exactions of one year may not be those of another. Even they may change between seasons."

Cassie was not sure that she understood the trend of the talk. She tried a sidewise glance, but it told her nothing. Then she faced Mrs. Putnam squarely.

"This isn't the kind of a bush that it's worth while beating around," she said. "Let's have it out straight. Am I causing you any worry on account of Mr. Putnam?"

"For heaven's sake, no!"

The proper way to test "B" batteries is by the application of a voltmeter after the set has been in operation for 15 minutes.

Heat will cause the solution to rise and fall in a storage battery.

ON THE AIR TONIGHT

A PROGRAM of dance music by the St. Regis orchestra is to begin over KWK at 6 o'clock.

* * *

Tonight's Song Shop broadcast over KSD at 7 o'clock is to be devoted to songs by Irving Berlin.

His new song, "Marie," written for a talking movie, will be given for the first time on the air.

Berlin will take the Song Shop back to the days before 1909, when, as a struggling young immigrant from Russia, he produced his first song, "Marie, From Sunny Italy."

* * *

Paul Poiret, noted Parisian dress stylist, will make his American radio debut over KWK at 7 o'clock. He is to be the chief attraction in the second "Serenade" broadcast. The half hour program will include instrumental music by a novelty orchestra and singing by a quartet.

Don't Let Overworked Nerves Pull Down Your Efficiency

Up to your ears in work—and still they pile it on. A million things on your mind—twelve, fourteen hours a day. Every nerve on edge—you feel like you're going to crack. No wonder you snap at the wife and bark at the kiddies. It's just a plain case of "Overworked Nerves." What's the result—Nervous Headaches, Nervous Exhaustion—Sleeplessness—Nervous Dyspepsia and similar troubles which will soon break down your energy and ruin your health.

QUIET YOUR NERVES
This New, Delightful Way

When your "NERVES" get beyond control—just drop a Dr. Miles' Effervescent NERVINE Tablet into a glass of water, and as it bubbles up like sparkling spring water — drink it. See how promptly it soothes and calms your deranged nervous system.

For over 40 years Dr. Miles' NERVINE (in liquid form) has brought grateful relief to thousands of nervous women and men. Now, this old reliable remedy is offered to you in this new Effervescent tablet form—handier to use and pleasant to take.

Our Money Back Guarantee

Get a package of Dr. Miles' Effervescent NERVINE Tablets. If, after taking them according to directions you are not benefited — take the empty package back to your druggist and he will refund your money.

ANSWERS TO QUERIES

The Post-Dispatch reserves the right to reject any query. Personal and telephone calls or answers by mail cannot be given attention, except letters on medical questions of undoubted sincerity when accompanied by stamped, addressed envelope.

STUDENT.—A Missouri Blue Book (public library) will give you official information about Missouri Penal Institutions. However, reading some of the books on sociology to be had at the library may be of more use to a student of sociology. The late Thomas Mott Osborne, warden of Sing Sing, who advanced the honor system, was a practical sociologist and anything found about him is worth reading.

MISS PATSY L.—Mr. Hoover was never a nominee for president on the Democratic ticket. His name was entered in a number of presidential primaries in 1920. Unlike Missouri, some states have a presidential primary, that is, when voting in a primary election for State and other officials, if it is a "presidential" year they also vote on names for President. This is done only to indicate a preference. Later in the year there will be the national party conventions and it is hoped that some delegate to such a convention will put in nomination the name which received preference in the primaries. The delegate does not necessarily go instructed to do this; he has merely been given an expression of the choice of those who send him. It may serve as a guide to him, in voting as a delegate, whether the name is nominated or not. Mr. Hoover's name was mentioned in such presidential primaries in 1920. In Michigan he was voted on in both the Republican and Democratic primaries, and carried the Democratic contest. In a California primary he ran 15,000 behind Senator Johnson and Major General Wood on a Republican ticket. Mr. Hoover settled the question of his party affiliations when he announced in a message to the Hoover Republican Club in California that he would accept the Republican nomination, "if it felt that the issues necessitated it, and it is demanded of me.' He insisted he would not build up an organization to fight for the nomination. His name received five delegates' votes in the Republican convention of that year which nominated Warren G. Harding.

E. L. S.—Some form of alcohol is the basis for cleaning gold lace, and this is about as explicit a direction as can be given as the vogue for metallic hats includes different gold and silver effects. Gold lace was formerly soaked in cheap white wine. It was then brushed with alabaster, and this was brushed off by polishing with a very soft brush, or with a heavy piece of velvet, the pile serving as a brush. Use your own judgment as to soaking the lace or wiping it with a cloth dampened with the alcohol. Usually the lace is not removable, and must be cleaned on the hat, in which case you may have to omit the polishing with alabaster. Silver lace is cleaned by alabaster, or Vienna lime, in very fine powder, and polished with a clean brush or clean velvet to remove the powder.

A READER.—Rank of the nations in naval power, during the war, (as of April, 1915) in number of vessels of different classes possessed, was Great Britain, Germany, France, United States, Japan, other nations. However, power is not gauged entirely as to number of vessels, but as to extent of coast line to be defended, magnitude of interests, vulnerability to attack, organization, morale, and many other considerations. In view of the pending naval pacts it is difficult to give revised figures as to naval power. In tonnage of merchant vessels, 1800 to 1914, the nations had this rank: Great Britain, United States, Germany, Norway, France, other nations. At the present time (Lloyd's Register for 1924-25) in merchant tonage they rank, Great Britain, United States, Japan, France, Germany, other nations. Relative naval power of nations asked about was during the war, (as of April 1915) viz.: Great Britain, Battleships, built and building, 63; battle cruisers, 10; armored cruisers (older ships), 29; destroyers, 182; submarines 98; unarmored cruisers, 90: Germany, B. ships, 43; B. cruisers, 7; armored cruisers, 4; destroyers, 150; submarines 50; unarmored cruisers 47; France: B. ships, 34; B. cruisers, none; armored cruisers, 20; destroyers, 87; submarines, 86; unarmored cruisers, nine; United States; B. ships, 39; B. cruisers, none; armored cruisers, 15; destroyers, 52; submarines, 37; unarmored cruisers, 11; Japan; B. ships, 23; B. cruisers, four; armored cruisers, nine; destroyers, 52; submarines, 15; unarmored cruisers, 13.

LEGAL INFORMATION

(By a Member of the St. Louis Bar Association)

ALBERT.—The assessment will be a lien on your real estate, and the title company will so report it.

A READER.—The exceptions to those of legal age allowed to marry in Missouri would be persons under guardianship or of unsound mind.

A. M.—The mother could not be arrested for taking her children out of the State under the circumstances described. Your second question has been referred for answer in miscellaneous answers, not being on legal matters.

MEDICAL QUESTIONS

Health and sanitation questions of public interest only will be considered. Diagnosis or treatment of individual cases will not be given.

LOUIS B.—Ovoferrin is a suitable tonic for you. It is taken in a tablespoonful dose in water three times daily after meals.

MRS. L. S.—Cancer is essentially a disease of old age or advanced middle age. Although it is of much less frequent occurrence in one of your age than in those older, it may occur at 25, or even earlier. Abnormal growths, blemishes, enlargements of any and every kind, failing to heal with or without treatment tend to become malignant, or cancerous, and this is a matter of record. 2. The attending physician is in the best position to judge for you whether or not the trouble with the tubes may be cured without operation. If you are not satisfied with what he decides, you should ask for a consultation of physicians, which can always be had without giving offense.

M. A. T.—Having varicose veins taken out of the legs is often advisable. The trouble you are having with the soles of the feet may be due to varicose veins, and if that is the case, removal would remedy it.

Smart Hungarian Has Novel Marriage Plan

A YOUNG Hungarian conceived the novel matrimonial plan of raffling himself to the highest bidder but failed to find a newspaper willing to accept such an announcement.

He proposed to issue 10,000 lottery tickets to be sold to women requiring a husband. He was prepared to marry the winner, he declared, regardless of age or other considerations. Budapesti Hirlap, Hungary's best known newspaper, declined to consider co-operating in the project despite the fact that the young man was willing to pay a bonus in the event an attractive young woman held the lucky ticket.

CHOICE FISH MEAT AND NOTHING ELSE
When you buy 40-FATHOM* fish you buy only the selected portions of fresh ocean fish—the tender white sides.
Heads, tails, fins, backbones and all waste are removed from 40-FATHOM fish at the pier. Then each of the clear fish steaks is wrapped in vegetable parchment paper and fast-expressed to your meat, fish or provision dealer.
Ask your butcher, grocer or fish dealer for 40-FATHOM fish by name. Be sure it is wrapped in the special wrapper that has the name 40-FATHOM fish printed on it; for fish not in this wrapper is not 40-FATHOM fish! Bay State Fishing Co., 30 Fish Pier, Boston.

STOMACH UPSET
Get at the real cause. That's what thousands of stomach sufferers are doing now. Instead of taking tonics, or trying to patch up a poor digestion, they are attacking the real cause of the ailment—clogged liver and disordered bowels.
Dr. Edward's Olive Tablets arouse the liver in a soothing, healing way. When the liver and bowels are performing their natural functions, away goes indigestion and stomach troubles.
Have you a bad taste, coated tongue, poor appetite, a lazy, don't-care feeling, no ambition or energy, trouble with undigested foods? Take Olive Tablets, the substitute for Calomel.
Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets are a purely vegetable compound mixed with olive oil. Know them by their olive color. They do the work without griping, cramps or pain. All Druggists.
Take one or two at bedtime for quick relief. Eat what you like. 15c, 30c, 60c.

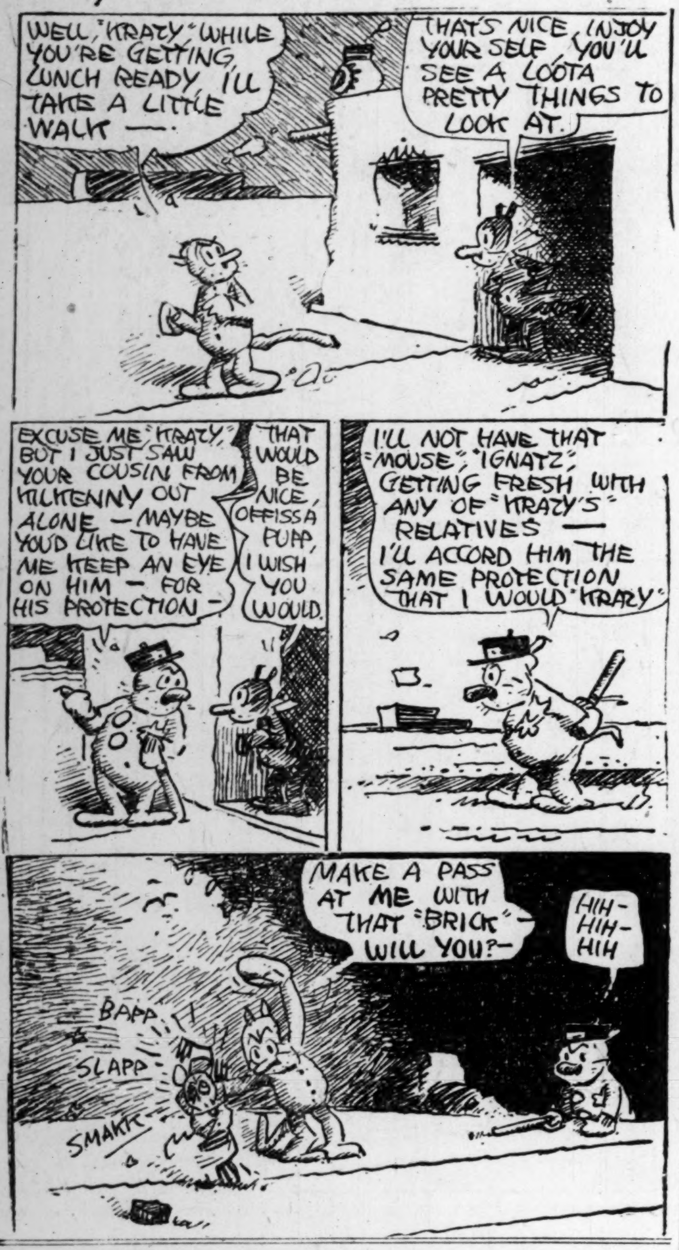
Krazy Kat—By Herriman



WELL, "KRAZY," WHILE YOU'RE GETTING LUNCH READY, I'LL TAKE A LITTLE WALK —
EXCUSE ME, "KRAZY," BUT I JUST SAW YOUR COUSIN FROM KILKENNY OUT ALONE — MAYBE YOU'D LIKE TO HAVE ME KEEP AN EYE ON HIM — FOR HIS PROTECTION — THAT WOULD BE NICE, OFFISSA PUPP, I WISH YOU WOULD.
I'LL NOT HAVE THAT "MOUSE," "IGNATZ," GETTING FRESH WITH ANY OF "KRAZY'S" RELATIVES — I'LL ACCORD HIM THE SAME PROTECTION THAT I WOULD "KRAZY"
MAKE A PASS AT ME WITH THAT "BRICK" — WILL YOU? —

Sophisticated Sophia—By Gettier

"The honeymoon is over," says Sophisticated Sophia, "when hubby begins to forget the thin ankles and notices the thick head."

By CHARLES MACK.

Moran: How come you don't fly to Europe in one of them Zepps?

Mack: The last time I was with the circus they wanted me to work in the lion's dining car.

Moran: What did you do?

Mack: I told 'em I was a cook and not Daniel.

Moran: Zepp's dining cars is different.

Mack: No, they isn't. You get half way cross the ocean and the conductor sticks his head in the door and yells, "We is dropping the diner."

Moran: Boy, I guess you is right.

Moran: Is you and me going to be in a dining car on Thanksgivin'?

Mack: Ferdinand, I got me a big sirloin steak picked out. It's an island in five miles of gravy. And the only way to reach it is by swimmin'.

BEAVER! I HOLLERED YOUR NAME THREE TIMES BEFORE YOU HEARD ME. YOU MUST HAVE BEEN CONCENTRATING ON SOME DEEP SUBJECT. HOW'S THE NEW WIFE?
WELL....... OH, SHE'S O. K. COLONEL AH LISTEN, HAVE LUNCH WITH ME. I WANT TO TALK TO YOU ABOUT.......WELL IMPORTANT THINGS.
YES, I'LL ADMIT I HAVE SOMETHING ON MY MIND. AH, I WOULDN'T WANT IT TO GO ANY FURTHER BUT......WELL.....HOW LONG DID YOU KNOW MY WIFE.....MRS. DARDANELLA THAT WAS.........DID YOU EVER SUSPECT SHE HAD A VERY VERY HIGH TEMPER?
WELL BEAVER ALL WOMEN ARE PECULIAR. ESPECIALLY AFTER MARRIAGE.
A MAN IS HEAD OF THE FAMILY. THAT'S LAW! NO MAN HAS A RIGHT TO BE A BULLY AT HOME BUT ON THE OTHER HAND HIS ADVICE SHOULD BE WORTH SOMETHING BESIDES A BIG LAUGH. MY MIND IS SET. NO WOMAN WILL RAZZ ME.
THE EASIEST WAY IS BEST, BEAVER. LET 'EM TALK! THAT'S MY MOTTO.
I STILL THINK WOMEN ARE WONDERFUL BUT I'M ON THE POINT OF SEEING THAT SOFTBOILED STUFF GETS YOU NOWHERE. I'M EXTRA BROADMINDED BUT LAUGHING IN A MAN'S FACE ONLY SETTLES AN ARGUMENT TEMPORARILY WELL, BEAVER, EVERYONE HAS A RIGHT TO THEIR OWN OPINION BUT AFTER YOU'RE MARRIED A WHILE YOU WONT WORRY SO MUCH ABOUT SMALL MATTERS.
